GIRL, 12, SLAIN BY KIDNAPER; BODY GIVEN UP FOR $1500

Los Angeles Banker Waiting in Street With Ransom Sees Child, but Is Told She Is Asleep.

SLAYER PLACES VICTIM ON GROUND

Father, Rushing to Embrace Her, Finds Her Dead—Mutilations Covered by Wrappings.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—The mutilated body of Marian Parker, 12 years old, kidnaped Thursday noon, was returned tonight to her father, Perry M. Parker, a banker, who had gone to an appointed street corner in the Northwest section of the city carrying $1500 in ransom money demanded by the abductors.

After preliminary examination at the morgue it was estimated that the girl had been dead 12 hours.

First examination of the body revealed that both legs had been cut off, apparently close to the body.

Kidnapers Telephone Father.

Parker received a telephone call at 7:15 o'clock tonight instructing him to proceed to the corner of Fifth street and Manhattan place with $1500 in gold certificates and his daughter would be returned to him there.

The father, distracted and nearing collapse, proceeded to the street intersection with the money, arriving there shortly after 8 o'clock.

A few minutes after he arrived, a small roadster drew up alongside Parker's automobile. The banker saw his daughter in the seat beside the driver and was told by the kidnapers that the little girl was asleep.

"Here's your child," he said to Parker. "Give me the money and follow instructions. She is asleep."

Parker handed the kidnaper the $1500 in the $20 gold certificates designated by the kidnaper.

Place Body on Lawn.

According to the agreement, the man after taking the money drove ahead of the father a little way and, climbing out of the car, laid the body of the girl on the grass in front of a house a few doors up the street.

A wire had been twisted so tightly around the girl's throat that the flesh had been cut deeply into a gaping wound.

The head of the little girl was exposed, but otherwise she was so wrapped that first examination disclosed no further mutilation.

Hundreds Search for Murderer.

Hundreds of detectives, deputies and peace officers in the Los Angeles district awaited the flash that the kidnaper had appeared, and with the tragic message telephoned to police headquarters, a tremendous drive was on to find the murderer.

Tonight's arrangement for Parker to pay over the money to the abductor culminated a two days' correspondence by the kidnaper with the father.

Four ransom letters were received, the first Friday morning. Each carried the threat of death if the money were not paid or if the police were notified.

After every effort on the part of police to locate the child had failed, it was decided to meet the demands of the abductors, release the child from bondage and then use every effort at the command of the police, sheriff's and district attorney's office to apprehend the man.

Parker Describes Meeting.

It was about 7:15 o'clock that Parker's telephone bell rang, and the agonized father recognized the voice of "Fox," the name given him by a man who had telephoned him before.

"He told me to meet him at Manhattan place just north of Fifth street," Parker said. "He told me to park the car that I would find a lot of cars there and after I had found a place to park to turn off my lights.

"I said to him, 'For God's sake,

Will Start From Detroit Tomorrow, First Stop of 3-Day Flight to Be in St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A new messenger of American goodwill towards neighbor peoples will take the air at Detroit Monday when Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh sets out by airplane to join her son in Mexico City for the Christmas holidays.

Flying in a trimotored Ford plane, No. C-1077, as the guest of the Ford company, and piloted by Harry Brooks, a licensed test pilot of the Ford flying staff, Col. Lindbergh's mother, as dauntless as himself, will be swept swiftly southward to cover in three or four days an aerial distance just a little greater than that her daring son made in 27 hours to write his latest epic in the pages of aviation history.

Evidence of the great value in stimulation of good will between the United States and Mexico which Washington officials foresaw in the mother's trip to join her son, was clear in the announcement of Mrs. Lindbergh's plans, which came from the State Department. There can be no doubt that they regard these two voluntary messengers of American friendliness as important factors in the campaign of rapprochement with Mexico that President Coolidge launched with the selection of his close friend, Dwight W. Morrow, as Ambassador to that country.

To Stop in St. Louis.

The plan for Mrs. Lindbergh's flight was arranged by the Ford company. Because of its importance from the viewpoint of international good relations, its disclosure came from the Department of State.

The plane in which Mrs. Lindbergh plans to make the return trip also with Brooks, veteran of thousands of hours of flying, at the controls, will leave Detroit at 10 a. m. Monday and go by way of St. Louis, San Antonio and Tampico to the Mexican capital, crossing the border at Brownsville, Tex. Stops for refueling will be made both going and returning at St. Louis, San Antonio and Tampico, where the distinguished passenger and her pilot will have opportunity to rest and sleep. But to guard against any mischance, State Department orders have been rushed to Consuls along the route in Mexico and at the border to be on the alert to render every assistance.

Formal notification of Washington's approval of Mrs. Lindbergh's adventure was also rushed to Ambassador Morrow so that the certain co-operation of the Mexican Government to insure the safety and comfort of the mother of the trans-Atlantic flyer could be obtained.

Will Return in Plane.

Ambassador Tellez, here in Washington, however, needed no words from higher Mexican authority to support his prompt assurances that Mexico, both her Government and her people, would be waiting with open arms to greet Mrs. Lindbergh and share in her delight at the Christmas reunion with her son, so far from home.

Part of the way, from the time the big plane picks up the Mexican coast line above Tampico, Mrs. Lindbergh will be seeing the same country over which Lindbergh sailed in the non-stop dash from Washington to Mexico City. Whether he will fly in the "Spirit of St. Louis" to greet her high above a foreign land and escort her to the Mexican capital is not known here.

Brooks, a flyer of the highest standing, expects to make the journey in time to reach Mexico City Dec. 21 or 22. Conditions encountered on the long flight will determine the exact time it is to take.

After four or five days, including Christmas itself, with her son, the mother will start homeward Dec. 26, winging back to Detroit to resume her classroom work.

Lindbergh Approves Plans.

Lindbergh, who plans to proceed on to Central America after the holidays, is fully advised of his mother's plans and approves them. The air has no terrors for him, even when his mother is involved. Without doubt he knows personally the ability of Brooks, in whose keeping his mother's life will be, for the project could hardly have been brought to culmination without direct telephonic conversation between mother and son and also between the aviator and those who arranged the details.

The record the Government has of Brooks' capacity as a pilot of the highest qualifications and of long and varied experience in the air, seems to justify Lindbergh's faith in him.

BARRIERS VANISH IN CALLES' HONORS TO COL. LINDBERGH

Interest in Flyer Causes President to Call Twice at U. S. Embassy, His First Visits There.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—As a special honor, President Calles drove to the United States Embassy today to escort Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Ambassador Morrow to a school children's fete attended by nearly 50,000 persons. Between 6000 and 10,000 school children participated in the fete at the Mexican City stadium. The day was proclaimed a holiday.

The President's call at the American Embassy was the second he had made there. The first was the night before Lindbergh's arrival, when Calles and members of the Cabinet were dinner guests of Ambassador Morrow. After the dinner, the President stayed up most of the night receiving Associated Press bulletins of Lindbergh's progress.

Today Senor Calles not only escorted the flyer and the American Ambassador to the school children's fete, but brought them back to the embassy and remained there a while to chat with them and Mrs. Morrow.

Observers here comment that nothing indicates more vividly the altered spirit prevailing in the Mexican capital toward the United States than the fact that a President who never before has been near the United States Embassy now is so attentive to the Americans.

It is also recalled that it has only been a brief time since the President enjoyed a ham-and-egg breakfast with the new Ambassador to Mexico and took him on a presidential inspection trip through the northern part of the republic.

Between 400 and 500 Mexican cities and towns have sent telegrams to the flyer asking him to visit them. It is doubtful that Lindbergh will leave the capital while he is in Mexico.

Col. Lindbergh will attend a bullfight tomorrow—but in his personal capacity as far as that is possible.

His acceptance of the invitation is considered separate and apart from the official program of his reception. Both Lindbergh and Ambassador Morrow have received numerous protests from humane societies in the United States over Lindbergh's visit to the bull ring, but Morrow has determined it is the flyer's "personal affair," and the young flyer maintains he has no right to offend his hosts by discriminating against their favorite sport.

7 PROHIBITION AGENTS FAIL IN EXAMINATIONS

Some Others of 12 in Eastern Missouri District Who Took Civil Service Tests Apprehensive.

At the threshold of the Christmas holidays, harvest season of prohibition enforcement activities, seven of the 12 Federal enforcement agents of the St. Louis office, for the Eastern district of Missouri, yesterday received notice that they failed to pass the civil service examination, taken by them in September.

The five others have received no notification as to the result of their examinations. Some of them fear that they also have failed.

Early loss of their positions, the seven believe, is portended by the notices. It is not expected that the ax will fall before New Year, but under the circumstances, it was commented yesterday, the agents can hardly be expected to be "on their toes" to any extraordinary degree in the heavy enforcement work of the holidays.

Passing Grade 60 Per Cent.

Passing grade in the examination was 60 per cent. Less than 60, the agents were informed, meant an "ineligible rating." The seven were notified that they made grades of 29 to 57. Each of them was allowed five points for experience.

Paul Toelle, who has served for four years, and who was highly regarded by persons familiar with the work of the enforcement office, made a grade of 55. Before entering enforcement work, he was for two years a special investigator for the Attorney-General of Missouri, then Jesse W. Barrett. He worked with Fred Tate on various investigations.

Fred J. Niebruegge's grade was 57. He has served one year, and previously was for seven years a Deputy Sheriff of St. Louis County.

Edward A. Straube, law student, who has served six months, also made 57. Tom Harris, two years in the work, got 54.67. Tom Kearney, with 13 months' service, got 40.67. Charles E. Stanley, three years in the service, got 29. Velmer Gamble, Negro, who has served eight months, made 49.

Five Await Notification.

Agents not notified thus far whether they succeeded or failed in the test are Carol Byrd, Everett Graham, Joe Wolf, Gust West and Paul Gill.

James Dillon, deputy administrator, has a previous civil service status, and was not required to take an examination. George Bausewein, also deputy administrator, has been eight years in the work. He took an oral examination in June. The question of his

DIVERS ORDERED TO TAP HULL OF S-4 FOR SIGNALS

Crews Expected to Descend at Dawn Today to Examine the Sunken Submarine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Rear Admiral C. F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, remained on duty tonight to further the work of rescue of the crew of the submarine S-4, sunk today off Provincetown, Mass., harbor. He kept in frequent communication by telephone with Boston Navy Yard and other naval posts along the North Atlantic seaboard.

Admiral Hughes announced that an oil slick had been found where the submarine was struck and the position had been marked.

He ordered the Boston navy yard to send divers to the sides of the submarine and tap for signals.

Divers on the Way.

Admiral Hughes is of the opinion that little can be done toward attempting to raise the S-4 before dawn tomorrow.

He was advised that 11 divers had left Newport, R. I., by automobile, at 8 p. m., to aid in rescuing the S-4 crew. These divers are from the diving school of the naval torpedo station under command of Lieut. F. E. Mathews.

The divers expect to arrive at the scene of the disaster by daybreak.

Among the experts ordered to the scene of the collision was Capt. E. J. King, who had an important part in the raising of the S-51.

Vessels Sent to Aid.

Capt. Adolphus Andrews, commanding the submarine base at New London, Conn., was ordered to dispatch all available vessels to the scene of the disaster.

The submarine tender Camden, which under Rear Admiral Christie, was in charge of rescue operations after the S-51 sank, was directed to make all speed for Provincetown and her commanding officer, Capt. Brumby, was told to assume command. The Bushnell, also a tender, and the Falcon and Chewink, auxiliary vessels, were ordered to accompany the Camden. The Falcon and Chewink both took part in the attempts to raise the S-51.

Secretary Wilbur ordered Ashley H. Robertson, commander of the scouting fleet whose flagship, the battleship Wyoming, is at Philadelphia, to dispatch to the scene whatever cruisers and destroyers under his command he believes could be of use.

The aircraft tender Wright was ordered to Provincetown from Norfolk, Va.

Telegrams were sent by Admiral Hughes to the next of kin of all men thought to have been on the submarine notifying them that it had been sunk. The customary words of sympathy were omitted

LACK OF FACILITIES HALTS RESCUE WORK TILL THIS MORNING

Destroyer Paulding Which Struck Undersea Boat Close to Provincetown, Mass., Beached With One Man Hurt—First Attempts to Communicate With Sunken Vessel, Which Lies in 120 Feet of Water, Fail.

By the Associated Press.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 17.—The fate of 40 officers and men, the crew of the U. S. S. submarine S-4, was in doubt tonight as the vessel lay on the ocean floor off this port, after a collision with the Coast Guard destroyer Paulding. A survey by the submarine tender, A. Wandank, shows that the water is from 18 to 20 fathoms (108 to 120 feet) deep at the point at which the S-4 went down. The number aboard the S-4 was first given as 39 men and four officers. Revised figures from the Navy Department make the number 40—four officers, 34 men, an inspecting officer and a civilian. This figure, however, is still subject to revision.

Whether the hull of the submarine was crushed and her crew all drowned, or whether the accident had merely disabled her machinery, making impossible for her to come to the surface, still was unknown. Those who witnessed the collision feared, however, that a major marine disaster had resulted, comparable to the loss of the submarine S-51, sunk Sept. 25, 1925, in collision with the steamship City of Rome, off Block Island, when 33 officers and men perished.

The submarine tender Wandank endeavored to communicate with the crew of the sunken vessel by sounding devices, but obtained no response.

The Wandank later attempted to lower a sounding line as a guide for a diver to reach the sunken vessel, but the effort was abandoned until daylight.

Seaplanes from Squantum, Mass. will help locate the submarine tomorrow morning if weather and sea are favorable.

The light of a miniature marine city flickered off Wood End tonight as rescue craft, great and small, assembled over the spot where the scores of vessels, Coast Guard destroyers and patrol boats and naval craft clustered about waiting for daybreak to send divers down to survey the sunken submarine.

Hit Submerged Vessel.

The destroyer Paulding, on patrol duty off Provincetown, was making for the harbor. Suddenly her lookout saw the S-4 running submerged dead ahead. There was no time to swerve from the course and the vessels crashed. The destroyer made port with her lower hold flooded. The Paulding was struck amidships, but the point at which the submarine felt the force of the blow was not known. The Paulding was reported to be going 18 knots an hour at the time of the collision. The accident occurred at 3:37 p. m.

The S-4 went down immediately. Boats that cruised about the place for hours found no survivors, giving rise to the hope that the submarine's hull had not been pierced. A fresh breeze and rough seas hampered the work of the small boats.

The S-4 went down a bare 1800 yards from the shore off Wood End coast guard station, which is situated on the outer, or ocean side of the harbor.

She was on a standardization try-out when rammed.

Paulding Beached; One Man Hurt.

The Paulding was beached at Long Point Light, in Provincetown Harbor, when it became apparent that her hull had been badly damaged. A member of her crew, named MacMillan, was seriously scalded by the bursting of the steam pipe after the collision. He will be taken to the hospital here tomorrow.

A message from the Paulding,

DUCK MARKED IN ICELAND, JULY 2, SHOT NEAR BOSTON

One of 60,000 Leg-Banded to Learn Ways of Migration Among Widgeons.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—A European widgeon, a species of duck which flew across the Atlantic from Iceland, was shot on Cape Cod recently by G. Herbert Windeler, member of a Boston insurance firm. A leg band on the bird bore the name of Peter Skovgaard, Viborg, Denmark.

Windeler said that he had received a letter from Skovgaard sating that he banded the widgeon in Iceland on July 2, last. Skovgaard wrote that he and his associates had banded 60,000 birds to learn their ways of migration.

The widgeon is believed to be the first one shot in this country. Records show that gulls have crossed the ocean but there is nothing to indicate that a duck ever before made the trip.

TWO GUARDS SHOT AND KILLED IN SEPARATE ROOMS OF BANK

Mystery in Death of Men in Philadelphia at Ends of Tunnel.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17—Two Guards were shot and killed in the banking rooms of the real estate Trust Co. early tonight under circumstances that have mystified police. Nothing was found to indicate an attempted robbery.

The position of the guards, found in different departments of the bank and separated by a short tunnel, tended to disprove the first theory that they had died in a pistol duel.

The victims are Harry Jones, 50 years old, of Oaklyn, N.J., and Harry Webb, 62, of Philadelphia. Jones was dead when he reached a hospital and Webb died a few moments after being taken to the operating room. He was shot three times in the abdomen. Jones was shot through the heart.

John Newbecker and George Roffel, also guards, are the only other persons known to have been in the banking offices at the time the shooting occurred. Newbecker said he was shaving in the tunnel. He told police no one passed through the tunnel, which would have been necessary is the same person had fired the shots.

No weapon was found near Jones, but Roffel found a revolver near Webb. Four shots had been fired from it.

The first alarm was given by Joseph Pruitt, an elevator operator in the building, who ran into the street and summoned a traffic policeman.

Investigators said that all doors to the departments in which Jones and Webb were found were locked and that the only means of entering each was through the tunnel.

TELEGRAPH FILES FAIL TO BEAR OUT HEARST 'EXPOSE'

Errors in Alleged Mexican "Documents" Reported to Agree With Grammar of Avila, Go-Between.

COMMITTEE TO HEAR NEW PROOF OF FRAUD

Alberto Pani, Former Secretary of Treasury, Says His Signature on "Vouchers" Is Forgery.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — New evidences of forgery will be disclosed next week when the special Senate Committee resumes its investigation of the notorious "Mexican official documents" recently published in the 26 newspapers controlled by William Randolph Hearst, and used by those papers as the basis for charges that the Mexican Government had conspired to bribe United States Senators, to conduct intrigues against this country, to foment "red" revolutions, and to conclude a hostile alliance with Japan against the United States.

It is now known that the genuineness of those "documents" rests almost wholly on the word of Miguel Avila, former "undercover man," a squat, swarthy little half-breed from the border country, who asserts he got them by bribing Mexican Government clerks to steal them from the official files in Mexico City and the New York Consulate.

Scrutiny of the "documents" early revealed that the same peculiarities of grammar which appeared in the "Mexico City documents" appeared also in the "New York documents." This in itself seemed a remarkable coincidence.

Errors Reported to Match.

Yesterday the committee obtained a specimen of Avila's grammar by having an interpreter dictate to him a letter in Spanish—the same language as that of the "documents." The Post-Dispatch correspondent was informed tonight from a reliable source that the committee found peculiarities in Avila's specimen corresponding to those noted in the two sets of "official documents." This afternoon the committee compared them in executive session, but did not give out the results of the comparison.

Prior to this, the committee had heard testimony by officers of telegraph companies, who said their records showed no transfers of money from Mexico City to New York, although explaining that copies of telegrams sent and received prior to Dec. 1 of last year had been destroyed, according to their custom.

The published Hearst "documents" made it appear that May 12, 1926, president Calles of Mexico ordered $15,000 transmitted to Consul General Elias at New York to be given Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, and that on the following August 5, he ordered $1,200,000 transmitted to Elias, to be given to Senators Borah of Idaho, Norris of Nebraska, and Heflin of Alabama.

Hearst has admitted on the witness stand that when he published these charges he did not believe the Senators had received a cent, and for that reason deleted their names from the published "documents," but that he expected through their publication to bring on a congressional investigation, which would result in the disclosure of the names, thus relieving him of the responsibility—moral and legal.

To Produce Telegraph Records.

The telegraph officers were of the opinion that if any such sums of money were transmitted, the company would retain a record of it, even though the telegrams of transmittal had been destroyed. They promised to bring their books next week. They also believed that office employes would have an independent recollection of the transmittal of such a sum as $1,200,000 and promised to inquire.

In addition to this, however, the Hearst "documents" purported to show an exchange of telegrams during the period subsequent to last December, extending, in fact, up to September 12 of this year. The telegraph companies could find no records of such messages, although they keep duplicate copies of all telegrams sent and received.

Avila had testified in particular that among the papers he obtained from the New York Consulate was a telegram from Foreign Minister Estrada to Elias, inquiring if the new American Ambassador Dwight Morrow, had any connection with large oil companies. He said he later returned this telegram to the clerk who had furnished it.

The telegraph companies had no record of such a message. Disavowing the implied charge of bribery against the four Senators, Hearst and his staff have advanced the theory that Mexican officials used the names of the Senators as a pretext, and that the actual scheme was either to transmit money to this country where it would be available for their personal use in case their Government should be overthrown, or that Calles was swindled by Mexican officials in the United States, who got the money and embezzled it.

Even this theory is attacked by the records of the telegraph companies. If no money was transmitted, then obviously no money was embezzled or salted away.

These are some of the outside evidences which tend to support the charge that the "documents" are forgeries.

Thoughtful persons, however, are likely to find even stronger proofs of faking by analyzing the "documents" themselves, and considering the reasonableness of the facts which they attempt to establish.

Treaty With Japan Illegal.

One of the things which they puport to show is that the Mexican Government entered into a secret treaty with Japan. It is assorted that President Calles dictated to a clerk a memorandum of what he desired the treaty to provide, and sent this memorandum to the Foregin Office. Also, that the treaty subsequently was ratified at a secret session of the Mexican Chamber of Deputies.

These assertions necessarily inspire certain questions. Would the head of a Foreign Government allow a stenographer to learn of such an important and dangerous secret and allow a clerk to carry paper of that consequence from one department to another? Would he allow such a memorandum to be preserved in the files.

Leaving the well known fact that secret treaties never are submitted to parliamentary bodies for ratification for the obvious reason they would not long remain secret, it is interesting to consider the probable consequences of such an action. The Mexican Chamber is composed of several hundred deputies, of all factions some of them bitterly hostile to the administration.

Is it likely that such a secret would have been kept inviolate until exposed by the Hearst papers months afterwards?

Then the Japanese side. First, the Japanese Government has denied that such a treaty ever existed or was even suggested. In the second place, would Japan, for the sake of an alliance with a weak Nation like Mexico, run the risk of bitterly antagonizing the United States, with whom, of all Nations, it is most eager to maintain friendly relations?

Japan is a member of the League of Nations, and as such is solemnly bound to register all treaties with the League Secretariat. Would Japan, in order to make an ally of Mexico, brave the danger of being exposed before the world as a faithless Nation, thus incurring an enormous loss in prestige, trade and good will all over the earth?

Alleged Vouchers Shown.

And now for the "documents" relating to money. Among the Hearst exhibits are papers which purport to be formal orders, signed by President Calles, ordering subordinate officials to send the money to the United States, in which it is expressly stated that it is to be given to the Senators named. It is said a clerk took these "orders" from the files in the presidential office.

In addition there is what purports to be an ordinary ledger sheet, on which the expenditure of $1,200,000 is recorded, and on which it is plainly set out that the money was for these Senators. It is maintained that a clerk abstracted this sheet from a ledger in the Mexican Treasury Department.

Is it likely that President Calles would issue a formal order for the bribing of United States Senators, signing his name to it, and that he would allow such an order to be kept in his official files, accessible to clerks? Is it likely that the expenditure of money for such a purpose would be recorded in a common ledger in the Treasury Department, where clerks could see it steal it and sell it?

Then the telegrams relating the transmittal and expenditure of the money. Consul-General Elias has had more than 20 years of experience in the diplomatic service. Is it likely that he would use the commercial telegraph and cable wires in a correspondence of a highly incriminating nature? Or if he had no better sense, would not those in authority at Mexico City know better?

Forgeries Pani Says.

The numerous grammatical errors in the "documents" have been noted. It has also been pointed out that certain "vouchers" included among them are signed with the names of officials who had no authority to sign such vouchers. The only functionary invested with the power was Alberto Pani, then Secretary of the Treasury, now Minister to France. In addition to identifying this discrepancy, Pani has declared that facsimiles published in the Hearst papers purporting to bear his signature are palpable forgeries.

All the thorny doubts cited in the foregoing must be resolved against the Mexicans and the Japanese if the "documents" are to be accepted as genuine. The other alternative is to conclude that they are forgeries.

Is that difficult? It is well known that such forgeries are common. The same Hearst papers only two years ago published a series of articles by a confessed forger, in which he told with huge gusto of perpetrating similar forgeries, and described how it is done. He is now reported as referring to the present "documents" as being among the crudest specimens that ever came to his notice—"a disgrace to any good craftsman."

There has been testimony that Avila, who obtained these "documents" for John Page, the Hearst reporter, had just prior to that time, told another reporter that similar documents could be obtained for money. It is known that Page shortly before he joined Hearst, and only a few weeks before he started on the job getting those "documents," has offered similar papers to another American newspaper, purporting to involve President Calles and Senator La Follette, and that the other newspaper rejected them as frauds.

Hearst Owns Mexican Land

Finally, the sincerity of Hearst is subject to question. He owns vast properties in Mexico, including one ranch of almost 1,00,000 acres and he has had trouble with the Mexican authorities over his "rights.'

In one editorial foreword accompanying the publication of the "documents," it was stated in reference to President Coolidge's message on Nicaragua, that "the President's acts, thus far, had been based on only a small part of the amazing information now in the hands of the Hearst newspapers. Another foreword, alluding to one of Secretary Kellogg's utterances on Mexico, said: "Unfortunately, he had not at that time the complete ducumentary evidence to establish these facts."

The plain intimation in both these statements is that President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg later did get the benefit of 'the amazing information" and "the complete documentary evidence" in the hands of the Hearst newspapers.

It now develops, by the testimony of Hearst's own witnesses, that when the "documents" were submitted to the President and Kellogg, both flatly refused even to look at them. These circumstances seem somewhat to illumine the candor and sincerity of Hearst and his newspapers.

KIDNAPERS KILL GIRL AND RETURN BODY FOR $1500

will you have my little girl?'

"He said he would.

"I told him I had the assurance of the police that he would not be covered and that I wanted my little girl back and that I had the money. Fox said, 'All right, leave there in five minutes.'

"I think I left about 7:30 p. m.

"I drove to the place and parked on the right hand side and turned out my lights. A fellow drove by once in an open small car with a handkerchief over his face, apparently looking things over.

"Then he came again and pulled up alongside of me. He pointed a gun at me and said: '"You know what I'm here for. No monkey business, hand over the money.'

Paid Money on Demand.

"I said, 'can I see the little girl?" 'He pulled her up from the other side and showed me her head. He said she was asleep. I thought she was chloroformed. I paid the money and said, 'Can I have her?' "He said, 'Yes, you can have her. I'll drive down a little and I'll leave her just down the street.'

"He drove up a couple of hundred feet, got out and laid her on the parkway by the curb and drove away.

"I ran down—"

The father could say no more.

Two men who were passing the scene said the father knelt by the little body, clasped it for a moment in his arms and cried out in agony. The two telephoned the police and the second phase of the great man hunt was on.

Marian was lured from the Mount Vernon Junior High School grounds Thursday noon by a man who represented that her father was ill. When she failed to return home at night Parker communicated with school authorities and when told of the ruse notified police.

First instructions regarding ransom were given Parker in a letter. He was told to carry the money in gold certificates. Later he received a telegram from Pasadena to disregard the letter and await other instructions.

Last night Parker was advised, by telephone, to throw the money out of a window of the family home in Hollywood, when Marian would be placed on the porch. The father kept an all-night vigil but was unrewarded.

Nation-Wide Search for Clews.

Herman Cline, Chief of Los Angeles detectives, tonight appealed through the Associated Press to every chief of police in the United States and Canada to wire him descriptions and criminal records of every man ever suspected of the crime of kidnaping. Chief Cline declared the murder of Marion Parker was the most atrocious ever to occur in Southern California.

"It is the most terrible—most fiendish crime ever to blacken California society," he declared. "It may be that the fiend has plied his terrible trade in some other place and his record and description may be in the hands of some officer tonight."

Submarine S-4, Carrying 40 Men, Sunk in Collision

received at the navy yard here at 11:45 P. M. said:

"Periscope and conning tower came up suddenly a little on our port bow, the submarine lifting the Paulding considerably out of the water forward, and the forward part of the periscope and conning tower ripping a large hole from our stem aft on the port side for about twenty feet.

"The periscope and after part of the submarine were sighted as she went down listing to port. Not one of the crew was seen.

"About 100 feet of the Paulding bumped along over the submarine before she went down, the Paulding was about to round White Buoy off Wood End for Provincetown and the submarine was maneuvering or standing out.

"The lifeboat was lowered immediately and search for survivors made. A buoy was planted and the commandant notified."

Rescue Work Delayed.

The Paulding's message reporting the collision started a rescue fleet from the New London coast guard and submarine bases, and from the Boston and Portsmouth, N. H., navy yards. The submarine tender Wandank was the first to reach the position of the collision. The Wood End coast guard station sent its life boats to search for possible survivors.

It was impossible to undertake efforts to raise the S-4 early tonight because no vessels had reached the scene with the necessary equipment for the purpose. The Wandank placed six buoys to mark the exact point at which the submarine had gone down. Pontoons to be used in lifting operations were sent from New London, but it is not expected that they will be here before tomorrow morning.

The Falcon, one of the four vessels ordered out of New London at 4:40 p. m. to assist in rescue operations, is especially equipped, with pontoons, derricks and other fixtures, to raise submarines. The Falcon assisted in raising the S-51.

The submarine tender Bushnell left Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard at 7 o'clock tonight, to make an attempt to raise the S-4. She carries divers who will begin operations at daybreak tomorrow, if water conditions permit. The vessel also is equipped with lifting apparatus. Commander H. M. Ranham is in command of the Bushnell.

Submarine S-9 Sent.

Early tonight it was announced that the submarine S-9 also had been ordered from New London to aid in the rescue work.

The tugs Iuka and Sagamore at Brooklyn Navy Yard, were being equipped tonight with the same type of large pontoons that were used in rescue work at the sinking of the submarine S-51. All available hands were enlisted to prepare the tugs for sailing to the scene of the S-4 wreck as quickly as possible.

The tugs will proceed to Provincetown at a speed reduced to four or five knots by the weight of the pontoons.

Capt. Harry Hamlett, port commander of the destroyer division of the coast guard service, left New London by train for Provincetown immediately after hearing of the accident.

Wood End coast guard station is on the ocean side of the harbor, and virtually within Provincetown. The outer side of the harbor has been compared to an arm stretching around and enclosing a sheltered bay, and Wood End is the wrist of the arm.

The S-4 was 231 feet long, had a deadweight tonnage of 900 tons, was built and commissioned at the Portsmouth navy yard, Nov. 19, 1919, and had just been overhauled.

Fourth of Class in Accidents.

The S-4 is of the same class as the S-51 but is smaller and has less torpedo capacity.

The S-4 is the fourth vessel of her class to figure in a serious accident. Three years ago the S-19 ran ashore on the outer bar at Orleans, Mass. Four years ago next month the S-48 ran ashore at Little Harbor, N. H., during a storm. The S-51, as has been mentioned, was sunk.

The Paulding is a 740-ton destroyer which was turned over by the navy to the coast guard service. The S-4, while of the same class as the '51, is somewhat smaller. She is 231 feet long, and was built at the Portsmouth Navy Yard in 1919. She carries six officers and 84 men.

Delayed His Transfer.

Orders were issued some time ago for the transfer of Lieut. [illegible] A. McGinley of Norristown, Pa., from the S-4, but they were held in abeyance, and McGinley is thought to have been aboard the vessel.

The delay in carrying out the transfer, which was to have taken place before today, was due to request of the officer, assigned to replace McGinley, that he be permitted to remain at his present post to spend Christmas.

As a result McGinley was instructed to remain another month with the S-4.

ADMIRAL HUGHES THINKS SUNKEN DIVER'S CREW CAN SURVIVE FROM 1 TO 5 DAYS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.

AS in the case of the S-51, which sank after a collision off Block Island in September, 1925, there is much speculation as to how long the men imprisoned in the submarine S-4 sunk today off Provincetown, Mass., provided they were still alive, might be able to ward off death.

The crew of the S-51, which had been on the surface, was given about 40 hours, but it was not known here how long the S-4 had been running submerged, or how long was its supply of oxygen when the vessel was rammed.

Admiral Hughes, chief of Naval operations, is of the opinion that the trapped crew could live from one to five days. He is hopeful that the 231-foot hull of the S-4 could be stood on end, if necessary, and punctured, allowing the men to leave from the tip sticking out of the water.

TAFT ASKS JURY TO SEND REMUS TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

Cincinnati Will Be Safe From "Ex-Bootleg King" Only When He Is Dead, Prosecutor Says in Plea.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY UPHOLDS CHARACTER

Defendant Is Affectionate, Big-Hearted and Was Wronged by Wife, Elston Asserts.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 17.—Young Charles P. Taft II, son of the Chief Justice of the United States made a forceful speech here late this afternoon dedicated to the proposition that one George Remus, an ex-king of bootleggers of more than local fame, be sent to the electric chair for killing his wife, Mrs. Imogene Remus, in Eden Park, Oct. 6. As County Prosecutor who has worked hard for five weeks of trial to put an end to the pungent and colorful career of George Remus, Taft sought to appeal to what he called "the logic and common sense of the jury."

Characterizing Remus as a "rat," a "squealer," a "publicity hound" and a "murderer," the Prosecutor spent most of his time with summation of the evidence.

He pointed out that since Remus has admitted killing his wife, and law recognizes no justification for such an act except insanity or self-defense (the latter element not entering this case), the jury should convict the defendant unless it believes him to have been insane. He reminded the jury that three alienists appointed by the Court and a dozen lay witnesses had testified Remus was sane, and that the defendant displayed none of the symptoms of insanity the day he killed Mrs. Remus.

Would Make Cincinnati Safe.

After an hour and a half of pointing to the alleged weak spots in the testimony advanced by the defense, he declared: "The only time Cincinnati will be safe from this man is when he is dead."

This conclusion caused Mrs. Anna Ricker, one of the two women on the jury, to smile and nudge Juror Oberschmidt, at her left. Another juror in the front row grinned behind his hand.

Then to the floor before the jury box walked Charles Elston, counsel for Remus, who has the reputation among his former clients as "the man who has beat more tight jams in court than any other in Cincinnati." Short, slight and suave, Attorney Elston began to outline the reasons why, in his opinion, George Remus should be acquitted. The chief reasons advanced by Elston in a speech which lasted until 6:15 p. m. were:

Remus has an affectionate nature. He once bought his wife $5 worth of flowers. On another occasion Remus bought food for a prisoner's children with his last $10. Some prisoners of low character might have called Remus a "rat" while he was in Atlanta penitentiary but in truth, Remus squealed only once and that was to save Mrs. Remus from prosecution in the Jack Daniel whisky conspiracy.

Reasons for Freeing Remus.

And for these further reasons Remus was a poor German immigrant boy (with a glance at the seven or eight Cincinnati Germans on the jury. Remus was a bootlegger, true, but he went into it "to get away from the strain of his law practice," and besides, a whole lot of people are bootleggers and "with impunity."

Moreover, his wife did him dirt by "running away with that rat, Franklin L. Dodge." The Government didn't treat Remus right, but put him in eight different jails for the same offense. The prosecution didn't treat Remus right, but "tried to besmirch the decent, honorable people who came here to testify to the truth." Among those Elston grouped in this classification were George Connors and George Klug, ex-convicts.

As to the point of Remus' sanity, Attorney Elston pointed out that two newspaper reporters, a judge and several other respectable citizens had testified they believed Remus insane. Leaving this subject hurriedly, Elston approached his climax by saying: "The State has said thaot Remus threatened to follow his wife to China. I say if Imogene Remus was the sort of woman the evidence has proved she was, China wasn't too far off to follow her to."

When Elston waxed sarcastic, the courtroom crowd, police characters and a few less dubious citizens, grunted and snickered audibly, until Judge Shook threatened to clear the room.

Thus did the first clash between State and defense counsel pass, and Monday they will be at it again. Each side has two and a half hours more for argument.

Remus has said he, himself, will address the jury. He did not take the witness stand.

Thus did the first clash between State and defense counsel pass, and Monday they will be at it again. Each side has two and a half hours more for argument.

Remus has said he, himself, will address the jury. He did not take the witness stand.

Cace to Jury Tomorrow.

The case will go to the jury some time Monday. It was fairly evident from the drift of the defense argument and from the earnest fight put up by Elston to have a straight "not guilty" verdict submitted to the jury, that the defense hopes to dodge the sanity element in the case. Technically, the question of Remus' sanity is the only issue, but in reality, the defense pins its hopes to "sob stuff" in Remus' behalf.

Before the closing arguments began yesterday afternoon, the State asked that a straight not guilty verdict be excluded from the jury's consideration. Prosecutor Taft and his associates contended that the only verdicts should be "guilty" or "not guilty for the sole reason of insanity at the time of the crime" or "not guilty because of insanity at the time of the trial."

The "not guilty because of insanity at the time of the crime" verdict would pin the jury down and hold it to the one question which should be the only legal issue in the case. The jury would have to decide merely whether Remus was sane or insane at the time of the crime. If sane, it must convict; if insane it should so qualify its acquittal.

But the defense bitterly fought to have a straight "not guilty" verdict included. It is held that such a verdict would give the jury more latitude.

Jury Could Clear Remus.

The jury might acquit Remus under a verdict both of insanity and of murder and send him forth a free man without qualification. The defense hopes that even should the jury find Remus sane at the time of the murder it would find his act to be justifiable under the unwritten law, or go easy on him through sympathy born of the horrendous tale of his sufferings at the hands of his wife and the law. A straight "not guilty" verdict could cover such a decision charitably.

But if the jury, voting to acquit, must state that it does so only because it believes Remus to have been insane at the time of the crime, the defense feels that is tying the jury down to cases too tightly.

Judge Shook took the question of verdicts under advisement and will decide Monday.

It has been demonstrated above that three acquittal verdicts are possible. Under the law, only two verdicts of guilty will be considered by the jury. In Ohio a jury may find a first degree murder defendant "guilty without mercy," under which the death penalty is mandatory, or it may find him guilty with mercy, in which case he is sentenced to "life imprisonment without hope of pardon."

Taft Has Easy Manner.

Taft, who is tall and slender, not at all resembling his famous father, created a favorable impression by his closing argument today. He has an infectious grin and talks without affectations of any sort, in the manner of a collegian bawling out a football team between halves. He has a gift for colorful speech, using underworld slang readily.

Throughout the trial Taft and his youthful looking assistants, Sibbald and Basler, conferred at their table like backfield men in a huddle conspiring to send a smashing attack through the enemy line. They have seen and appreciated the many grotesque humors of the trial, and if eGorge Remus walks out of court on them, it is conceivable they might in ironic sense of sportsmanship give him a "rah, rah, rah."

The salient points of Taft's speech were as follows:

"Remus, you will notice, didn't take the witness stand. He didn't dare. He didn't dare face the cross-examination the State had ready for him. He said too many things before and after this murder which we would have asked him about. Oh, I know he is going to make an address to you, ladies and gentlemen of the jury. He'll probably throw a fit for you. He'll get down on his knees and I know he will weep.

"Remus has always been a fine publicity hound. He knew the headline, 'Bootlegger's Wife Runs Off With Ace of Prohibition Forces,' would go big and he certainly gave 'em a ride. You have seen him talking to the newspaper men here in the court room.

Calls Remus a Squealer.

"Remus has been a squealer. Willie Haar told you how down at Atlanta the convicts called him a rat. Whenever Remus was caught he squealed. He squealed on Warden Sartain at Atlanta penitentiary after the warden had taken his bribe. He squealed on his pals in the Jack Daniel whisky conspiracy case. He has been a law breaker and a squealer since he came to Cincinnati.

"You have heard talk here that Remus feared for his life. There has been testimony that Mrs. Remus and Franklin Dodge plotted against Remus' life in St. Louis. Remus sneaked into St. Louis. He didn't tell anyone he was coming. He was afraid for his life, but not because his wife or Dodge had plotted against him; he was afraid of the 'Egan Rats.' They were behind the conspirators in the Jack Daniel case. They were tough ba-

Gets Fourteen Years for Bank Robbery

REBECCA BRADLEY ROGERS, former University of Texas student, who got 14 years yesterday for holding up the officers of the Farmers' National Bank, Buda, Tex., and taking $1000, photographed during the trial with her husband, Otis Rogers, a young attorney, who assisted in his wife's defense.

SEVEN PROHIBITION AGENTS FAIL IN EXAMINATIONS

tenure, and that of Sam S. Haley, now acting as administrator, has not been determined.

The low grades were a surprise to some of the men, who had considered the examination an easy one. As they recalled the questions, nearly all bore directly on the work of prohibition enforcement. Of 45 questions, the greater part were followed by several alternate answers, of which one had to be checked as the correct answer. In a few cases the candidate had to frame his own answer, in 100 or 150 words.

Sample of Questions.

One of the questions which the agents recall was, "There is a great deal of liquor coming into this country from Canada. Why?" Five answers were printed, of which the candidate was to select one. The answer which some of the agents checked approvingly was, "Because the border is long and difficult to patrol." Now the agents are wondering whether they guessed rightly, or whether they were meant to check the answer stating that "Airplanes can fly between the two countries," or one of the others.

A hypothetical question was presented, to be answered in not more than 150 words. This was, "Three agents, not well acquainted previously, are working together. A says to B that C is crooked. What would you do about that?" There was another hypothetical question as to conditions which might arise in a raid on a still.

Several outsiders took the examination. The agents have heard that some of the outsiders made passing grades, though they did not receive the 5 per cent for experience, which agents in the service got. A Negro employed at the City Hall is said to have made a grade of 80, and a printer, who has done some work in co-operation with the enforcement office, is said also to have made 80.

U. S. COMMERCE CHAMBER AGAINST COOLIDGE ON RIVER

Platform of Business Group Favors Government Paying for Flood Control in Full.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, already at loggerheads with the President on the subject of tax reduction, today aligned itself squarely against the administration's proposal, embodied in the report of the chief of Army engineers, to Congress, that the lands along the lower Mississippi River be required to bear 20 per cent of the cost of flood control.

The chamber announced, through its president, Lewis E. Pierson, that as a result of a referendum vote among its membership, it would recommend to Congress that the Federal Government pay the whole cost of construction and maintaining whatever works may be necessary to control floods in the lower Mississippi.

Three other planks in the chamber's flood control platform are as follows:

That the Federal Government assume the whole responsibilit for locating, constructing and maintaining flood control works.

That there be adequate appropriation to insure efficient, continuous and economic work, the funds to be made available as needed.

That flood control be dealt with in legislation and administration on its own merits, separate and distinct from any other undertaking.

Vote on Committee Survey.

The vote was taken on the report of a special committee of the Chamber, composed of business men and engineers, which made a first hand study of the flood control problem during the summer. The committee visited the flooded areas and conferred with numerous State and Federal officials and other leaders in civic affairs. Its report was sent out 45 days ago to the 1500 constituent organizations of the Chamber. Accompanying the report was an argument in the negative on each of the Committee's recommendations, so that the voting organizations might have full opportunity to study all sides of the question.

The vote, according to the Chamber's announcement, was more than 3 to 1 in favor of the Committee's recommendations.

"The Chamber's Committee," said Pierson today, "did not attempt to develop any engineering plan of its own, but dealt solely with general principles which it believed should apply in consideration of a national policy of Mississippi flood control.

"The vote on this referendum shows the interest of the business man of the nation in this problem.

"Business men's organizations from every part of the country have now declared their belief that control of the lower Mississippi River is of such national importance that it should be undertaken by the Federal government. The nature of any practical project for this purpose is such that it will have to be carried out over a period of years. Therefore there will not be any great burden on the Treasury in any one year."

Members of Committee.

The members of the committee making the recommendations voted upon are:

Frederick A. Delano, chairman, of Washington, formerly president of the Wabash Railroad, formerly a member of the Federal Reserve Board; Robert P. Lamont, vice chairman, of Chicago, president of the American Steel Foundries; Arthur S. Bent, engineering contractor of Los Angeles; William Butterworth of Moline, Ill., president of Deere & Co., M. C. Couch, of Pine Bluff, Ark., president of the Arkansas Light & Power Co.; Jacob M. Dickinson, lawyer of Chicago, formerly Secretary of War; Robert R. Ellis of Memphis, president of the Hessig Ellis Drug Co.; Walker D. Hines of New York City, president of the Cotton Textile Institute; John G. Lonsdale of St. Louis, president of the National Bank of Commerce; Daniel W. Mead of Madison, Wis., professor of hydraulic and sanitary engineering, University of Wisconsin; John M. Parker of New Orleans, former Governor of Louisiana; former United States Senator LeRoy Percy of Greenville, Miss.; Matthew S. Sloan of Brooklyn, president of the Brooklyn Edison Co., and Alfred H. Stone of Dunleith, Miss.; vice president o fthe Staple Cotton Co-operative Association.

In addition to the regular crew, it was thought at the Navy Department that Lieut.-Commander W. F. Calaway, stationed here with the Navy Department's board of inspectors and survey, and Charles A. Ford, a civilian residing in Washington, also were on the S-4. Ford, chief draughtsman for the board, anod Callaway left here last Sunday to inspect the submarine S-8. They were to have done so Thursday, and were under orders to make the try-out trip on the S-4.

It was emphasized at the Navy Department that the records of the S-4 personnel here are not up to the minute and perhaps are not accurate in all details. Some men listed as members of the crew may not have been aboard today while others, not listed, may have been in the crew.

34-Year-Old Commander Son of Oklahoma Merchant.

By the Associated Press.

HENNESSEY, Ok., Dec. 17.—Lieutenant-Commander R. K. Jones, in command of the Submarine S-4, is the son of John Jones, drygoods merchant here.

Lieutenant-Commander Jones was born here in 1893 and entered the naval academy at Annapolis in 1912. He graduated near the top of his class in 1916 and was assigned to the submarine division for one year. He then went to the man-of-war division.

During the World War he served in the convoy service, after which he was again assigned to a battleship. A year ago he was reassigned to the submarine division and put in command of the reconditioned S-4.

CONVICT SAYING HE IS INNOCENT TO BE RELEASED

Henry Ronsiek, Convicted of $17,000 Bank Robbery, Will Be Freed After 3 Years.

Henry Ronsiek of Florissant, who claims he was wrongfully convicted of participation in the $17,000 robbery of the First National Bank at Highland, Ill., July 29, 1924, will be released in a few days from the Chester (Ill.) penitentiary, his sentence of 10 years to life having been commuted to three years—the time already served.

Six men committed the robbery. Ronsiek and two other men went on trial in November, 1924. The two others were acquitted on alibis which were to the effect that they were in jail at the time of the robbery. Ronsiek's alibi that he was in Florissant at the time of the robbery was discredited by the jury and he was convicted. One thing that doubtless weighed against Ronsiek was his failure to testify in his own defense.

Met Real Robber in Prison.

In the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Chester Ronsiek became acquainted with Arthur Edgar, serving time for a robbery at Waterloo. Edgar asserted he was one of the Highland bank robbers and he made affidavit that Ronsiek had no part in that crime.

Ronsiek had been identified as one of the robbers by Earl Malan and Florence Hoefele, cashier and bookkeeper, respectively, at the Highland bank. After they had viewed Ronsiek and Edgar together in prison, they noted a resemblance between the two men. At the request of Ronsiek's attorney, Paul A. Richards of St. Louis, the bank employes made affidavit that they were no longer certain in their identification of Ronsiek.

The movement to get Ronsiek out of prison started a month after his conviction. Final arguments were made more than a year ago, and the State Pardon Board had the case under consideration until yesterday, when it notified Attorney Richards a commutation had been granted.

Similar to Floyd Flood Case.

Ronsiek is 26 years old and a chauffeur. His case is similar to that of Floyd Flood, 28, a chauffeur. On information that Flood was an associate of Ronsiek, police arrested Flood a few days after Ronsiek was taken into custody. Flood was identified as one of seven men who robbed the First National Bank of Freeburg, Ill., Aug. 23, 1924, taking $10,558. At the trial in December of that year he offered an alibi that he was driving a taxicab in St. Louis, but he was convicted and sentenced to 10 years to life.

His attorney, Joseph McGlynn of East St. Louis, obtained affidavits from Ralph Southard and James Breen, jointly convicted, exonerating Flood of any connection with the bank robbery. Affidavits also were obtained from the bank employes, in which they said they probably were mistaken in their identification of Flood. In January, 1926, after he had served more than a year in prison, Flood was released by virtue of a complete pardon granted by Gov. Small.

and the relatives were informed that they would be advised as to further developments.

Coolidge Expresses Regret.

Secretary Wilbur notified President Coolidge of the disaster.

Mr. Coolidge expressed his regret, the Secretary said in a statement issued later, and his intense anxiety over the fate of the members of the crew, inquiring as to rescue methods and measures. Wilbur added that he told the President everything possible was being done to get the men out alive.

"If at the time of the collision, the Paulding, coast guard destroyer which struck the submersible, was making a speed of 18 knots, Wilbur declared, there was very little hope that anyone survived.

"We will, however, ascertain as soon as possible," he continued, "by sending divers down and mobilizing all means of raising the submarine whether anyone survived or not.

Wilbur's Statement.

"The rapidity of the rescue depends entirely on diving conditions weather conditions and the condition of the submarine. The pontoons we are sending will float about 700 tons. The submarine weighs approximately 900 tons. If any buoyance is left in the submarine it should not be hard to raise.

"The submarine apparently was operating on its own grounds, chosen purposely so as not to be within steamship lines. It should be understood that the test was not a casual experiment but a carefully planned movement in a carefully selected place. The Paulding reports that the submarine was submerged when struck."

Anxious to be sure that everything possible was done to relieve the plight of the submersible's crew, Secretary Wilbur remained at his desk until late in the night, in constant touch with the situation.

JUDGE SENTENCES MAN AND WIFE TO DEATH

American Woman Condemned in Canada With Husband for Murder.

VALLEY FIELD, Quebec, Dec. 17.—Ignoring the jury's recommendation of mercy, Justice Walsh today sentenced an American woman, Mrs. Doris McDonald, to death by hanging for the murder on July 17 of Adelard Bouchard, Lachine taxicab driver. The death sentence also was pronounced on George McDonald, the woman's husband, who was convicted with her. The verdict carried no recommendation of mercy for the husband.

McDonald and his wife were sentenced to be hanged March 23, 1928.

They were arrested in Denver, Colo., Aug. 23, and were extradited to face the murder charge in Canada after Canadian authorities had identified them as members of a party which had engaged Bouchard's taxicab to drive them from Lachine to the New York border.

Bouchard's body was found in a ditch with a bullet in the back the day after he had set out on the trip to the border.

F. L. Stout Left $10,000,000.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The late Frank L. Stout, lumber and railroad magnate, left an estate of $10,000,000, an inventory filed in probate court today, showed.

TAFT ASKS JURY TO SEND REMUS TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

bies. I don't blame Remus for being afraid.

"It has been testified that another time Remus was afraid was when Harry Truesda was o t get him. He came here and testified he was a gunman. You know better than that, ladies and gentlemen of the jury. Truesdale is just a petty thief. .. real gunman wouldn't come here and talk about it and get his pictures in the newspapers. I wouldn't want to meet a real gunman up a dark alley any more than anyone else, but I'd take my chance with Harry Truesdale.

"Now, let us consider the plea that Remus was insan Three alienists appointed by the Court have told you he was sane, and numerous lay witnesses have testified he was sane. George Connors, Remus' friend, who testified here, told you he was insane, yet remember this, two days after the shooting, before Remus was advised to be sane, Connors appeared before the grand jury and testified Remus was sane.

"The facts of the shooting as presented here by the State have not been contradicted by any testimony presented by the defense. George Remus' own confession as to the killing and his own story told to the alienists makes no claim of insanity. He said he formed the decision to kill his wife when he saw her leave the Alms Hotel, 5 minutes before the shooting. He told how he followed her for more than a mile and how he cornered her in Eden Park. He told how he grabbed her wrist and pulled her toward him and shot her at so close a range the powder burned her clothes and skin.

"After the shooting he remembered where he was and where he wanted to go. He asked to be driven to the Central Police Station to give himself up. Does that not indicate he knew what he had done and that he had done wrong? You have heard the testimony of police officers and alienists which shows he betrayed none of the symptoms of insanity.

"He remembered everything. He talked coherently. He did not go into a dead sleep. He denied he was insane. He said he would not make insanity his defense. He did not, until days later, when he was advised that insanity would be a good defense.

"Mr. Elston told you at the start of the case it would be shown Mrs. Remus stripped Remus of his fortune. He mentioned $394,000 as the sum she got. Where is it? Has there been any evidence of such a fortune?

Denies Robbery of Remus.

"Mr. Remus was successful at his chosen profession. He did make money. But there is no evidence to show Mrs. Remus took a fortune away from him. Remus has been pictured as penniless, without a dime. Yet the evidence has shown he owned any number of distilleries. True, the whisky has been taken out of them, but the real estate was worth something.

"The claim has been made that Mrs. Remus and the defendant loved each other until Franklin Dodge came on the scene. We have presented the testimony of Ruth Remus, Mrs. Felix and others to show that Remus one busted his wife's nose, that he treated her cruelly, that she often left the Atlanta penitentiary in tears. The claim also has been made that Mrs. Remus stripped the Remus house of furniture."

Here Taft read to the jury a number of letters from Remus to his wife in which Remus urged his wife to sell the house and its furnishings and instructed her as to an auction sale of furniture. He referred to "that rotten house" and "that colossal nightmare of a house" and "to hell with the property."

Taft took up the question of Franklin Dodge.

"There has been a lot of mud slung in this case about Franklin Dodge," he said. "No testimony has been produced by the defense to prove a single charge against him.

"Dodge has been under subpena by the defense. Why didn't they call him? The State did not produce him because there was nothing to which he could testify."

Other letters were read in which Remus told his wife to "look up Dodge" and confer with him.

Taft's explanation of the crime and Remus' motive for it was this:

"Remus had the big head. His wife had always done his bidding. She ran all over the country for him. He thought she was under his thumb. But she made up her mind to quit the life she was leading. She didn't want to be the wife of a felon and lawbreaker. She was tired of Remus' cruelty. She made up her mind to get a divorce.

Remus Feared Revelations.

"She had this right and a right to an equitable division of their property. The Government was after Remus' property. There were tax liens against it. He had concealed his assets from her and from the Government. She was going to call for a showdown. The divorce case was set for the morning of Oct. 6. Remus wanted to seal her lips. She knew too much about his business. The only way he knew to silence here was to murder her.

"It was a murder without mercy. It was as cold-blooded and dastardly a killing as was ever committed in the State of Ohio."

When it came Attorney Elson's turn, he referred to the "unfair tactics of the prosecution."

"The State said at the start of this trial it would prove that George Remus, George Connors, George Klug and Miss Blanche Watson formed a conspiracy to murder Imogene Remus," he declared. "The State has not produced a scintilla of evidence to prove such statements. Yet these decent, honorable people stand branded by the prosecutors as murderers.

"In an effort to prove there was a meeting of the conspirators at the Sinton Hotel the night before the killing, the State sought to besmirch a defense witness, Mr. Brock and his wife. The State sought to insinuate Mr. Brock wasn't married and we produced his wife to confront them with their scandalous tactics.

"When that fell down, they tried to prove murder against George Remus, alone. We say their case is weak and they know it. They have charged Remus with being a lawbreaker.

Holds Wife Culpable Too.

"Mr. Remus did violate the Volstead act. He did so because as a lawyer he thought it was full of holes and he saw a way to make some money.' He went into it to get away from the strain of his big law practice in Chicago. But, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, his wife went with him. She shared in the profits from his bootlegging. She lived in his home and knew about his whisky business. She professed an affection for him and said not a word about divorce to him until a few days before she brought suit. They loved each other until that dirty rat, Franklin Dodge, appeared.

"Why didn't the State put Dodge on the stand? The State alleges we have not proved Mrs. Remus got a fortune from Remus. We have shown Remus turned over to her full power of attorney. We have shown that she bought three automobiles and lived luxuriously around the country for two years while Remus was in prison. We have shown that when Remus left Atlanta he had only the $10 the Government gives each discharged prisoner. And, ladies and gentlemen, we have shown Remus bought food for a prisoner's child with that $10."

Says Remus Is Insane.

"Our witnesses have testified that Remus was insane. Judge Oppenheimer, John T. Rogers and Paul Anderson of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and other reputable witnesses have given you their honest opinion. As to the events on the day of the killing I call your attention to the fact that Remus was examined by Dr. Kendig, alienist of the Probate Court.

"Why didn't the State produce him as a witness? Why?"

Assistant Prosecutor Basler broke in with, "We'll put him on now."

"Don't pull that stuff," said Elston, hurrying on with his speech; "you had your chance."

He then devoted one hour to emphasis of what a big-hearted man Remus was and how he loved his wife and how she drove him mad with her betrayals and cruelties.

Each Feared to Use Dodge.

Neither side told the jury that Dodge was not called as a witness because each side feared what the other might get out of him. Dr. Kendig was not called because the State wished to confine its expert testimony to alienists appointed by the Court, feeling they would have more weight with the jury.

There was much bickering back and forth over the failure of each side to call such and such a witness and many triumphant "ah's" and significant looks at the jury. The jurors got restless along about supper time and gave Elston divided attention with the clock.

With the case almost certain to reach the jury Monday afternoon, speculation is rife here as to the verdict. The correspondent made a poll of newspaper men attending the trial, lawyers and other spectators in the corridors, etc. The almost universal belief is that the jury will hang up hopelessly.

Remus' friends expect an acquittal in short order. Nobody appears to expect a conviction. Cincinnati citizens are chary of expressing belief in miracles.

SENATE CONFIRMS PROMOTION OF ROBERT E. OLDS

Assistant Secretary of State Who Sent Out Story of Mexican Bolsheviks Elevated.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Senate, in executive session and without a record vote, this afternoon confirmed the apointment of Robert E. Olds as Under-Secretary of State, by President Coolidge. He was previously an Assistant Secretary of State. The promotion makes him second in authority to Secretary of State Kellogg, whose former law partner he is.

Olds was the official who on Nov. 16 of last year called representatives of three great national press associations to his office, and asked them to send out a story accusing the Mexican Government of circulating bolshevist propaganda in Central America, for the purpose of undermining American control of the Panama Canal.

In asking that this story be wired to newspaper throughout the country, Olds refused to take the responsibility for it, or to allow the State Department to be revealed as its source. He wanted the story sent out, bue he was emphatic that neither his name nor the name of the State Department must be linked with it. He asked the correspondents to assume the responsibility as their own.

Exposed by Post-Dispatch.

When they pointed out that they knew nothing whatever of the facts and had no evidence of their own to support the story, he still insisted that they take his word for the truth of it, but not to give him as the authority. One of the associations fell in with his purpose. The Associated Press sent out the story.

The entire incident was exposed in the Post-Dispatch on Nov. 28, about 10 days later, as the result of an investigation into the source of the extraordinary story which appeared on the authority of the Associated Press. The exposure evoked a nation-wide protest, especially from the press, which felt that an improper attempt had been made to "use" it.

Senators Wheeler, La Follette and others assailed Olds on the floor of the Senate, and Senator Norris introduced a resolution calling for an inquiry by the Foreign Relations Committee. Simultaneously, the House of Representatives called upon Secretary Kellogg for an explanation, to which he replied with a "diplomatic denial" that the occurrence had ever taken place.

The Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, after debating the matter behind closed doors for several weeks, eventually decided not to make an investigation, for the unusual reason, given by one of the majority, that such an investigation would almost certainly result in further discrediting the State Department, thus rendering the conduct of foreign relations even more difficult.

First Given Recess Appointment.

It was during the committee's discussions that Secretary Kellogg appeared and delivered his celebrated "Bolshevik memorandum," which purported to show Bolshevik activities on the part of Mexico, but which proved, upon examination, to consist chiefly of state newspaper clippings from Chicago, Moscow and other parts of the world.

Presently the furore died down and when Under-Secretary of State Joseph Grew was made Ambassador to Turkey last summer, President Coolidge gave Olds a recess appointment to the post.

The appointment, together with a long list of others, was recently sent to the Senate for confirmation.

It appeared tonight that in the heat of the debate over the confirmation of Dwight Morrow as Ambassador to Mexico, the Olds confirmation slipped through without attracting any notice. This is not without ironical significance. The chief task now before Morrow is to restore the good relations which Olds did so much to destroy. In his attempt, Olds afterward received the full assistance of the Hearst newspapers, some of the consequences of which are now being witnessed. In undoing what Olds did, however, Morrow also has assistance. He has Lindbergh.

SKIPPER WHO SAVED NINE DENIED PARDON

Liquor Ship Came Near Land to Save Crew in Distress and Was Seized.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 17.—Capt. Robert Pamphlet, skipper of the Canadian liquor schooner Pescawha, who fell into the hands of United States authorities after his vessel had rescued the crew of a wrecked steamer off the Washington coast in 1925, was denied probation in Federal Court here today.

Federal Judge R. S. Bean commended the Canadian Captain for his rescue work, but declared his activities as a rum runner were a challenge to the laws of the United States and the Court could not interfere with his sentence of two years in Federal prison on a charge of rum smuggling.

Clemency, Judge Bean said, should come from the executive rather than the courts.

Capt. Pamphlet's attorney indicated that President Coolidge would be appealed to for clemency. More than 30,000 persons have signed petitions for a pardon, the attorney said.

At the District Attorney's office, it was said Capt. Pamphlet and his co-defendants, who also were denied robation, would have to begin serving their sentences at McNeil Island prison before any executive action could be invoked.

Capt. Pamphlet contends the capture of his vessel, laden with 1075 cases of liquor, was effected only because he followed the code of the sea in going to the rescue of the wrecked steamer Caoba.

The rescue brought the Pescawha near shore, where it was subject to seizure, and the ship fell prey to the customs service. Nine members of the Caoba crew were saved by the liquor schooner.

FIVE MORE ADDED TO LIST FOR ST. LOUIS 'WHO'S WHO'

Rolla Wells, E. A. Green, W. J. G. Neun, Harry Lesser and Comptroller Nolte.

Five St. Louisans have been added by the Board of Review to the list of personages for "Who's Who in St. Louis," the proposed publication of the Civic Union of St. Louis. They are: Rolla Wells, former Mayor and former receiver for the United Railways Co.; Ernest A. Green, president of the Missouri Bar Association; Walter Board of Aldermen; Harry Lesser, president of the Y. M. H. A., and Comptroller Nolte. Prior to their selection, the board had named Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Secretary of War Davis, Senator Hawes and Mayor Miller for the book.

The main rule governing selection of names, as enunciated by the Civic Union yesterday, is as follows: "Standing and achievement. Those who are aggressive in civil life, prominent in profession or business, or who by reason of their standing, service or accomplishments are entitled to recognition in a list of most prominent St. Louisans."

OFFICER OF POWER COMPANY HEADS U. S. COMMISSION

Col. William Kelly, Who Reported Against Reservoirs as Flood Plan, Admits Connection.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The current hearing of the House Flood Control Committee has developed interesting fact that Col. William Kelly, chairman of the Mississippi River Reservoir Commission, who brought in a report recommending against the use of reservoirs for flood control, is on the payroll of the Buffalo, Niagara & Eastern Power Co.

This company is one of the corporations composing the National Utilities Association, which has established a powerful and well-financed lobby to fight all measures looking to Government ownership and operation of waterpower projects. The lobby opposes the building of reservoirs by the Government as part of a flood control program.

Kelly told the Committee that he was receiving $3000 a year from the Government, the half pay of a Colonel on leave of absence. He admitted he was also on the payroll of the Buffalo, Niagara & Eastern Power Co. as its vice president, but maintained that connection had not influenced his report against the reservoir proposal. Kelly declined to give his compensation from the power company.

Members of the Flood Control Committee sharply criticised Major General Edgar Jadwin, Chief of Army Engineers, for having appointed Kelly as Chairman of the Reservoir Commission. Both Representatives Philip D. Swing (Rep.) of California and Representative Willis G. Sears (Rep.) of Nebraska challenged the statement of Kelly that he was not prejudiced against reservoirs when he began his survey last June.

Says Salary Is $25,000.

"I charge," said Swing, "that Kelly is receiving $25,000 a year from the power company and this charge has not been refuted."

Major-General Jadwin was not in Washington today. His assistant, Brigadier-General Herbert Deakyne, said the Engineer's office knew Kelly was employed when he was appointed Chairman of the Commission.

"Col. Kelly was selected because of his experience and knowledge," Deakyne declared. "We felt confident that his employment by a power company would not influence his report on the reservoir program."

Kelly testified before the committee as chairman of the Reservoir Commission and not as a power company official. He said his survey of the Mississippi River and its tributaries led him to report that reservoirs would not be an economic means for flood control and prevention at the present time.

Early in the hearing yesterday, Swing became interested in Kelly's outside employment. The California Representative is interested in the Boulder Canyon dam project, which the power interests are opposing.

After he had elicited from Kelly that he was vice president of the Niagara company, and had been employed a year previous by the National Electric Light Association, all the time on leave of absence from the army, Swing demanded if the power companies were not opposed to the building of reservoirs by the Government.

Denies Knowing of Plan.

Kelly replied he knew nothing about the power companies' attitude towards reservoirs. Swing then asked if he had not attended the power convention at Atlantic City, where the plan was laid to use the joint committee of the National Utilities Association as a gigantic lobby at Washington. Kelly answered he had been at the convention but had heard nothing about reservoirs.

"Do you consider yourself a Government official lent to the power companies or a power company official loaned to the Government?" Swing demanded.

"I don't think I should be required to answer that question," Kelly replied.

"Are you on the payroll of both now?" Swing continued.

Chairman Frank Reid told Kelly he did not have to answer the question but the committee would like to hear the truth.

"I am on the payroll of the power company, too," Kelly answered.

"And were you at the time of making this report?" "Yes, sir," Kelly testified.

"What is your pay from the power company?" Swing wanted to know. "I don't think I need answer that question," the Colonel replied.

Tried to Quit Army.

Kelly said he had been occupied with non-military work since 1925, when he became a director of engineering of the National Electric Light Association. He had been in the army since 1899, when he was commissioned from West Point. He said he had asked to be retired in 1925, but was not eligible under the 30-year rule. He testified he had offered his resignation but that this was not accepted and he was given leave of absence and assigned to the St. Lawrence Waterways Board (in which the power companies were also interested). This gave him time to attend to his outside work.

He testified he was with the Electric Light Association about a year, and that a month had elapsed before he joined the power company.

It is not unusual for a ranking officer of the army to be given leave of absence to take up outside employment, although the request is often refused. In this way, the officer retains his retirement privileges. It is most unusual, however, for the War Department to ask an officer for an unprejudiced report when the officer is associated with a group that has its own special interests.

Swing was bitter in his criticism of Jadwin for appointing Kelly to the chairmanship.

"The appointment was anything but proper," Swing declared. "It was very unfortunate to have appointed a ranking power official chairman of a Reservoir Commission. He admitted he was on the payroll of the power company at the time he made the report. I am confidentially informed and I charge that he receives a salary of $25,000 a year, almost 10 times the amount he receives from the Government. This charge has not been refuted.

"The power companies throughout the country are exerting tremendous efforts to influence the Government policy on the Colorado and Mississippi Rivers. I already have read into the record statements from power company officers and one army officer to show how the power companies are trying to keep the Government from building reservoirs so the power companies can develop them in their own time

"The unfavorable report of the Reservoir Commission therefore cannot have very much weight with the committee in deciding this question. Reservoirs will be built in the future, will exert a very substantial influence in the control of floods on the Mississippi River and its tributaries. If the program could be adopted, it would be a great contribution to material prosperity. It would change a national menace into an instrument of national prosperity."

ADMITS HE KILLED ITALIAN BONDSMAN

Vincenzo Moncado, Sought by Police Since Nov. 5, Found Hiding in Rooming House.

In hiding for fear that the death of Vincent Vitale, professional bondsman, would be avenged by his relatives, Vincenzo Moncado, grocer, who has been sought for the slaying of Vitale Nov. 5, was found last night by police of the Newstead avenue district in rooming house at 4628A Delmar boulevard The police were responding to a report of trouble at that address but proved to be unfounded.

Moncado, police said, admitted shooting Vitale in a struggle in the latter's home, 1319 Blair avenue. He accused Vitale's brother, Nick, of breaking up his home by taking the side of Moncado's wife in family quarrels and harboring her when she fled from him.

The Delmar boulevard rooming house was one of several he had lived in the past month and a half while hiding from relatives and police.

Moncado was placed in the police holdover for investigation. He conducted a grocery store at 1305 Carr stret.

A few minutes before the shooting of Vitale, the afternoon of Nov. 5, police got a call that Moncado was beating his wife. When they reached his home, he had disappeared. A moment later they got a report of the shooting in Vitale's home.

OFFERING SHARES IN FIRM TO AID TORNADO VICTIMS

Proposed Reconstruction Corporation Will Make 6 Per Cent Loans Without Commission.

Subscriptions are being taken for stock in the proposed St. Louis Reconstruction Corporation, a projected agency where tornado sufferers may get loans at low interest rates to augment other means in reconstruction of their homes.

It is proposed to have a capital stock of $250,000 and to operate the corporation without profit. It is to be separate from any other relief agency, such as the Red Cross, but its backers expect it to utilize the results of Red Cross investigations in making loans.

Money will be lent on deeds of trust at 6 per cent interest annually. No commission will be charged. The corporation will operate so that, for example, a householder who has $1000 insurance and $1000 in Red Cross relief funds may borrow an additional $2000 to complete a $400 rebuilding program.

All proposed loans will be scrutinized by a committee consisting of three real estate operators and construction executives. Bert H. Lang, vice president of the First National Bank and director of the tornado relief work, has been named chairman of the executive committee of the proposed corporation.

Other members are J. Lawrence Mauran, C. H. McMillan, Thomas Bennett, Dan W. Jones, Lawrence Mahan, William R. Jones and W. L. Hemingway.

THREE BIRGER MEN FREED BY JURY OF KILLING WORSHAM

Verdict Acquitting Harvey Dungy, Fred Thomasson and Joe Booher Returned in 3 1-2 Hours.

STATE HAD SOUGHT DEATH PENALTIES

Victim Was Kidnaped in September, 1926, and Killed on Lonely Road by Machine Gun Fire.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Dec. 17.—Williamson County authorities hit a snag in their efforts to complete the rout of the Birger gang tonight when a jury acquitted three members of the now scattered gang who were charged with murder of their fellow gangster, Lyle Worsham.

On the second ballot, the jury decided Harvey Dungy, Fred Thomasson and Joe Booher were not guilty. The verdict came in at 9:30 o'clock. The jurors received the case at 6 'clock after State's Attorney Arlie Boswell had demanded hanging or acquittal. On the first ballot the jury stood 9 to 3 for acquittal.

Almost a year ago to a day Sheriff Coleman, new in office, began the roundup of the Birger clan by arresting a group of Charlie Birger's younger followers in a Herrin resort. In the first trial growing out of the gang murders during Birger's reign in Williamson County, Rado Millich and Eural Gowan were convicted of murder here last June and Millich paid with his life. Then Birger himself was convicted of murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City at Benton. This was the third trial of Birger gangsters for murder, and the acquittal was the first.

Dungy to Return to Prison.

The acquittal, however, did not clear the slate for the trio. Dungy must go back to the penitentiary to finish serving a sentence of from 10 years to life for robbery. Thomasson and Booher also may be tried here for robbery and on other charges, Boswell indicated.

Thomasson's acquittal came on his 24th birthday.

The verdict was a surprise to the crowd that gathered quickly in the courtroom on word that the jury had reached a verdict. The jurors apparently believed the alibis offered by the defense and were impressed by testimony that the body supposed to have been Worsham's was so badly burned that identification could not have been positive.

Bert H. Scobey, Marion undertaker, testified for the defense that in his opinion the charred body, found in a burned barn, was that of a woman.

Boswell, in his final argument, asked the jurors to "share with me and with Sheriff Ora Coleman the responsibility for cleaning up our county."

Worsham Taken for Ride.

Reviewing the evidence of the State which showed that Worsham was kidnaped and taken for a ride to the Birger cabin and then to some woods near Carterville the night of Sept. 17, 1926, where he was to have a chance to "run for his life" but was shot dead by machine gun fire before he could run and his body burned, Boswell asked that the defendants be given a fair trial, "Something they ddin't give Lyle Worsham."

Boswell's plea followed three pleas by defense attorneys, all of whom had been appointed by the Court to defend the penniless youths. The defense alleged that Birger, the gang leader, now under death sentence at Benton, was the real murderer and that the evidence against the three defendants had been "framed, not by the officers, but by others" to get revenge.

Attorney John Reid compared Birger to Pontius Pilate. He ridiculed the testimony of State witnesses that Birger had tried to prevent the killing.

"Poor, weak Charlie," he said, "had to give this boy (Dungy) to the mob that was clamoring for blood."

Birger's gang of gunmen was termed a "band of anarchists," by Assostant State's Attorney C. Ray Smith.

He termed Booher a "ferret," Thomasson a "wolf," and Dungy a "cur," who shot Worsham down as he ran down the road in the glare of automobile lights.

HARRY GUNN ACCUSED OF ISSUING BAD CHECKS

Harry Gunn, 28 years old, was arrested yesterday on charges of issuing checks, in payment for merchandise, on banks where he had no funds, the checks amounting to $643. He lived at the Windsor Hotel, 4209 Lindell boulevard, until he removed a few days ago to the Claridge. He is unmarried, and is the son of Felix E. Gunn, Deputy City Comptroller.

Gunn admitted, at Police Headquarters, that he wrote the checks, which were signed with his own name. As most of the merchandise obtained by him was recovered, he might avoid prosecution in the check cases, but the Windsor Hotel has also charged him with leaving a bill of $95 unpaid on his departure.

He said his actions resulted from a five days' spree, and admitted past irregularities of the same sort in Los Angeles and Miami, Fla., where charges are pending against him. He said his father had got him out of past scrapes, but he does not know whether he will get further help from him.

Son of W. R. Hearst Weds.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—John Randolph Hearst, son of William Randolph Hearst, publisher, and Miss Dorothy Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Hart of Los Angeles, Cal., were married today. Young Hearst will resume his studies at Ogelthorpe University, Atlanta, Ga., after a wedding trip to Cuba.

SUITS IN $1,500,000 ESTATE FIGHT ARGUED

Cases Affecting Heirs of Alexander H. Handlan Taken Under Advisement.

The suit brought by Mrs. Kathryn H. Trautz to void the $1,500,000 trust created in the will of her father, Alexander H. Handlan, manufacturer of railway supplies and owner of Handlan's Park, and suits brought by two of Mrs. Trautz's sisters, were taken under advisement yesterday by Circuit Judge Hartman after hearing arguments of counsel.

Mrs. Trautz, one of four daughters, is alone seeking to break the will. Her three sisters were to receive one-seventh of the estate, but Mrs. Trautz was cut off with $1000 in her late father's will and her one-seventh share is to go to her daughter, Kathryn, a minor. She now contends that the trust created by the will violates the rules against perpetuities.

She seeks to have the trust voided and the estate divided among "the rightful heirs," the $1,000,000 or more of real estate being sold by a special commission. If she wins her case she would be left one-seventh of the estate and her daughter would receive nothing, on the legal assumption that Handlan left no will.

Mrs. Lillian H. Lemp and Mrs. Vella Bisbee, while not suing to void the trust, are seeking the removal of their three brothers—Eugene W., Alex H. and Edward R. Handlan, from the trusteeship of the estate, alleging they failed to sell real estate when it was advantageous to do so. They seek also a ruling from the court that the three brothers shall pay at the rate of $200 a share for 1550 shares of stock of the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., which their father gave them in 1917, but of which he kept control until his death, in 1921.

INDIANAPOLIS AND CINCINNATI NOW ON AIR MAIL ROUTE

Seven Lines Are Operating Out of Chicago—Buffalo and Cleveland Also Joined.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The multiplying tentacles of the Air Mail service, reaching out from Chicago, today gathered in Cincinnati and Indianapolis. With the opening of service on the route to Cincinnati, the number of lines out of Chicago increased to seven, operating over six airways. Homer Rader was at the controls of the first ship over the Cincinati branch.

The Chicago - Indianapolis - Cincinnati schedule calls for daily departures from here at 6 a. m., arrival at Indianapolis at 7:55, and Cincinnati, 8 o'clock. The northbound planes are due to leave the Ohio city at 2:45 p. m. Eastern standard time, arrive at Indianapolis, 2:45, Central Standard time, and Chicago, 4:45.

The Cincinnati Air Mail and Passenger Co., the operating branch of the Embry-Riddl company, holds the Cincinnati contract. Next spring the concern intends installing passenger-carrying ships.

Buffalo was indirectly connected with Chicago today with the opening of service on a line to Cleveland.

$6000 PAYROLL HOLDUP

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 17.—A satchel holding $6000 in payroll money was being taken from the Liberty National Bank to the Logan Jones Dry Goods Co. at 10:45 o'clock today by J. D. Lowman, receiving clerk at the store, and E. P. Spitze, messenger. Both carried revolvers.

In front of 811 Delaware street three robbers demanded the satchel. Lowman made a move for his revolver, and one robber shot twice, hitting Spitze on the left chest and Lowman on the left wrist. Another robber seized the satchel, and when Lowman still clung to it, knocked him down with his fist. The robbers escaped.

CHRISTMAS FE

POST-DISPATCH COMM PLANS TO CARE FOR CROWD; MORE FUNDS

Program to Follow Distribution Coliseum, Dec. 26—To Send B 5000 Needy Families.

A LITTLE rhyme of childhood—
"Christmas comes but once a year, ut when it comes it brings good cheer"—
the thought that is actuating ousands of persons in St. Louis this season in their effort to ing some measure of good cheer d happiness to the many sad arts who except for this effort ould have a lean and lonely hristmas.

With the Post-Dispatch Christas Festival Committee as leader, undreds of men and women are orking hard to provide a real hristmas dinner for many poor omes, and to give joy to thounds of childish hearts with a hristmas party, Santa Claus, a e, candy, toys and games at the liseum Dec. 26. Any other thounds are providing the means for festival by their contributions the fund that will pay the bills. This year's festival is the largest r, according to members of the mmittee. There will be basts of Christmas dinner distibuted to 5000 needy families, d more than 12,000 children will entertained at the Christmas rty at the Coliseum Monday rning, Dec. 26, the day after hristmas. More children might entertained if there were larger space in the Coliseum.

Try to Make More Room.

The thought that any child is ssed because of lack of space is very disturbing one to all the embers of the committee. Those embers who have direct charge of y part of the hall arrangements e contriving all sorts of ways to tretch" the available space so as get a few more children in witht danger or discomfort to any of em.

That there is a very widespread d complete faith in the mystery Santa Claus and his miraculous wers is being exemplified in evy mail received by members of e Post-Dispatch committee. Chilen write that they live in rear ements and then ask for elec trains "like that in the show indow." Or they say that their rents are dead and that Santa aus has forgotten them for the st year or two, but they believe was because they were living th relatives or friends and he uldn't find their new home. Or ey tell of being crippled and erefore not able to get to the ristmas party at the Coliseum less Santa Claus comes for them big bus.

All the letters breathe such sime and absolute faith in the ability the kindly old patron saint of Yuletide to accomplish the imsible that they stir the hearts of readers profoundly.

To Justify Childish Faith.

Much of this faith is to be jused, the committee promises. No ctric trains will be given away the committee, but every child l have several toys and some er gifts. There will be balls, dy, horns, books, caps and mufrs for the boys, and dolls, candy, rns, books, caps and snufflers the girls. Every effort will be de to distribute the books with e regard to the age of the child th reference to the contents of books.

Robert D. Corlett is chairman d George Menkel is vice chairof the committee which is ing the gifts. They have the ppy task of distributing the gifts the children as they enter the iseum.

The little crippled children who nnot get to the Coliseum witht assistance also will be taken re of by kind-hearted grown-. A committee of men and men will provide cars for this rpose has ben organized by Mrs. ph Magidson. Nearly 300 litcrippled children are on the to have a special section of boxes set apart for them.

City Park Commissioner Fred Pape is chairman of the comtee to provide the entertainat the Coliseum. He and Cunliff will arrange the and other decorations in the arena where the Christmas will be given. About 1000 ground children will present play under the direction of en W. Tapperson, recreation tion of the public playgrounds.

Rehearse for Christmas Play.

The young actors are busily reing every day after school for big event and expect to be letperfect when the great occaarrives. All the entertainers ept three will be juveniles. The eptions are three local singers, n as the "Radio Trio," who present Christmas songs and lar music for the edification small guests between the

CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL TO BRING GOOD CHEER TO UNFORTUNATE CHILDREN

POST-DISPATCH COMMITTEE PLANS TO CARE FOR RECORD CROWD; MORE FUNDS NEEDED

Program to Follow Distribution of Gifts at Coliseum, Dec. 26—To Send Baskets to 5000 Needy Families.

A LITTLE rhyme of childhood—

"Christmas comes but once a year,
But when it comes it brings good cheer"— is the thought that is actuating thousands of persons in St. Louis at this season in their effort to bring some measure of good cheer and happiness to the many sad hearts who except for this effort would have a lean and lonely Christmas.

With the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Committee as leader, hundreds of men and women are working hard to provide a real Christmas dinner for many poor homes, and to give joy to thousands of childish hearts with a Christmas party, Santa Claus, a tree, candy, toys and games at the Coliseum Dec. 26. Any other thousands are providing the means for this festival by their contributions to the fund that will pay the bills.

This year's festival is the largest ever, according to members of the committee. There will be baskets of Christmas dinner distributed to 5000 needy families, and more than 12,000 children will be entertained at the Christmas party at the Coliseum Monday morning, Dec. 26, the day after Christmas. More children might be entertained if there were larger space in the Coliseum.

Try to Make More Room.

The thought that any child is missed because of lack of space is a very disturbing one to all the members of the committee. Those members who have direct charge of any part of the hall arrangements are contriving all sorts of ways to "stretch" the available space so as to get a few more children in without danger or discomfort to any of them.

That there is a very widespread and complete faith in the mystery of Santa Claus and his miraculous powers is being exemplified in every mail received by members of the Post-Dispatch committee. Children write that they live in rear tenements and then ask for electric trains "like that in the show window." Or they say that their parents are dead and that Santa Claus has forgotten them for the last year or two, but they believe it was because they were living with relatives or friends and he couldn't find their new home. Or they tell of being crippled and therefore not able to get to the Christmas party at the Coliseum unless Santa Claus comes for them in a big bus.

All the letters breathe such simple and absolute faith in the ability of the kindly old patron saint of the Yuletide to accomplish the impossible that they stir the hearts of the readers profoundly.

To Justify Childish Faith.

Much of this faith is to be justified, the committee promises. No electric trains will be given away by the committee, but every child will have several toys and some other gifts. There will be balls, candy, horns, books, caps and mufflers for the boys, and dolls, candy, horns, books, caps and mufflers for the girls. Every effort will be made to distribute the books with due regard to the age of the child with reference to the contents of the books.

Robert D. Corlett is chairman and George Menkel is vice chairman of the committee which is buying the gifts. They have the happy task of distributing the gifts to the children as they enter the Coliseum.

The little crippled children who cannot get to the Coliseum without assistance also will be taken care of by kind-hearted grownups. A committee of men and women will provide cars for this purpose has ben organized by Mrs. Joseph Magidson. Nearly 300 little crippled children are on the list to have a special section of boxes set apart for them.

City Park Commissioner Fred W. Pape is chairman of the committee to provide the entertainment at the Coliseum. He and [illegible] Cunliff will arrange the [illegible] and other decorations in the arena where the Christmas [illegible] will be given. About 1000 playground children will present a play under the direction of Reuben W. Tapperson, recreation director of the public playgrounds.

Rehearse for Christmas Play.

The young actors are busily rehearsing every day after school for the big event and expect to be letter perfect when the great occasion arrives. All the entertainers but three will be juveniles. The exceptions are three local singers, known as the "Radio Trio," who will present Christmas songs and popular music for the edification of the small guests between the acts of the play. Members of the trio are Steve Cady, William Teasdale and Arthur Benda.

Tomorrow the Bell Telephone Co. will send its truck and crew of men down into the Ozarks to bring the Christmas trees for the Coliseum. There will be one immense tree which will be THE Christmas tree and which will form the center around which the play of te day is to revolve. Numerous smaller trees to be part of the decorations also will be in the load, which the Bell company says is one of the largest lot of Christmas trees that company ever has planned to haul into St. Louis to assist the city in its plans for a Merry Christmas.

Decorating the Coliseum and equipping it for the Christmas party will begin early Saturday morning and everything will be in place when the children arrive Monday morning, Dec. 26. Although the program will not begin until 10 o'clock, arrangements will be made to open the doors at 7:30 a. m. so the early arrivals can be admitted and the distribution of toys can be completed before the play begins.

Oscar Stifel, who for many years has been chairman of the Door Committee, again is serving in that capacity, and Henry J. Bube, the veteran chairman of the Hall Committee, has assumed that duty for another year. Each will have a corps of competent assistants and they, with the city Police and Fire Departments under the personal direction of their respective Chiefs, will take all possible precautions for the safety and comfort of the small army of youngsters, many of whom will, if they follow the habits of previous years, reach the Coliseum shortly after daybreak in their eagerness to be on time for the party.

Free Ride to Festival.

The St. Louis Public Service Co. has arranged to transport the children to and from the Coliseum free of charge, and special tickets, good for the trips and for admission to the Coliseum, will be distributed Saturday afternoon at four of the City's public playgrounds. Those for white children will be given out at the Soulard Bath House, Seventh and Soulard streets; Mullanphy Community Center, Eleventh and Mullanphy streets; Public Bath House No. 1, Twenty-third and O'Fallon streets. Tickets for the Negro children will be distributed at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A., 2838 Pine street. Distribution at all locations will be between 2 and 4 o'clock Saturday, Dec. 24.

A special committee of Negro men and women who will take charge of the distribution of baskets and tickets to the families and the children of their own race is headed by Prof. Frank L. Williams, principal of Sumner High School. Prof. Williams will supervise giving out the Coliseum tickets at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A. Members of his committee are:

Money to finance this great festival is coming in, but slowly, and a great deal more than the amount now on hand will be necessary to pay all the bills incurred by the committee. A total of approximately $20,000 will be required this year, it is estimated by the finance committee of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association. The amount collected thus far is $3144.21.

George S. Johns, editor of the Post-Dispatch, who is the originator of the Christmas Festival Committee and one of its most enthusiastic workers, will make a short radio talk from station KSD tomorrow night at 7:15 o'clock to tell the people of the city something about the efforts of the Committee to brighten sad lives and bring gladness to heavy hearts of those of the city's residents who, save for the Committee, would have nothing to remind them of this Christmas season of cheer and good will.

DENIES CHARGES AGAINST MISSOURI INSURANCE FIRMS

Robert E. Daly, Actuary of State Department, Declares There Have Been No Interlocking Loans.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 17.—Denial that there had been any irregular interlocking collateral trust loans between insurance companies in Missouri, or that the Missouri Insurance Department had blocked any examinations of insurance companies, was made today by Robert E. Daly, Actuary of the Missouri Department, in answer to charges made recently by Charles E. Detrick, Insurance Commissioner of California.

Daly asserted Detrick admitted he had been misinformed concerning conditions in Missouri, and declared Detrick had apologized for his criticism of the Missouri department.

This answer to Detrick's charges, which were made on Dec. 6 at the national convention of Insurance Commissioners in New York, was somewhat belated, due to Daly just returning to Jefferson City from the convention.

Referred to Missouri.

"Referring to the paper read by Commissioner Detrick at the Insurance Commissioners' meeting in New York," said Daly in a prepared statement, "it is sufficient for me to say that Mr. Detrick was wholly misinformed as to the matters referred to by him. He publicly admitted this to me in the presence of witnesses and apologized for the criticism he had made.

"As to the action of the commissioners' convention, Mr. Detrick's paper was referred to the Committee on Examinations and that committee by unanimous vote refused to give it consideration and left the entire matter to the Missouri department. It goes without saying that this department will continue the policy of keeping all Missouri insurance companies within the strict letter of the law, to the end that all policy holders may be properly protected."

What Detrick Charged.

Detrick charged there were more than $3,000,000 in interlocking loans between insurance companies in St. Louis, as of Dec. 31, 1926, and asserted the Missouri department had blocked "real examinations." He asserted he would order examinations by his department of the International Life Insurance Co. and the Continental Life Insurance Co., both of St. Louis, as of Dec. 3 last, and would ask every state insurance commissioner to participate.

State Insurance Superintendent Ben C. Hyde of Kansas City has been ill for several months and has not been in touch with affairs of the Missouri department.

WOMAN AND 4 MEN HELD FOR ROBBERY

Two Admit Holding Up East St. Louis Filling Station Twice in Month.

Four men and a woman were charged in warrants with highway robbery at East St. Louis yesterday as members of a gang which in the last three months has infested the highways between East St. Louis, Collinsville and Granite City.

The woman, Mrs. Wilma Pinson of Collinsville, 27 years old, admitted, according to St. Clair County deputies, that she and two of the men arrested had held up Clarence Williams, attendant of a filling station, at Thirty-first street and the Collinsville road, Oct. 30, and robbed the register of $55.

Mrs. Pinson, who has coarse features and short blond hair, said she wore men's clothes and cap and flourished a revolver during the holdup. She is also charged in warrants with participating in the holdup of a roadhouse near Cahokia Creek and the Granite City road, in which a woman dressed as a man participated, and with stripping an automobile in Collinsville.

John Uga, 22, of Collinsville, an associate, admitted robbing the same filling station on Nov. 27 of $78, when another attendant was in charge. Mrs. Pinson's husband, Floyd, 28 years old, and Mike Pilch, 23, of Fairmont City, are charged with aiding Mrs. Pinson.

All were released on bond except Mrs. Pinson, whose bonds amounted to $31,000. She is being held in the county jail at Belleville.

1078 Bushels Potatoes From Acre.

STOCKTON, Cal., Dec. 17.—A new world record for potato production is claimed here. An acre of British queen potatoes, dug on the Frederich H. Rindge Delta tract just west of this city, yielded 64,707 pounds, (1078 bushels), the State Department of Agriculture announced. The former record of 62,293 was held by Zuckerman Brothers, also Stockton Delta farmers.

WOMAN HURT BY AUTO DIES

Mrs. Macie Rea, 40 years old, of Eldon, Mo., died yesterday afternoon at Missouri Baptist Hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near her home Oct. 15.

She was brought to the hospital on that date by her husband, Willard Rea. The woman was suffering from a fractured skull. An inquest will be held Monday.

Paris Beggars' Income.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Five thousand beggars in the streets of Paris, it is estimated, have 18,000,000 francs dropped in their tin cups each year. These figures should be multiplied by four for France, says Lefebure of the Paris Municipal Council. He is trying to get Parliament to take the beggars off the streets and put them to work in special institutions, as is now done in Belgium.

Breadon Hears of Texas Club's Plans After Purchase — Lu Blue Glad to Play for Howley.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Frank Gibson, purchased by the Cardinals, may be returned to Boston, so that he may be sent to San Antonio as a manager, President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Nationals told the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

"We bought Gibson to protect us in case Bob O'Farrell does not return to his best form," Breadon said. "We paid more than the waiver price and we consider it a wise move to obtain him, but now we are told that he was wanted as a manager at San Antonio. Naturally, he is eager to take the managerial position and I am thinking seriously of asking the Braves if they want to take him back and deal direct with San Antonio."

Breaden said that he was not even approached on the possibility of a trade for Rhem or Bell during the major league meetings. He said he previously had let it be known that there were only five pitchers whom he would consider as trading material in a deal for Rhem and his statement certainly stopped the rival magnates. The Cardinal owner believes that Rhem will have a better year in 1928 and he is confident that Lester Bell, a great player in 1926 and a flivver in 1927, will again join the ranks of the outstanding third basemen.

Blue Strong for Howley.

Lu Blue, the first baseman obtained by the Browns with Heine Manush in the trade that sent Elam Vangilder and Harry Rice to Detroit, was quoted in the East as being downcast over the transfer to St. Louis, but it must have been a misquotation. Blue told the writer that he naturaly regretted leaving his friends in Detroit, but that he would be happy to play for Dan Howley anywhere and would do everything in his power to make St. Louis feel that Howley and Friel had made a great trade. To show his sincerity, Blue conferred with Howley and Friel and recommended several young players to the Brownie leaders.

Bill Killefer, re-engaged as coach, held back his signature until he was certain that the Browns were going to clean house. Bill felt that the Browns as constituted in 1927 were a hopeless combination of malcontents and misfits and he did not want to go through another season like the last one. Now he feels that he really can help the team and undoubtedly Howley will give him a free hand to condition and test the pitching staff.

Pitchers All Youngsters.

While the staff looks like more or less of a joke, it may not be as bad as it looks. There will be no more hopeless veterans on the staff and the youngsters will have a chance to develop whatever talent they have. Nevers, Crowder, Coffman, Stewart and Sam Gray look like the best of the lot, but young Jim Wright may surprise everybody. He looked like a real prospect the few times Howley pitched him. He is a big righthander and will be worked frequently in 1928. The staff also includes Walter Beck, George Blaeholder and Stewart Bolen.

Before spring training the Browns probably will dispose of a catcher and an infielder, and while the team that goes south will not be conceded the slightest chance in the pennant race, there at least will be new faces, young blood and the fans, tired of looking at the aged and hopeless veterans, probably will show a new interest in the new team, which for several years it will be in process of building. The Brownie machine ran on the old tires too long. They all blew out together and the machine was badly jarred and for the last two years it has been knocking on all cylinders. Perhaps the "Model A" really will go somewhere.

NEBRASKA IS DEFEATED BY MIZZOU, 36-15

Impenetrable Tiger Defense Smothers Cornhuskers — Baker Stars.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 17.—The University of Nebraska basketball team lost its second consecutive conference game here tonight, going down before the University of Missouri, 36 to 15.

There was some ragged basketball at the start of the contest, when fumbles were more or less frequent, but both teams settled down to better form after the first few minutes. But Nebraska, almost completely enshrouded in an impenetrable Missouri defense, could do little with the Tigers. A field goal and a pair of free throws enabled the visitors to keep abreast of the Tigers for the first two or three minutes of the game, but then the Tigers pulled away, and had an advantage of 18 to 8 at the half. Nebraska scored from the field but five times, twice in the first period and three times in the second.

An airtight Missouri defense was led by Baker, a sophomore, who had the advantage on the rangy Munn at the tip off at center, and then hurried down under the basket to camp on the trail of would-be goal shooters. He displayed some of the most brilliant defensive play under the basket ever shown on the Missouri court. Captain Yunker's sensational floor work, and the plunging attack of Flamank were features, too, but Missouri's great strength lay in defense.

Holding the upper half throughout the contest, Coach George Edwards used substitutes freely, and 11 members of the varsity squad saw service, with most of the regular playing little more than half the contest, though all of them saw service in both periods.

Many Seek Jobs On St. Louis U. Coaching Staff

Department Heads and Alumni to Discuss Athletic Problems This Week.

By Jack Alexander.

St. Louis University has no immediate plans for the changes in its athletic system made necessary by the resignation of Athletic Director Bob Mathews, according to Father Theodore Schulte, S. J., representative of President Cloud.

The faculty director stated yesterday that a meeting of department heads and prominent alumni would be held early this week. The situation will be discussed in a general way at this gathering and nothing definite is expected to result. Later conferences will determine the school's policy.

"Right now we have no idea of what or how many new men we will hire or who will be retained of the existing staff," stated Father Schulte. "We intend to take our time about the matter and formulate a sound system. Applications for coaching positions are coming in thick and fast but we will not consider these until matters of policy are settled."

Among the applicants are known to be Frank Ramacciotti and Jim Finnegan, former Billiken stars. The three-year contract of Harvey Brown, assistant coach, expires at the end of the school year and, as Brown graduates from the medical school in June, it is not known whether he will be available for a coaching offer or whether the practice of medicine will take up all his time.

Mathews resigned last Thursday, for reasons which were not made public. Neither the coach nor the school authorities had anything to say officially about the matter. Mathews came here from the University of Idaho in the spring of 1926. His resignation has already taken effect.

Harry Reget, one of the assistants Mathews brought along from Idaho, has taken up where Mathews left off in the coaching of the varsity basketball team and "Skip" Stivers is still drilling the freshmen. The contracts of Reget and Stivers also expire in June. Both have done well, Stivers with freshmen teams and Reget with intramural sports, and it is not at all unlikely that they will remain at the school. Mathews has stated that he will return to the Northwest, his home, and resume his profession in the construction line.

Cricket Player, In 6-Hour Inning, Scores 437 Runs

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 17.

A RECORD inning in a first-class cricket match was made today by W. K. Ponsford, when, playing for Victoria against Queensland, he scored 437 runs. The previous record high score—429—was held by Ponsford.

Batting brilliantly throughout, Ponsford only gave two very difficult chances. He occupied the wicket for six hours and twenty minutes and included in his total were 42 fours. Victoria's innings totaled 793 runs.

Alton, guard, was a real star for the winners, breaking up the Jackson U. boys' passing. Newman was high point scorer for the visitors with seven.

The locals outclassed their opponents in all departments of play.

In the preliminary game, the University City girls' five defeated the Y. W. H. A. team, 28-9.

Accomplish Beats Tommy Foster in Havana Feature

Skip Away Carries Tommy Foster Wide in Stretch Causing First Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Dec. 17.—C. LeRoy King's filly Accomplish brought Tommy Foster's winning streak to a close when she beat the fast son of On Watch by half a length in the El Vedad Tennis Club purse at Oriental Park this afternoon.

In his two previous efforts Tommy Foster was returned the winner and might have added another victory to his credit this afternoon had he not been carried extremely wide rounding the far turn and entering the home stretch by Skip Away.

The latter broke in front of the field, with Tommy Foster on the outside. The pair raced like a team to the stretch turn and when they went wide, Accomplish cut corners and saved enough ground to place her in front.

Accomplish retained her advantage to the end, where she had a margin of half a length over Tommy Foster. The latter beat the tiring Skip Away by a length and a half for the place.

Rumors Washington U. May Narrow Athletic Policy; Higgins' Status Uncertain

Reports Say Plan Would Eliminate All Efforts to Build Up Teams — Acting Chancellor States There Has Been No Action.

Reports of drastic changes of athletic policy at Washington University for next year were in circulation yesterday, although no official confirmation of them was forthcoming. No definite recommendations have as yet been made, as far as inquiry last night developed.

The rumored change in policy concerned the activities of alumni associations and others active in building up athletics at Washington University and involved the possible elimination of all efforts to build up teams through scholarships and remunerative jobs. The proposed change would limit athletic eligibility to those competing in a purely voluntary manner.

As a result of this policy the status of Coach Robert Higgins would be in question, as well as the standing of several organizations formed to promote university athletics. Coach Higgins has just completed his third and most successful football season and gave the university a first-class eleven. Higgins' team was defeated but twice, in nine games.

No Action Taken Officially.

Dr. George R. Throop, acting chancellor of the university, declared that no action had been taken and no decision had been reached on any question of policy for next year. Dr. Throop added that he was as yet not ready to make any announcements of proposals which might have reached the university authorities.

Dr. Bill Edmunds, athletic director, also was emphatic in affirming that no action had been taken on any of the proposed changes which have been discussed. The recommendations have not as yet come up officially, he stated, at any meeting or conference.

Students Fear Hasty Action.

E. Glenn Curtis, member of the Washington Alumi Association, furnished information which indicated that no action was to be taken on any phase of the situation until the matters under discussion could be investigated and referred to the Board of Directors of the Corporation. Robert S. Brookings, now in Washington, D. C., is chairman of the board.

Student sentiment against the rumored proposals ran high, it was learned, when first news of the possible recommendations were disclosed. Petitions were circulated among the students on the campus requesting that full investigation of any recommendations be made before any action was taken.

BLACK GOLD, COUPLED WITH VICTOR, TAKES EASY GALLOP

Derby Winner of 1924 Makes Impressive Showing — Air Flight Pays $26.80 and Street Liz $21

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17.—In one of the most spirited finishes seen at the local track this winter, Mrs. R. M. Hoots' Beggar Boy, full brother to the Kentucky Derby winner, Black Gold, defeated S. Haughton's Shasta Lad by a nose in winning the Myrna Sharlow Purse, five and a half furlongs, at Jefferson Park here today. Almadel was third.

Black Gold, which has four derbies to his credit, made his "comeback" in this event, and performed in impressive style. The big horse appeared a bit high in flesh and when his stablemate, Beggar Boy, took the lead, C. E. Allen, who had the mount, was content to let Black Gold gallop along, but the black horse closed ground rapidly in the stretch and finished with a determined rush. The entry paid $12.60 for a $2 ticket.

The start was good and Col. Drage, Hogan's Alley and Beggar Boy jumped away and were heads apart to the middle of the turn, where Beggar Boy slowly forged to the front. In the stretch Beggar Boy was running a length or so in front, but in the last sixteenth Shasta Lad, which was taken very wide on the stretch turn, closed with a rush and almost got up. He was defeated by a nose. Almadel was two lengths back.

Plain Dealer Takes Opener.

Plain Dealer, under good handling, was winner of the first race, a mile and a sixteenth gallop. He came with a rush at the end to win in a drive by half a length from Golden G., which in turn took the place by half a length over Reafty. The latter was making his first appearance of the meeting and ran a good race. The track was in good condition.

Twelve platers competed over the six-furlong course in the second event and it was won by G. Reilly's Air Flight, with Dubois up. Lila G. landed second and La Vestale third. The field ran well bunched to the stretch, where Air Flight came with a rush on the outside and won in a drive by half a length. Lila G. defeated La Vestale half a length for the place.

Air Flight paid $26.80 to win.

Another Long Shot.

Another long shot went over in the third event, when Street Liz, neglected in the betting, led home a big field of platers, paying $21. She was outrun for the first six furlongs, but came with a rush, circled the field on the turn, took a long lead and won by five lengths. Porto de Oro landed second money by half a length from Rushee.

In the biggest upset of the day, R. E. Wallace's Waffles gained a head victory over the odds-on favorite, Noine, with Serajevo third, in the fifth race. Waffles ran a few days ago, but failed to show anything worth while, consequently the public neglected to wager on him.

Noine and Waffles had the race between them for the last half-mile, but right at the end Waffles showed a determined rush and won by a head. Noine took the place by six lengths.

Waffles paid $21.40.

Step Along Beats Harass.

Step Along, in the silks of J. H. O'Malley was winner of the sixth, a mile and a sixteenth gallop. Harass was second and Fly Hawk third. Step Along took command early, made all the pace and won by half a length. Harass took the place by three lengths from Fly Hawk.

Tunney Sails for Miami.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Gene Tunney, heavyweight boxing champion, sailed today for Miami, Fla., on the liner Iroquois. He said he would remain there with friends for two weeks, returning to New York for an all-champions' dinner scheduled for Jan. 4.

WRAY BROWN AGAIN RANKED FIRST ON MISSOURI VALLEY TENNIS LIST

3 OTHER LOCAL PLAYERS NAMED IN FIRST TEN

Josties, Barnes and Hodge Receive Recognition; Wilbur Coen, 16, Rated No. 2.

By Davison Obear.

Wray D. Brown, leading St. Louis player, again heads the list of tennis players ranked in the Missouri Valley territory on the basis of the 1927 tournament season. Brown won the Missouri Valley singles championship at Omaha last July and followed by capturing the St. Louis District title in September.

The second place in the men's singles was awarded to Wilbur F, Coen Jr., brilliant Kansas City youth. He is the youngest player ever ranked No. 2 in the Missouri Valley. Although only 16 years of age, Coen won the Central States tournament at the Triple A Club, defeating Ted Drewes, National Public Parks champion, in the finals and Wray Brown in an early round match. Coen was runner-up to Brown in the Missouri Valley singles tourney.

In addition to Wray Brown, the other St. Louis players ranked in the first ten are Fred Josties, Charles Barnes and Karl Hodge. Six St. Louis District stars were named in the second ten. These include Teddy Eggman, Cornell U. tennis captain; Robert Norton and C[illegible] Smith of the Ferris Tennis Club; Richard Rosebrough, Woodlawn Country Club; Edmund H. Serrano and Forrest Stuckman, Triple A Club players.

Local players also figure prominently in the men's doubles list. Five teams were selected. Wray Brown and Harris Coggeshall, the Des Moines star, won the Missouri Valley doubles but share first place with Wray Brown and Fred Josties, a combination which won the Central States and St. Louis District doubles tournaments.

The ranking of women and junior players will be announced Tuesday. The Missouri Valley ranking committee was composed of the following members: Karl Kammann, St. Louis, chairman; Sam Callahan, Kansas City; Charles Frederick, Des Moines; J. C. Tallman, Independence, Kan.; W. F. Luther, Tulsa; Davis Davis, Omaha, and J. H. Crossett, Little Rock.

When Fights WERE Fights: Kid Lavigne's Memoirs

Sensational Draw With Young Griffo, Master Boxer

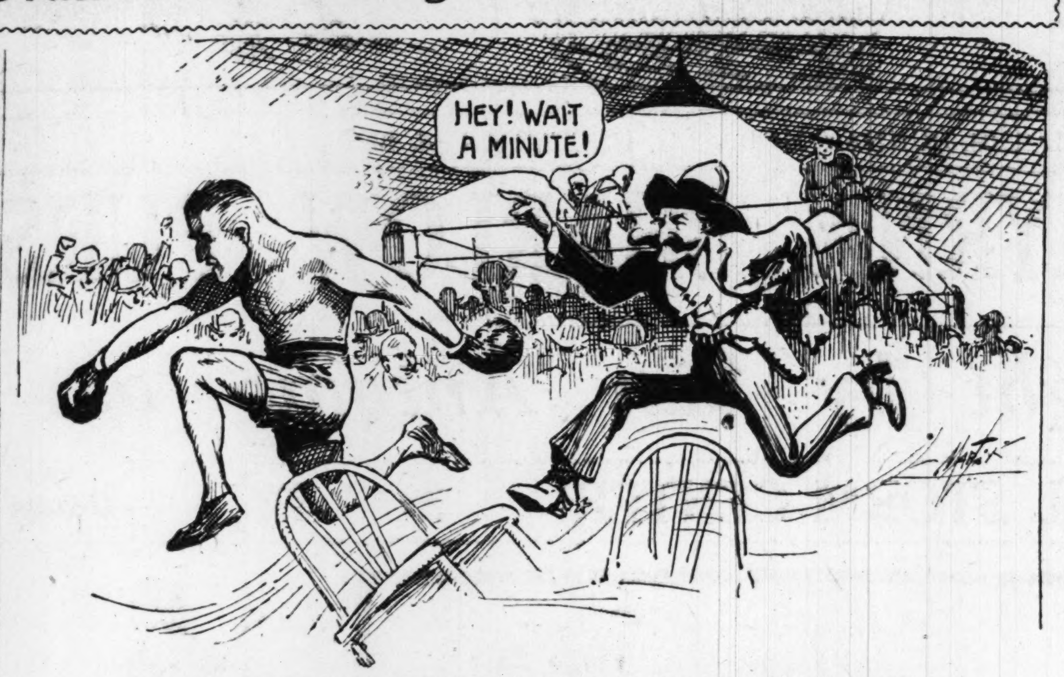
John L. Sullivan Meets the Kid and Predicts He Will Become Champion of the World.

By George (Kid) Lavigne,

Former Lightweight Champion of the World, Whose Many Victories Included Two Over Joe Walcott and one Over England's Famous Champion, Dick Burge.

As Told to E. P. RUCKER.

(Copyright, 1927.)



HEY! WAIT A MINUTE!

"I hung a knockout on Myers' chin and ran for shelter from the Sheriff."

WHEN I journeyed out to San Francisco to fight Joe Soto to a finish I was 22 years old. I had acquired a lot of boxing skill, although I didn't need much science, certainly not much defensive science.

I was a quick, hard and accurate puncher with plenty of spring in my legs. It seemed almost impossible to hurt me seriously.

While training for the Soto fight, I met Sam Fitzpatrick in Danny Needham's saloon in Oakland. Two years later Fitzpatrick became my manager at Boston. He had Griffo there to fight Johny Griffin, but they had a row and split.

While I was at Frisco, John L. Sullivan and Joe Choynski came home from Australia, where Sullivan had been playing an unsuccessful theatrical engagement. A benefit was arranged for Sullivan at the Pacific Club, and I went on the program. I boxed Danny Needham four rounds.

John L.'s Prediction.

SULLIVAN was a warm friend of Billy Harrison, manager of the club, and through Harrison I met Sullivan. The champion saw me box Needham and watched my fight with Soto. One day he said to Harrison in my presence, "This kid is going to be the next lightweight champion."

Soto and I met before an enormous crowd. He was a flashy and popular boxer. We fought a bloody battle. In the early rounds, as usual, I took a pasting. But I kept everlastingly on top of Soto. About the twenty-fifth round I felt the coast champion beginning to weaken. In the thirty-first round he quit.

Harry Jones, an English boy, then living at Seattle, who had been fighting in this country several years, was a favorite in the Northwest. He had recently fought hard engagements with Pikie Johnson and Jimmie Murphy. Portland, Ore., promoters offered me a match with Jones, I accepted. Again it was for a finish fight.

Five days before the date of battle, my brother Billy and I got word of the death of our younger brother, John. It was a shock to me and I quit training. However, I knocked Jones cold in the eighth round. The referee who counted Jones out was Jack Dempsey, the original Nonpareil, who, in his prime, was the greatest middleweight the ring ever produced.

My next important engagement was with Eddie Meyers, a brother of Billy Meyers, the famous "Streator Cyclone." We met at Dana, Ill., in 1893. The weight was 122.

There had been a lot of opposition to the fight, and warrants were out for us while we were in the ring. The Sheriff was a sport, and wanted to see the fight. He waited until it was over to serve the papers.

Dodging the Cops.

I GOT news of the warrants while the fight was going on. In the twenty-second round I hung a knockout on Meyers' chin, and ran for shelter from the Sheriff. I managed to avoid arrest then.

For two years I dodged the police. I supposed the thing was forgotten. But when I went to Roby by way of Chicago to fight Young Griffo, I was arrested, and it cost me more to keep out of jail than I got for beating Meyers.

That Griffo match fell through because Gov. Matthews of Indiana ordered out the State militia to prevent Griffo and me from battling. The soldiers had enough Gatling guns pointed at the club house to kill all the fighters on earth.

Griffith and I stayed around Roby two weeks, hoping for an opportunity to meet, but in the end we had to give it up.

I went back to Saginaw and opened a saloon. Griffo got busy at Chicago with his dazzling science and became a boxing sensation at the old Battery D armory. He made monkeys of such crafty ringsters as Tommy White, Ike Weir, Solly Smith and Johnny Van Heest. There were times when these experienced boxers would be swinging at th air with Griffo behind them.

A Chance at Griffo.

I HAD a strong itch to try my fists against such a marvel, but it was not to be for several months.

In the meantime I had beaten Billy Gaffney in 10 rounds at Detroit, Dick O'Brien in six rounds at Boston, and Stanton Abbott in four rounds at Providence.

In February, 1894, came my first chance to get into a ring with Young Griffo. We were matched for eight rounds at Chicago. George Siler was the referee.

Griffo's science was a revelation. I had never seen such speed with hands, feet and head.

For the first two rounds I thought all of Griffo's seconds were in the ring helping him.

"For the love of Mike," I said to my brother, Billy, between rounds, "how many hands has this fellow got?"

In the fourth I decided to cut loose biff-bang with everything I had, shooting in all directions, hoping some haymaker might connect.

Bang! To Griffo's Kitchen.

A WILD wallop caught Griffo in the kitchen. He had drunk a lot of beer just before entering the ring. That wallop made him sick. I started chasing him around the ring. But as sick as he was, do you think I could catch him?

And just as soon as I eased off a bit to blow, there he was right back at me with his left stuck in my face.

That bout was called a draw.

Solly Smith, one of the great featherweights of the nineties, was my next opponent. Solly was a rugged, fast man, and a terrific hitter. We met at Saginaw a month after my scrap with Griffo.

Solly put me in an awkward hole before the fight. He told me he was in no condition and asked me not to knock him out. It made it rather bad for me, especially in my home town, but I gave him my word I wouldn't try to stop him.

I let Smith stay the eight rounds, but I hit him hard enough to give him a black eye, and he got sore about that. It hurt me with my friends in Saginaw, but it taught me a lesson, and I made no such promises to any one afterward.

Fights at Coney Island.

I BEAT Jerry Marshall, of Australia, in 10 rounds at Coney Island, for a $1500 purse. I gave Marshall an awful lacing, although I didn't stop him. Later I beat him again in Chicago in six rounds.

I was matched next to fight Johnny Griffin at Coney Island for 20 rounds. The weight originally agreed on was 128 at 3 o'clock but Griffin later insisted on changing it to 124. He also put in a demand for $1000 for his end, "win, lose or draw." The boys were beginning to show respect for me.

I knocked Griffin out in the fifteenth round, and Tim Hurst, the referee, could have counted a thousand over him.

My next match resulted in one of the fiercest battles ever fought in the prize ring, and ended in the death of my opponent, Andy Bowen of New Orleans.

Harvard Drops Non-Scouting As Detrimental to Harmony

Suspicions Aroused, However False, Tend to Break Down Cordial Relationship, Writes Crimson Authority.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 17.—Football non-scouting has been tried and found wanting by Harvard and the Crimson definitely has decided to abandon the gridiron "honor system" with all future opponents, according to an unsigned article in today's H. A. A. News, official mouthpiece of the Harvard Athletic Association.

Harvard entered a non-scouting agreement with Yale and one or two other opponents this year, hoping to find the system's advertised benefits of better sportsmanship and greater player-iniative, the article states. Instead, the Crimson found its original objection to the idea had been sustained and that suspicion crept in "which was bound to work in a detrimental rather than a helpful way."

Declaring that "any prohibitory rule causes suspicion," the News went on to point out "concrete examples of suspicion which arose at Yale, Harvard and Pennsylvania" under this year's nonscouting pact.

"Stories had it that Knox, our second team coach, was scouting Yale at the Yale-Princeton game, whe nas a matter of fact he was sitting with Rocknee, Stuhldreher, et al, at the Army-Notre Dame game; our freshman coach was said to have been seen in New Haven the day of the Yale-Princeton freshman game, when he was at Pennsylvania with the varsity; and a coach of one of our nonscouting opponents called one of our graduates on the telephone to find out the details of the play of one of our mutual opponents."

Such attitudes, however false the accusations may prove, do not lead to "less suspicion and more sportsmanlike attitudes between the colleges," the News concludes.

Pointers on Basketball

By DON WHITE

No. 3—Individual Guarding.

THE Post-Dispatch presents herewith the third in the series of basketball instruction articles by Don White, coach at Washington University. These articles, dealing with all phases of the game, appear from time to time.

ALL five players on a basketball team should be defensive players as well as offensive. Individual defense has three main divisions: (1) Body position, (2) Footwork, (3) Mental alertness and aggressiveness.

Body Position. The head and eyes should be up. Know where the ball is and the position of the offensive players. The knees and waist should be slightly bent. Feet should be fairly wide apart. The guard should have a good balance at all times. Always stay between the man you are guarding and his basket.

Footwork. Taking the above position a guard takes short steps, advancing toward the man with the ball. The guard's hands are carried out in front of him in order to play the ball. Don't stop, but feed on in and try to get a held ball. The legs should never cross each other and never lunge or rush blindly in to get the ball. When taking the ball off the back board, a guard should jump high in the air to secure possession of the ball and use his pivot in order to prevent getting a held ball with one of his opponents.

Mental Alertness and Aggressiveness. The guard is always at a disadvantage. He does not know just what the offensive player is going to do. Therefore he should make an attempt to force the man with the ball to show what he is going to do. Do not think that you can guard a man if he is four or five feet away from you. This is called mental guarding. You should be in a position to guard your man and also have your eye on the ball. When he moves, move with him. Always talk when on defense as well as when on offense. Tell your teammates that you have this man and then stick to him. Do not switch men.

A guard must have courage. He is the one who gets the hardest bumps. He must be coolheaded but a hard fighter. He is like the man that runs interference for the ball carrier in football. The player who gets the baskets is the hero and few people look upon the guard as winning a game.

MISS MAGUIRE, U. S. CHAMPION, NOW ST. LOUISAN

To Represent This City in Olympic Games Next Summer — New Club Being Formed.

St. Louis will be represented in the Olympic Games, at Amsterdam, Holland, next summer by at least one national champion. Miss Katherine Maguire, formerly of Pacific, Mo., holder of the high jump mark of five feet one-half inch, is now a resident of St. Louis and will represent the Headlight Athletic Club which is sponsored by the Larned Carter Co., of this city.

Miss Maguire set her new national mark which is unofficially recognized as the world's record for women high jumpers, at the National A. A. U. games for women at Eureka, Cal., last summer. Her best previous mark was four feet 11¼ inches, made in the national title games at Philadelphia in 1926 and she believes that she will add another inch to the record just as soon as she has an opportunity to again jump in competition. This opportunity will be afforded her on March 31 when the Western District A. A. U. championships will be held at the New Coliseum, according to Robert L. Probst, secretary of the District.

To Sponsor Basketball Team.

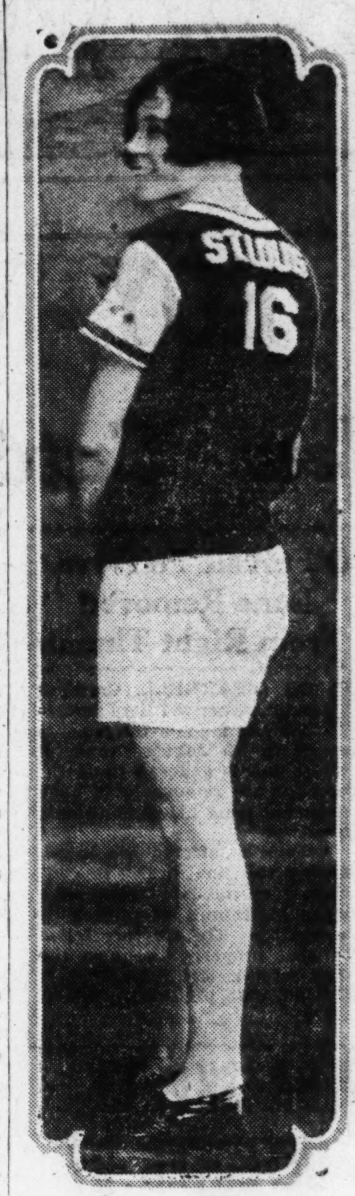
H. A. Riddick, of the Larned Carter Co., said yesterday that his house has undertaken the formation of an athletic club which will specialize in track but will also include basketball.

"Loren Murchison, St. Louis' greatest sprinter who is now ill in a hospital at Decatur, Ill., had given us very valuable assistance in the formation of such an athletic organization," said Riddick. Murchison and his father are members of the Larned Carter sales staff. "When Loren recovers from his illness he will again undertake to develop a team here. With the nucleus of Miss Maguire and Loren Murchison, we anticipate no difficulty in bringing out a dozen or more track stars."

Three Maguire Sisters.

Miss Maguire came into prominence as an athlete while a sophomore at Pacific, Mo., high school. Her sisters, Anna and Irene, are also successful athletes but have not attained the degree of success that Katherine has enjoyed.

TO REPRESENT ST. LOUIS AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES



KATHERINE MAGUIRE.

They received their initial instruciton under W. T. Leezy, track coach at the school. Neither the father nor mother of the Maguire sisters engaged in athletics. "We just didn't have such goings-on when we were children," answered Mother Maguire when Katherine made inquiry.

Violet Browning and several other leading girl athletes of the St. Louis district have signified their intention to join the Headlight Athletic Club team, Riddick says.

The Call of the Outdoors

By ALEC MERMOD

THE Game and Fish Department is advocating the giving of State hunting and fishing licenses as a Christmas present.

This is not a bad suggestion, and no doubt, many will avail themselves of the opportunity offered.

Last spring the Game Department distributed live quail and pheasant eggs to many applicants and of course there were a great many more applicants than there were eggs and quail to go round, but now that the department is establishing auxiliary game refuges, all the game and eggs will go to these refuges and the State parks, so no applications from private clubs or individuals will be considered. I am inclined to believe that this arrangement will be more satisfactory, and work out to better advantage than the distribution among private clubs, for the birds will have better care, as the men in charge of the refuges will be men of some experience and can devote more time to the care of the young birds, killing off the vermin and poachers.

Game Propagation Plans.

C. D. MONTEITH, Chief of Parks, has completed a five-acre turkey pen in Franklin County State Park and it will soon be stocked with wild turkey. Work has been started on a 40-acre deer pen in Sam A. Baker State Park and will be completed before the end of the year; in addition to the deer pen a five-acre turkey pen will be constructed, and by spring these two refuges will be in full operation, and the work of game propagation will have a splendid start.

We have just learned that the Supreme Court has reversed the finding of the Circuit Court of Phelps County in the case of the State of Missouri against Deputy Warden J. S. Freeland, where Freeland was found guilty of dynamiting fish. The Game Department stood behind Freeland, as he was working in accordance with instructions of McCanse. The stream in question was infested with gars and the dynamite was used to destroy these fish that prey on all other species.

A quail was killed near Bonne Terre, Mo., a few days since that showed entirely different markings than our regular Bob White, instead of being brown this bird was yellow and the usual dark markings were very faint. Taxidermist Ernest Schwarz pronounced the bird a cross between our native bird and one of the Mexican quail brought in last year. The report states further that this bird weighed 5½ ounces, dwelling on the fact that this bird was heavier than our native quail, but on this point I take exception, for I have killed several birds this fall that weighed well over six ounces, and they were strictly native Bob Whites.

The Game Department is asking the sportsmen to weigh their birds and report the exact weights, especially in cases that show the possibility of a cross between the Mexican and native. If this cooperation is given it will be possible to determine whether the crossing of these two birds tends to increase the size and weight.

Closed Season for Rabbits.

TWO more weeks and our shooting season will be over until next July (when squirrel season opens) except that we may still shoot rabbits, though I have always been in favor of classing the rabbit with the rest of the game, and having a closed season, say between Jan. 20 and Nov. 10.

So far the quail shooting has not been very satisfactory, and good bags have been the exception, also many report that there are more small birds this season than in previous years, and again comes up the everlasting argument about the second hatch. All the covies that I have found this season have contained from 10 to 12 birds, which with few exceptions have been quite heavy and fat.

There is not much doubt that during our next convention of the legislature a closed season on rabbits will be established, for this animal certainly needs more protection than he has been having in the past.

While a wheat stubble field is the favored feeding ground of the quail he seeks these fields, not so much for the wheat grains as for the seed of the rag weed which is always to be found in the stubble.

My experience this fall has been that the birds have not held well and many flush wild 25 or 30 feet ahead of the dog. Last week-end we flushed two covies that took wing before either men or dogs were within 100 yards, though this is easily accounted for as the day was dark and cold and later there was a fine rain which made the birds restless and caused them to take a long flight. Frequently the covey would go clear through a patch of timber, dropping in the open field beyond. This trait is not uncommon on a dark day, for the birds seem to prefer the open.

Turkeys Appear Plentiful.

FROM all reports turkey seem more plentiful than for some years, and a number of St. Louis hunters have brought one of these fine birds home.

There are still a number of ducks in this part of the country, and good bags are the rule, and the sand bar shooters have had better luck than they have enjoyed for years.

Fishermen have been rather quiet lately, but on the first warm day in February they will begin to overhaul their tackle, and add a few leaders and flies, or the newest thing in wooden minnows, to their already large assortment.

The American Legion Austin and Floyd Key Post No. 156 of Kirkwood will hold a Turkey Shoot today at the intersection of Manchester and Denny roads, just north of Kirkwood. An attractive program has been arranged and shooting will be at the regulation cross target and at clay pigeons over the traps. Shooting starts at 10 a. m. and will continue through the day. This shoot is open to every one and there will be plenty of turkeys.

WESTWOOD CLUB PURCHASED BY GOLF SYNDICATE

New Owners Will Operate Links on $30 Annual and $1 Daily Fee Basis.

By Damon Kerby.

The Westwood Country Club, one of the oldest golf clubs in the St. Louis district, has been sold to a syndicate headed by Walter L. Pfeffer, vice president of the St. Louis District Golf Association, for a reported price of about $300,000. The club is located in Glendale, between Webster Groves and Kirkwood. It was formerly owned by the Henry R. Weisels Co., Inc.

Extensive improvements in the property will be begun soon after Jan. 1, according to Pfeffer, and the new club, to be known as the Westborough Country Club, will open officially on July 1, at which time the present Westwood Country Club will move to its new plant at Conway and Ballas roads.

Memberships in the Westborough club will be sold at $30 a year with no dues or assessments. A fee of $1 a player will be charged on week days and a charge yet to be set for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Improvements for the property include the installation of a swimming pool with a re-filtering system. It is planned to conduct individual and class lessons in swimming and life saving. Classes in athletics for children will be held during the summer under specialized instructors. Other features, including tennis, volley ball and handball courts, and facilities for archery, horseshoe yitching and quoits will be included in the improvement grogram.

One of Best in District.

The golf links at Westborough is one of the best 18-hole courses in the St. Louis district. Harry Vardon, veteran English golfer, holds the course record with a 67, made some years ago. Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, in an effort to break the record, recently covered the course in 68 and 70, respectively.

The syndicate plans to employ a golf professional of recognized standing.

Pfeffer, active in the new organization, expects to devote his entire time to the club. He is well known to St. Louis golfers, having held various posts in addition to the vice presidency of the district association. At the present he is a member of the Advisory Board of thfe U. S. Golf Association, and of the Board of Directors in the Trans-Mississippi Golf Association, and recently was nominated to the directorate of the Western Golf Association. He was president of the District Greens Association for two years.

The plan of operating an up-to-date club at a modest cost of membership is not a new idea, according to Pfeffer, who asserts that there are nearly 50 golf courses operating in Chicago at present under this system. He asserts that the popularity of the new club is assured already, as the recently opened membership list now includes many of the leading golfers of St. Louis.

NAVY RE

NOT IN BEST INTEREST OF AMATEUR SPORT

Admiral Nulton, Superintendent of Naval Academy, Says Any New Steps Must Be Taken by Army.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 17.—Traditional athletic relationship between West Point and the Naval Academy went by the board, at least temporarily, today, with the announcement by Rear Admiral Louis N. Nulton, superintendent of the midshipmen's institution, that "the naval academy contemplates taking no further step towards an Army-Navy game for 1928."

Admiral Nulton's statement followed the decision of West Point authorities, speaking through Major-General E. B. Winans of the military academy, who asserted that the navy request for a three-year eligibility rule, governing membership on athletic teams, would not be complied with at the cadet school.

Navy Includes Eligibility Clause.

This was navy's year to write the contract for the annual gridiron classic between the two schools, and navy authorities had included a clause in the contract calling for adoption of the three-year eligibility rule by the army. This rule, which became effective with the midshipmen last June, states that students who have participated in three years of a varsity sport, either at the academy or at another collegiate institution, cannot continue to represent the middies in that sport.

Navy wanted West Point to adopt the same procedure, but Major-General Winans, in a statement yesterday, said there would be no change in the existing rules at the military academy and forthwith mailed back the contract to the navy calling for a 1928 game.

Considerable doubt was expressed whether the army would change its position in the matter, while naval officials, by the statement today, refused to alter their first position regarding the eligibility rule. Whether official Washington will be forced to take action to bring about an agreement, depends, it was pointed out, largely on whether Admiral Nulton and General Winans get together in an attempt to iron out the difficulties.

At present the athletic controversy is deadlocked and Secretary of War Davis expressed the opinion today that he had [illegible] the superintendents of the two schools would ultimately get their heads together to clear away the smoke of battle which has clouded the military and naval institutions.

"Not a Question of Ethics."

In his statement today, Admiral Nulton expressed the opinion that "the mission of athletics at the naval academy in relation to the student body and the general service is identically the same as that of West Point, but the naval academy does not consider it essential in fulfilling this mission to play players six and seven years in the same sport and [illegible] such a procedure is in the best interest of the amateurs of sport."

"Raising the question of eligibility does not bring into question criticism of ethics. It does, however," the statement continues, "bring into consideration the length of experience of players in the same sport and consideration as to whether the contestants are operating under condition which gives to each side a sporting chance to win."

Continuing, the superintendent said:

"The statement that the student body at Annapolis is 50 per cent in excess of that at West Point is not in accordance with the facts. As a matter of fact there were, on Dec. 15, 1927, 293 more midshipmen than cadets. The numbers of the respective academies was West Point 1241, Annapolis 1534."

"For each game each year there is a separate and special contract covering the game for that year and, while this is primarily for the purpose of regulating locality, and other arrangements, there is included the eligibility rules when necessary.

"There is one point on which there is misunderstanding and confusion that I wish to make clear," Admiral Nulton said, "and that is with reference to the so-called four-year agreement. Everyone familiar with [illegible] that the superintendent of each academy is the [illegible] and determines the athletic policy of each institution.

Navy's Turn to Write Contract.

"This year was the navy's year to write that contract and included in it was the three-year eligibility rule in accordance with the policy of the naval academy as announced in June, 1927.

"The authorities of the military academy, speaking for themselves, did not accept the eligibility condition, returned the contract unsigned. The naval academy contemplates taking no further step toward an army-navy game for 1928.

"Speaking for myself," Admiral Nulton's [illegible] correspondence and conferences on the subject of eligibility have been conducted by both sides with a spirit of utmost [illegible] good-will. The relation

NAVY REITERATES STAND AGAINST "PLAYING MEN 6 OR 7 YEARS"

"The authorities of the military academy, feeling that they could not accept the eligibility condition, returned the contract unsigned. The naval academy contemplates taking no further step toward an army-navy game for 1928.

"Speaking for myself," Admiral Nulton's statement concluded, "correspondence and conferences on the subject of eligibility have been conducted by both sides with a spirit of utmost cordiality, courtesy and good will. The relation existing between the two student bodies has been one of marked cordiality, admiration and respect and I am deeply concerned that no phase of an honest difference of opinion should tend to hurt this."

Rivals in 18.2 Balkline Championship Match

Cochran Defends His 18.2 Title in 1500-Point Match With Schaefer Tomorrow

Youngsters Have Had Brilliant Careers — Young Jake Was First of New Players to Win Championship From the Veteran Willie Hoppe.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Few figures in any branch of sport have had more of the colorful and spectacular in their careers than Welker Cochran, present 18.2 balkline billiard champion of the world, and young Jake Schaefer who meets him for the crown in a 1500 point match at the Pennsylvania Hotel here, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

From the time in 1921 when young Jake scored a dramatic victory over Willie Hoppe, the champion, who had taken the title from old Jake, his father, the younger Schaefer and Cochran have stood side by side in the spotlight.

In his first match in defense of his title at Chicago recently, Cochran contributed a characteristic bit of drama in beating the stolid German, Eric Hagenlacher, after entering the final block, 298 points to the bad.

Started Title Play in 1919.

Both Cochran and young Schaefer were tested in the crucible of world's championship play for the first time in the tournament of 1919. Their debuts indicated what might be expected of them later. Cochran astounded the billiard world with a run of 265, the highest ever made up to that time in championship play, and Schaefer scored a five-inning victory over Koji Yamada, Japanese expert.

The only fault to be found by the critics was that the youngsters were inconsistent. Sporadic flashes of greatness were followed by dismal slumps.

A three-cornered tournament with Hoppe in 1920 found the play of the two youngsters only mediocre. Playing twice around in a round-robin, both lost all their games to Hoppe and each defeated the other for even breaks.

Beat Hoppe in 1921.

It was in 1921 that Schaefer's star rose above the billiard horizon. He tied Hoppe for first place in the tournament with five victories and one defeat, and then defeated him in the playoff for the championship. His only defeat was at the hands of Roger Conti, the brilliant French youngster. In addition to winning the title he performed the unprecedented feat of winning a game without his opponent scoring, going out in two innings for an average of 200, while Cochran missed on his only turn at the table. Schaefer ran 82 and 318.

This run would have been another world's record, except that his young rival had attended to that himself in a nearlier game of the tournament, Cochran scoring 384 in defeating the veteran George Sutton. Schaefer also established a record grand average of 51.23 for the tourney.

By indomitable courage Hoppe again lifted himself to the peak in 1922 and 1923, being tied for first place in the latter year by Cochran and winning the playoff.

Schaefer Set New Record.

A year elapsed before the next tournament in which Schaefer set a mark that is apt to stand for years. Winning the bank against Eric Hagenlacher in the seventh game of the tournament Schaefer ran out the game, never giving his opponent a shot. His run of 400 was a record and his average of the same another. A third was his grand average of 57.14, which is unbroken to this date.

In warding off the challenges of Edouard Horemans of Belgium, who finished second in the tournament, Schaefer set out for more records. One was a run of 432 and the other was an amazing average of 93.75 for 1500 points.

The tournament of 1926 in Washington found Cochran performing feats only surpassed by the records of Schaefer. He won the tournament with a grand average of 54 15-43, had a best game average of 80 and had the only runs of 200 or better, making 229, 233 and 299. In defense of the title against Hagenlacher he seemed hopelessly beaten until he overhauled his rival with a cluster of 407 and when headed again ran out the match with an unfinished run of 157.

At 18.1 balkline both have shared the spotlight. In 1927 Schaefer set a world's record of 241 and on Oct. 19 of this year Cochran overshadowed it with a run of 251.

18.2 Balkline Title Contest To Be Broadcast

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.

A HEATED table is the latest quirk in billiards. This innovation will be presented for the first time here Monday night when Welker Cochran defends his 18.2 balkline title against Jake Schaefer in a 1500-point match.

So that the sensitive ivory will not be chilled, large resistance coils will be attached under the table. The heavy slate beds will thus be maintained at an even temperature.

The match will be broadcast by radio over Station WGL. One thousand persons are expected to see the match, which will be played in five blocks of 300 points each. Albert Cutler will referee.

Macklin Ready For Title Match

St. Louisan to Defend Amateur Billiard Crown Against Fleming at Indianapolis.

Dr. L. P. Macklin, national amateur 3-cushion billiard champion, will depart tomorrow for Indianapolis where he will defend his title in a 150-point match against Tom Fleming of Champaign, Ill.

The title match will be played in 3 blocks of 50 points each, starting Tuesday evening and concluding Wednesday evening.

Macklin polished off his practice with a session against Charles C. Peterson last night and convinced on lookers that he is in excellent stroke.

step forward that all cities in the major leagues could follow profitably. The new owners constituting "the wealthiest groups that ever entered baseball," according to the league's statement, will collaborate with the city of Cleveland in building a baseball plant which also will be a municipal stadium. The city will furnish the ground, on the lake front, and the stands will be built to fit the needs of baseball, instead of being built to fit a piece of ground.

The idea of the diamond will be carried out mathematically. The distance between home plate and the left-field fence will be the same as the distance to the right-field wall. The stands will seat 85,000 persons, and every seat will command a clear view of every part of the playing field.

The ball club will operate under a long-term lease and the rental thus paid will take care of the interest on the investment. In the off-season the stadium will be available for football games and boxing matches, and while the Cleveland team is away it can be used by high school, college and municipal teams. Eventually the stadium will pay for itself and be the property of the city. The rental, according to present plans, will depend partly on the success of the team, so the city itself and all civic organizations will be interested in the success of the club.

Bear Cagers to Practice Through Holiday Vacation

Coach Don White to Prep Players Hard for Game Against St. Louis U.

The Washington U. basketball team will not be allowed to forget the court game during the annual winter vacation period at the university, Coach Don S. White announced yesterday. Four days' respite for the squad has been granted by White, for Dec. 22-25, inclusive, but the squad will report back on the day following Christmas for twice-daily practice sessions in preparatoin for the game with St. Louis U. on New Year's eve.

White declared himself highly satisfied over the showing of the Washington squad in defeating the University of Nebraska quintet, 28-27, Friday, in the Valley opener, but the Bear offense has much to do before it reaches its peak, the coach added. Special attention to the slow-breaking offense will be given at tomorrow's practice. This offense, sometimes known as the set offense, is a maneuver in which three or four of the players station themselves in their own goal territory and at a given signal dart out simultaneously in order to elude the defense and receive the pass.

DRAFT DISPUTE MAY SPLIT THE MINOR LEAGUES

Hickey Declares Three Class AA Organizations Will Not Break With the Majors.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—There will be no break between the major leagues and the minor leagues, as far as the American Association is concerned, President Thomas J. Hickey said today on his return from New York. Mr. Hickey attended the meeting at which the committee of three representing the minors, laid before Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis and the two major leagues, a resolution passed at the recent Dallas meeting of the National Association (the minor leagues), in which they were instructed to confer with the "proper" big league representatives for "the purpose of determining the date of the termination" of the present major-minor agreement.

The action of the minor leagues at Dallas in adopting their resolution is not in accord with the wishes or best interests of the three Class AA leagues and the Western and Three-Eye leagues, Mr. Hickey said. He declared that the five leagues were well satisfied with the "modified draft" as in force at present, and desire to continue their working agreement with the major leagues.

Final adjustment is expected at a meeting of the National Association which will be held between Jan. 1 and 10, in some Middle-West city, Mr. Hickey said.

OKLAHOMA U WINS SECOND VALLEY GAME, BEATING GRINNELL

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Ok., Dec. 17.—Scoring at will, while the visitors' attack was choked, the University of Oklahoma won its second start in the Missouri Valley Conference basketball race here tonight, defeating Grinnell, 44 to 16. Coach Hugh V. McDermott used 17 men in the game, and the reserves carried the attack through almost half of the battle for Oklahoma. So effectively did the Sooner defense work that the Pioneers were held to a lone field goal and three free throws in the last half.

Under the tentative program, Aurora would be allotted the opening month of May, followed by a meeting at Hawthorne. Lincoln Fields, organized by Col. Matt J. Winn of Churchill Downs, and Arlington Heights would draw the July and August dates, and each track would then be awarded a short season for the fall months.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Easy to Wreck, Hard to Build.

TRUE to his midseason statement made to the writer during the late lamented baseball campaign, Phil Ball, president of the Browns, is going through with his "wrecking campaign." Nine irreconcilables have departed; others will follow. President Ball and Manager Howley reached the conclusion that although the team as composed last year might contain many individually good players, a change of scene was better for them. They are gone—or going.

The rebuilding process is going forward more slowly. Five players have been acquired for the nine lost. Most of the newcomers appear to be useful tools. But only two are destined for the department where the building must be strongest—the pitching staff.

Sam Gray and Coffman, added to what the Browns already had, constitute a weak reed to lean on. At least three sterling pitchers still remain to be acquired. And the hard-hearted enemy owners merely laugh at suggestions to give up real hurlers for cash, players, love or whatever commodity may be suggested.

Up to Dame Fortune.

THE Browns' rebuilding process, therefore, is in the lap of Dame Fortune. Luck in getting good new, but unproved pitchers, not the expenditure of big money or crafty trading, will decide the Browns' fate for the coming season. When it is considered that it is seldom that as many as half a dozen first-class pitchers are developed from among big league recruits, annually, the Browns' chance of finding three seems merely mythical.

But a big advance has been made toward future development. Howley wants to surround himself with a lot of young, hustling fellows who can be expected to show something in a year or two.

History recalls only one or two instances of baseball clubs that were developed from nothing into title winners overnight. The Braves of 1914 and the Phillies of 1915 were examples. In both cases pitchers put the club over the top, rather than the team as a whole.

Hot Stuff.

TOMORROW night, Welker Cochran and Jake Schaefer will try an interesting experiment. Their balkline championship match (Schaefer is challenging Cochran), will be played on a table heated by resistance coils.

That will ruin one of the most ancient alibis in billiard history. For many years defeated candidates excused themselves on the ground that the balls were chilled and dead; that they did not respond to nursing because of the cold. The heating of the slate bed of the table and consequent warming of the balls will leave no excuse—unless it be the drafts.

It is a fact that ivory is seriously affected by temperature changes and that the complaints of the past may have had some foundation in fact. In the day when Hoppe was preeminent, for something like 16 years, it was singular that the complainants were unable to do anything with the chilled ivories, whereas Hoppe went right along knocking out his big runs and ultimate victories.

All Tables Alike to Willie.

Hoppe, however, is a notorious steeplechase player. All tables, cushions and balls look alike to him. He has complained at times, but not often. In one year Hoppe toured the country under the management of Benjamin. He played matches in all sections of the country and in parts of Canada. He played big towns and tank towns. He played on all sorts of cushions and all sizes of tables. He played in the cold, in drafts and in the primitive conditions found in border towns and mining camps. In the course of that tour, he played approximately 60,000 points of balkline. Despite the handicap of conditions, Hoppe averaged above 55 points, according to statistics supplied by Manager Benjamin.

Perhaps the superheated billiard table will enable Willie to regain the balkline title in the next tournament. If he does, we will still be of the opinion that cold or hot, Willie is master of any table. And of most of those who play on them, despite his years at the game.

Making Progress.

BOXING is making rapid strides, in one or two directions—standardization and control. For example, tomorrow and Tuesday, a State boxing school for referees will be held at Springfield, Mo., to standardize the method of handling bouts throughout the commonwealth. Also, the National Boxing Association, now numbering 24 states, has lifted its head, stiffened its spine and taken steps looking to nation-wide control of the game.

The National Boxing Association is sure to gain in authority. Today only New York and one or two other states fail to recognize it. A little fight and purposeful campaigning will presently result in all of the commission states working under one government.

When that happens, the step taken by the Missouri Commission will be broadened to one of national scope whereby referees all over the country will handle and judge bouts under standard interpretations. Also, rulings by any commission, if approved by the national commission, would be enforced from coast to coast.

Then where would the poor, stalling boxer and his safety-first manager go?

No place but out, Bo.

MOORE-HORNSBY SUIT TO OPEN TOMORROW

AMERICA'S BEST STAKE HORSES NAMED FOR NEW ORLEANS HANDICAP

112 NOMINATED FOR $50,000 TURF CLASSIC

Eight Eastern Stables and Six Leading Women Owners Represented—Race to Be Held Feb. 3.

By Clement Glaub.

Some of the best handicap horses in the country are among the 112 nominations for the fourth running of the $50,000 New Orleans Handicap, to be run at the Fairgrounds track, Feb. 3. A number of the country's best thoroughbreds are already on the scene, training for the rich classic. Black Maria, Cotlogomor, Buddy Bauer, Jock, Black Gold, Pompey, Grey Lag, Display, War Eagle, Dangerous and many others which have made history on the leading American tracks, are among the eligibles.

Eight Eastern owners are among the nominators. Six of the leading women owners have named their best. Mrs. H. P. Whitney, owner of the Greentree Stable, heads the list with seven; E. R. Bradley, master of the Idle Hour Stock Farm, is next with six; E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, has entered six; H. C. Fisher and H. P. Whitney are each represented by four thoroughbreds. Many other owners have named two and three horses each.

Grey Lag the Oldest.

Black Gold and Grey Lag, veteran stars of other years, have been named by Mrs. R. M. Hoots and Rancocas Stable. Black Gold is at the Fairgrounds track, training for the handicap. The son of Black Toney, now seven years old, is also named for the rich Coffroth Handicap at Tijuana. Grey Lag attempted a comeback earlier in the year on the New York tracks but was injured in his second start and was laid up for two months. He is rapidly rounding into racing condition and will probably be seen under colors in a few races prior to the running of the New Orleans Handicap. Grey Lag is 9 years old and is the oldest horse nominated for the New Orleans Handicap.

Buddy Bauer, winner of the Fairmount Derby last summer, heads Bradley's nominations. All of Bradley's entrants, with the exception of Buddy Bauer and Barabbas, are 2-year-olds. One of the latter is Beroseus, a colt which wears spectacles attached to his blinkers.

S. A. Cowan, proprietor of the Coventry Stable, has again named his French-bred horse, Cotlogomor, for the New Orleans Handicap. Cotlogomor won the event last year over a track that was deep in mud. The big horse got off to a bad start, raced around his field and won in a drive. Cotlogomor's stablemate, Boon Companion, is also entered.

Only two colts sired by the great horse Man o' War are entered in the handicap. War Eagle, out of Earine, is named by E. B. McLean and Port Hole, out of Shady, is C. E. Durnell's only entrant.

Gross Purse of $70,000.

Harry Payne Whitney, whose stable stands at the top of the leading money winners for 1927, has named Her Ladyship, Hush Dear, Royal Pennant and Color Sergeant for the race.

The New Orleans Handicap, which carries a gross value of about $70,000, will be worth $50,000 to the winner. The race is for 3-year-olds and over and will be run over a distance of one mile and one-sixteenth. Inaugurated in 1924 with a value of $25,000 added, the race was won by Frederick Johnson's Quatrain and was worth $22,100 to the winner. The following year it was won by Mrs. H. P. Whitney's Nurmi, which took down $32,000 as first money.

THE Brownies' famous wrecking crew
Have indicated they are through

Will beat the old in each respect,
Which makes the prospect pleasant.

They now have money in their purse
Which they will probably disburse
For pitchers long required.
But when they start to spend their stuff,
The long green won't be long enough
To reach the men desired.

The fans were more or less dismayed
At actions of the Board of Trade
T'wards rehabilitation.
But Sammy Gray, they all believe,
Is calculated to relieve
The pitching situation.

It may develop after all,
That in the matter, Brother Ball
Had made a wise decision.
Be that, however, as it may
With Blue, Manush and Sammy Gray,
It looks like first division.

Why Not?

Perish the thought that we would fly in the face of tradition and propose a change of name for the Browns; but if the sport writers are in need of an additional nickname we, with all due diffidence, offer the descriptive appellation of "The Mysterious Strangers."

L. C. D.—See by the Chi Tribune where a boy by the name of Englund is to pilot the Lake Forest football team next year. What, oh, what is it coming to? Right in sight of Bill and his Chicago. GIORGIO.

We note, however, that he was foxy enough to spell it with a "u." He also probably wears Oxfords; but what boots it, as long as he doesn't put any English on the ball.

See where Gen. Ramirez, a Mexican rebel, escaped to New York by dyeing his hair. He made what might be called in a way of speaking, a hair breadth escape.

Dyed in the Wool Rebel.

HE gave one fond and final look
At his dear native land and took
The air.
"Make way for liberty," he cried,
"Make way for liberty," and dyed
His hair.

The minor leagues plan to organize a new body. Will it be one of those Fisher bodies we read so much about?

The man who the other day got five years for a $4 robbery, we take it, is pretty well sold to the proposition that crime doesn't pay.

"Dairy Feeding Schools Held in Two Counties."

Very nice of the dairy and no doubt the kids appreciate it.

4 HORSES ARE EQUAL CHOICES FOR COFFROTH.

Display, Black Maria, Carlaris and Light Carbine Held at 15 to 1—Grey Lag Is 20 to 1.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Dec. 17.—The future book on the $100,000 Coffroth Handicap, richest race in the world for horses of all ages, was announced here today by Jack P. Atkin, general manager of the Tijuana Jockey Club, who for the last two winters has conducted a book on the race, handling upwards of $300,000 on the outcome.

A total of 109 horses have been nominated for the race, which is to be run Sunday, March 18. Atkin makes four horses equal favorites at 15 to 1. They are Display, owned by W. J. Salmon; Black Maria, owned by W. R. Coe; Carlaris, owned by W. T. Anderson, and Light Carbine, owned by I. B. Humphreys of Denver. The first two pack top weight of 127 pounds.

Seven gallopers are quoted at 20 to 1. They are Grey Lag, Handy Mandy, Herodian, Jock, Masked Marvel, Sun God II and Pompey. After these the prices range up to 200 to 1, the latter being offered against each of a dozen thoroughbreds.

BETHLEHEM DEFEATS PROVIDENCE, 3 TO 0, IN SOCCER MATCH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 17.—An invincible right wing, together with Stark at center forward played rings around the Providence defense to earn the Bethlehem Steel two points in the American Soccer League game played here today. The final score was 3 to 0.

The combination of Stark, Jaap and Gillespie proved the thorn to the ambition of the Whalers, for this trio were a continual threat and hovering quite often in the vicinity of the Providence goal.

BARTNETT OUT OF BEN MILLER LINEUP, TODAY

Suffered Dislocated Rib and Will be Replaced by Mike Delaney—Morgans May Stop Tablers.

By Dent McSkimming.

Dave Bartnett, the regular goaltender of the Ben Miller club of the American Soccer League, will miss today's game with the Wellstons and will be replaced by Mike Delaney, former understudy to Charley LaBarge of the Morgans. Bartnett was roughly handled by the Morgan forwards last Sunday and examination by a surgeon discovered a dislocated rib. He will probably be missing from the game for four weeks, Manager Billy Foley announced last night.

Delaney is a very capable substitute for Bartnett. The change does not necessarily result in a weakening of the Ben Miller defense.

The Shake-Up Goes On.

Foley plans further changes. He will have Allan Petersen back in the game at halfback and Jim Dunn will probably play one-half of the game at center forward. Fitzgerald is ready for a full hour of play now after his brief debut last Sunday. Tracy's suspension has been lifted and he may be used in the halfback line. All of these alterations are the result of Foley's dissatisfaction with the showing of his team in its last five games during the course of which it disipated a big lead and fell to second place.

The league leadership takes on added significance through the fact that the Christmas day game with the Chicago Bricklayers will be given to the team which is in first place after today's double-header. The Tablers, present occupants of the top rung in the ladder, have their work cut out for them in facing the Morgans. The latter club administered a fancy trimming the last time they met and has become even stronger since that time. No team in the league handles the ball in better style in clearing from the fullbacks to the forwards, a department of play in which St. Louis teams are never very strong. There is still a weakness at outside right, but if Manager Harry McCartney ever succeeds in landing Gene Thumm, the Morgans will be quite a match for any team in the league.

Marre to Stand Pat.

Unworried by the threat of the Morgans, John Marre will stand pat on his regular Tabler lineup.

Manager Tate Brady of the Wellstons will hold to his lineup of last Sunday for his game with the Ben Millers, which is the first on the program. The Tabler-Morgan game is the second game.

The league standing:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	Gb.	Ga.
Tablers	5	3	1	11	24	22
Ben Millers	4	3	2	10	21	16
Morgans	3	3	2	8	13	16
Wellstone	2	4	3	7	16	20

Value Increased.

THE 1930 Belmont Futurity, which closes for entries Jan. 1, 1928, will be the richest race of its kind. In that year the value will be $125,000. The last running of the Futurity, won by Anita Peabody, carried a value of $100,000. The race, for entire colts and fillies, is over the "about" seven furlongs route. The Westchester Racing Association will give $3000, $2000 and $1000 to the nominators of the first, second and third horses, respectively, at the finish of the race, whether they are the actual owners of the racers at the time or not.

The Belmont Futurity had its inauguration in 1888 at the Sheepshead Bay track, under the auspices of the Coney Island Jockey Club, and was won by Proctor Knott. The latter was a gelding and, of course, would not be eligible for the race today. The first Futurity was worth $40,900 to the winner. Among the past winners of the event will be found such good horses as Domino, Ormondale, Colin, Sweep, Pennant, Campfire, Man o' War, Bunting, Sally's Alley, St. James and Scapa Flow.

For New Orleans Handicap.

BLACK MARIA, William R. Coe's great filly, and the good sprinter, Pompey, also owned by Coe, will be shipped from New York to Nashville in the next few days to begin training for the rich New Orleans Handicap, at Fairgrounds. The weights for the Handicap have not been allotted, but it is expected that Black Maria will carry top impost. The pair of racers will be conditioned at the Tennessee track and a few days before the running of the Handicap will be shipped to the Fairgrounds. Black Maria has won close to $100,000 in her racing career and a victory in the Handicap will place her near the top of money-winning mares.

Trainer John Lowe, who has charge of the Coe racers, will also ship an extensive band of yearlings and older horses to Nashville for the winter. The horses are at present quartered at Belmont Park. Just before the opening of the Eastern spring meetings, the stable will be shipped back to Belmont. Twenty yearlings, headed by the $70,000 Hurry On colt, are in the Belmont string. In addition, 12 youngsters are in Kentucky.

Fator to Havana.

JOCKEY LAVERNE FATOR, one of the best riders in this country, has arrived at Miami on his way to Havana where he plans to ride this winter. Fator, under contract to Harry Sinclair's Rancocas Stable, has been on a vacation since the close of the Eastern racing season. He will ride free Lance at Havana.

Tommy Root, crack apprentice rider, whose riding contract is held by Mose Goldblatt, led the riders in earnings at Jefferson Park during the past week. Root drew $303 although he rode only two winners. P. Hebert was second with $272 and M. Meyer third with $230.

EAST AND WEST TIED IN VICTORIES IN TOURNAMENT OF ROSES TILTS

EACH HAS GAINED FOUR TRIUMPHS, WITH THREE TIES

Stanford and Pittsburg Will Try to Break Deadlock in Game at Pasadena Day After New Year's.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 17.—Pop Warner's Stanford Cardinals and Jock Sutherland's Pittsburg Panthers, main-eventers in Pasadena's next East-West football battle, will provide the thirteenth consecutive New Year contest held at the Rose Bowl since Washington State and Brown launched the intersectional series back in 1916. To date the records stand four victories for each with three ties.

The canny Warner, grooming his 1927 Cardinals at Palo Alto, isn't worrying about the thirteenth jinx, but he's frankly a bit concerned about the outcome of this affair with the Smoky City lads. Sutherland will have a powerful team on the field and the hopes of the East are riding high on the crest of the Panther invasion.

Some of the most famous football players in the country have paraded their grid wares in the Pacific Coast classic since the day when the Cougars repulsed a fighting Brown eleven, 14 to 0. Brick Muller, "Pesky" Sprott, Archie Nesbit, Berry, Mathews, Casey, Stinchcomb, Hoge Workman, Charlie Erb, Harry Wilson, Elmer Tesreau, Stein, Shapley, Ernie Nevers, Stuhldreher, Layden, Crowley, Miller, Walsh, Pooley Hubert, Johnny Mack Brown, George Wilson and many others are names that come most readily to mind when former East-West games at Pasadena are reviewed.

Penn Invaded Coast.

Pennsylvania journeyed West for the 1917 engagement and Oregon came down from the Northwest to carry the banner of the Pacific Coast. The Quakers, led by Captain Mathews, scrappy lineman, and presenting speedy backs in Berry, Light, Bell, Derr and others, fought to the last ditch, but Oregon was not to be denied and turned back to Penn invaders, 14 to 0.

Service teams held the Pasadena spotlight during the next two years when the World War broke in on the intersectional program. Mare Island Marines won from Camp Lewis, 19 to 7, in 1918, while the Great Lakes Naval Training Station upset the Mare Island eleven, 17 to 0, in 1919.

Harvard, with Horween, Casey and other stars in the lineup, repulsed a scrapping Oregon team, 7 to 6, in 1920. The Crimson swept to victory through the medium of forward passes from Murray to the speedy Casey, and a sensational run for a touchdown by Church. Oregon, failing to penetrate the Harvard defense, took to the air to score six points on drop kicks by Steers and Manerud.

The late Andy Smith had one of his Wonder teams in action in the 1921 classic in which California engulfed Ohio State, 28 to 0 The Bears, with Brick Miller tossing long passes, rode to victory on the crest of a sensational passing game. The Buckeyes presented Stinchcomb, Hoge Workman and other grid luminaries in this game, while California had Muller, Erb, Stevens, Nesbit, Sprott and others as headliners.

Play Scoreless Tie.

"Greasy" Neale brought a fighting Washington and Jefferson squad to the coast in 1922 to battle another great California eleven to a scoreless tie on a muddy gridiron. Led by Capt. Stein, the All-American forward, the W. and J. squad fought the Bears to a standstill in a game that spattered the football dope around in the Rose Stadium. Erickson featured in attack and defense for the Presidents, while Nesbit, Erb, McMillan and Latham were stars for the Golden Bears.

Southern California Trojans, with "Bullet" Baker, Kincaid, Galloway and other brilliant backs featuring in the attack, turned back the Penn State eleven in 1923. A field goal by Palm in the first quarter was State's only scoring, while the Trojans pushed across touchdowns in the second and third periods to take a 14-to-3 decision. Harry Wilson, great backfield star, who recently wound up a brilliant career with the Army eleven, was Penn State's fullback in this game.

Navy came West in 1924 and nearly sunk a good Washington team in a game in which the Huskies rallied in the final period to push across a touchdown and kick the goal that tied the score, 14 to 14. The Middies flashed into a sensational forward passing attack in the second period when Cullen and McKee crossed the Washington goal line and McKee added goals after touchdowns. The Huskies scored in the second period and rallied near the end of the game, when Abel threw a forward pass to Bryan for the second touchdown and Sherman converted for the tying point. Wilson was Washington's best ground gainer, and Shapley sparkled for the Navy until injured.

Four Horsemen Gallop.

Rockne and Warner fought it out at Pasadena in 1925 through the medium of Notre Dame and Stanford elevens, with the South Bend wizard gaining a decision, 27 to 10. Notre Dame's Four Horsemen, Harry Stuhldreher, Elmer Layden, Jim Crowley and Don Miller, rambled in high gear against the Cardinals. Layden three times crossed the Stanford goal line, once after a sensational 70-yard run that followed an intercepted pass. Ernie Nevers, Stanford's All-American fullback, was the Cardinal star despite the handicap of a pair of injured ankles.

Wallace Wade's Alabama squad came up from the South in 1926 and outscored a strong Washington team, 20 to 19, in the most sensational battle ever seen in the Rose Stadium. The Huskies, with All-America George Wilson, flashy halfback, swept to the 12-to-0 lead at half time, but the Crimson Tide refused to admit impending defeat. Wade's boys put on a scoring skit of their own in the third period, with "Pooley" Hubert bucking the line and Johnny Mack Brown returning punts and taking long passes behind the Husky defenders. Hubert personally escorted the oval once across Washington's goal and Brown scampered over twice as the Tide tallied 20 points to go out in front of the coast machine. The Huskies rallied to score seven points in the fourth period, but failure to kick goals on their first two touchdowns cost them a tie or a win.

Stanford and Alabama held the East-West spotlight in 1927 and battled to a deadlock, 7 to 7. The Cardinals were away to a flying start in the opening period when Walker scored a touchdown and Bogue kicked goal. Warner's men were held thereafter by a gallant Alabama defense, while the Tide rallied near the close of the fourth period, blocked a Stanford punt, and marched straight down to the Card goal, Johnson plunging for a touchdown just before the final whistle. Caldwell's goal kick knotted the count.

Warner or Sutherland? Stanford or Pittsburg? Thirteen bound to be unlucky for either the Cardinals or the Panthers at Pasadena in the 1928 classic—unless East or West battle to a tie.

Olympic Stadium Ready for Games

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Dec. 17.

THE stadium for next year's Olympiad is so near completion that it could be used next week if necessary.

The halls situated under the Marathon stand, the roof having been completed, could be used for practical purposes at a moment's notice. Work on the boxing hall, the fencing space, the Marathon tower and the swimming basin is in full swing and the task of laying out the grounds which are to be ornamented with shrubbery is also well under way.

HAMPTON, PRO GOLFER, GETS POST IN CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Dec. 17.—Harry Hampton, golf pro at the Memphis Country Club, and widely known as a tournament player, has resigned to become professional at the Beverly Country Club of Chicago. The announcement was made today.

Right Elbow Should Be Kept Close to Side When Driving Golf Ball, Bobby Jones Says

Allowing Right Elbow to Go Up on Drive Often Causes Ball to Hook— National Champion Cites Several Examples.

By Bobby Jones,

(National Amateur, British Open and Southern Open Champion.)

I am wondering just now if any public-spirited person can develop a foolproof golfing style. If so, I should like to place my order immediately. A week or so ago an unfortunate accident befell my favorite driver in my absence and I was forced to try a new one, and I drove wretchedly with it. Self-complacently, I laid the blame upon the club, heaping more and more fervent maledictions upon the head of the destroyer of my old one. The new one was a copy of the old, made by Jack White, and so far as I could tell, was quite like it. But I could not prevent a smothered hook off nearly every tee, although I could discover nothing wrong with my swing or timing.

Finally, quite accidentally, I located the trouble in a quarter where I least expected to find it. Invariably, when I begin hooking, I can stop it by hitting in close with my left hand; not cutting across the ball, but simply bringing my left arm through close to my left side. That usually works because it prevents taking the ball too much upward and outward. But it was no cure in this case.

JONES.

To come to the point, the trouble was in the right elbow which insisted upon going up like the wing of a bird attempting to fly. Now, while it would occur to me last of all to look there for the fault, the manner in which the trouble was caused was quite obvious, once I discovered what I was doing.

Face Shut at Impact.

When my right elbow went up, the natural and inevitable consequence was that my right hand should turn with it. This, in turn, meant that one of two things must happen. Either the hand would turn the club with it and shut the face at the top of the swing, in which position it would remain throughout the stroke; or the hand would turn on the club and the face would be shut when the hands came in normal position to the ball. In either case, the result was the same as if I had addressed the ball with my right hand underneath the club, in the hooking position. The face was bound to be shut at impact.

Of course, the proper place for the right elbow is as close to the side as is possible without cramping. There is no necessity to hold it tightly in, but no daylight ought to pass under it, at least until the very top of the swing is reached. Even when I am swinging well, my elbow leaves my side at the top, but it does so only because it is a characteristic of my style that my hands are very high at the top. To reach this position, the elbow must go up some, but it does so only in the last few inches. The important thing is that it does not go up with respect to the club, the right forearm remaining in a nearly vertical position.

I doubt if Tommy Armour's elbow leaves his side at all when he is playing an iron. But his wrists break and the club goes barely over his shoulder. All this gives the appearance of great compactness and is very effective.

Duncan Raises Elbow.

To show that lifting the right elbow is a recognized cause of hooking, I shall repeat from George Duncan the method he advocates for a controlled draw. Year before last, at Muirfield, when George was trying to show me how to hold an iron shot into a left hand wind, he demonstrated how he did it with his right elbow, raising it slightly at the top of his swing. I must confess that the adjustment required more control than I had and would not work for me, but the principle is sound.

However, for most of us, I think the lifting of the right elbow should be regarded as a serious fault and should be scrupulously avoided. If we are going to do any fancy stuff, it would be better to find another way to do it.

Blues to Play in Memphis Again

Pro Gridders Given Return Date for Next Sunday After 0-0 Tie.

A little Southern hospitality has fallen into the path of the St. Louis Blues, professional football team, in the shape of an invitation to return to Memphis, Tenn., next Sunday for a second game with the Memphis Hurricanes.

The Blues played in Memphis last Sunday, the game resulting in a scoreless tie. Rain all night before the game and all day Sunday made the field a sea of mud and reduced the Blues' chances of scoring. The Blues welcomed a chance at another test.

It is likely that some new faces will show with the Blues next Sunday.

One possible addition is Art Coglizer, former star end at Missouri University. Coglizer has played with Red Grange's New York Yankees since leaving Missouri. He will be remembered as the player who kicked Missouri to a 3-0 verdict over University of Chicago for the Tigers' first victory over a Big Ten team.

Tyrell Named Captain.

Maxwell Tyrell, quarterback, was elected captain of the Webster Groves High School football squad for 1928 at a banquet at the school last night. Letters were awarded to 23 players and numerals to 14.

Dr. W. P. Edmunds, Washington University athletic director, was the chief speaker.

SCHOOL TO KEEP BOBBY JONES OUT OF BRITISH OPEN

He Announces He Will Be Unable to Defend That Title, but Will Compete in U. S. Events.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 17.—Bobby Jones, whose wizardry on the links astounded Great Britain last summer, does not expect to defend his British open golf title next year but will play in the American open and American amateur tournaments.

This was announced today by the British open and American amateur champion, who added that classes at the Emory University law school would prevent him from returning to Great Britain.

Pointing out that the British open will be held in May and that his school does not close until June, Bobby said:

"I simply can't do it. I've got to finish out this term at Emory."

He added that his golfing activities for 1928 would probably consist in competition only in the two major American events, although he indicated he might enter the Southern open, which he won last spring, if that tournament is held in Atlanta again.

The American open, to be held at Olympia Field, Chicago, in June, and the amateur at Braeburn, West Newton, Mass., in September, will not interfere with his college work.

Only this week he stood the Georgia bar examinations but will not know the result for another week.

Jones' announcement bore a mark of finality, unlike his statement preceding the last open in Great Britain, when he thought he would be unable to go, but later found it possible, his decision then coming just in time to allow him to get to the scene.

Bobby won the British open both in 1926 and 1927, his 285 last summer having cut six strokes from the record for the 72-hole event.

Three Collegiate Theatrical Productions During Holidays

Yale Glee Club and Harvard Instrumental Club in Joint Appearance Next Friday—Princeton Triangle Club, Dec. 28—Haresfoot Club of University of Wisconsin, Dec. 30—Entertainment Planned for Casts.

THE appearance in St. Louis of three college musical organizations during the Christmas season will give a distinct collegiate atmosphere to holiday entertaining. Theater parties by the dozen are being arranged for the debutantes and the school set to attend their shows; dinners are being planned to precede them, and the men themselves will be entertained at debut balls, tea dances and smokers.

The Haresfoot Club of the University of Wisconsin will make its second appearance in St. Louis in "Feature That!" at the Odeon, Dec. 30. The play has been written by Jack Mason and William Rahr, both students at the University, and is the club's thirtieth annual musical comedy. Hollywood is the setting for the play, a satire on motion pictures, and its plot deals with the two children of a wealthy California orange grower, who are anxious to further their Thespian ambitions and persuade their father to advance funds to feature them in a movie along with well-known actors and actresses. The atmosphere of the motion picture studio will be featured, and gorgeously gowned "ladies," brawny heroes of the films and hysterical directors will play in the glare and crackle of Kleig lights. The Haresfoot Club was one of the six college musical comedy clubs recently made members of the College Musical Comedy League formed by Louis E. Laflin, a graduate of Princeton University.

The Yale Glee Club and Harvard Instrumental Club's dual concert at the Odeon on Friday evening, Dec. 23, will be a leading social event of this week, the combination of the two clubs interesting a majority of the social leaders of the city. The boxes, which were allotted by draw, fell to Mrs. Harry Potter, Mrs. Henry C. Scott, Mrs. Thomas Skinker Maffitt, Mrs. Guilford Duncan, Mrs. Douglas B. Houser, Mrs. Howard V. Stephens, Mrs. Vincent L. Price, Mrs. George S. Drake, Jr., Mrs. John F. Shepley, Mrs. L. Ray Carter, Mrs. Harold Kauffman, Mrs. Harry B. Wallace, Mrs. Fred B. Eisman, Mrs. J. Howard Holmes, Mrs. Albert T. Perkins, Mrs. Edward Mallinckrodt Jr., Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones, Mrs. C. Hunt Turner Jr., Mrs. Walter Fischel, Mrs. Charles W. Moore, Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, Mrs. Alvin D. Goldman, Mrs. Fred J. Taussig, Mrs. George T. Moore, Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, Mrs. Archer T. O'Reilly, Mrs. Sears Lehmann and Mrs. J. P. Talbot.

Many of the debutantes will be guests in the boxes and many more in the parquet. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cuendet and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth, will have a party of 30 debutantes and their escorts, honoring Miss Margaret Burkham. The debutantes in this group include Miss Martha Pettus, Miss Carol McDonald, Miss Kathleen Sheldon, Miss Frances Wilson, Miss Julia Wells, Miss Janet Douglas Shields, Miss Lucy Turner, Miss Anne Davis, Miss Janet Gardner, Miss Florence Ludington and Miss Loraine Grover.

Following the concert, the Yale contingent will be taken to the Country Club to attend Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Holmes' debut ball for their daughter, Miss Mary Brooks Holmes. The Harvard group leaves for Detroit immediately after the concert. On Saturday the Yale men will be guests of Miss Grace Moulton and brother, William Moulton, at a tea dance in the Palm Room of the Chase Hotel. Mr. Moulton is a graduate of the Yale class of 1927. The entire club leaves the afternoon of Christmas day.

"Napoleon Passes" is the title of this year's vehicle of the Princeton Triangle Club to play at the Odeon Dec. 28. One of the interesting features of the performance is the leading lady role to be taken by Philip R. Holmes of New York, sophomore, a transfer student from Cambridge University in England, who has played leading parts with the Cambridge Footlights Club.

The history of the Princeton Triangle Club, claimed as one of the oldest dramatic organizations, is an outgrowth of the Princeton Dramatic Club founded in 1882. Through the influence of Booth Tarkington, one of its early presidents, the policy was changed from presenting only classical productions to producing the playwrighting of undergraduates.

After the performance in St. Louis, the men will attend the debut ball of Miss Kathryn Blair, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vilray Papin Blair of 5 Kingsbury place, at the St. Louis Country Club.

Miss Margaret Page Weisiger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cary N. Weisiger Jr., of Evanston, Ill., is expected to arrive Christmas day to visit Miss Janet Douglas Shields, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shields of 6459 Wydown boulevard. She will be a guest at the tea dance which Mr. and Mrs. Shields will give at the St. Louis Country Club the afternoon of Dec. 28, for the Princeton Triangle Club. John Adams of New York, a student at Yale University, and William Robinson of Philadelphia, a Princeton student, also will be guests at the Shields home during the holidays.

MISS JANE PIRRUNG,
debutante daughter of Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord, who will make her debut Wednesday night at a dinner dance at Hotel Coronado.

Rose Ball Debut For Miss Burkham

A PINK rose ball, said by tradition to be the perfect setting for a debutante party, was the happy choice of Miss Margaret Burkham, feted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkham, whose popularity is evinced by the fact that she has been in more receiving lines than perhaps any other bud of the season, for her presentation to society Friday night at the St. Louis Country Club.

Thousands of Columbia roses clung to latticed smilax which completely covered the interior of the club, and rambled in colorful confusion over a pergola at the end of the east room. The lights were shaded in rose petal balls, enhanced by smilax branches and roses which hung from the chandelier tops. Dinner was served at long tables glistening with more than 40 lovely silver candelabra and vases of hundreds of pink roses and stevia.

Miss Burkham was gowned in white taffeta and silver and her mother wore a white beaded gown. Among the guests was William Meloy of Chicago, a senior at Yale, who is visiting at the Burkham home.

The debutantes at the U-shaped table for them and their escorts were Miss Lucy Turner, Miss Margaret Sims of Washington, D. A Woman's Logic

By ANNE SIDNEY BANKS

Why do I, a woman, surround myself with a man's atmosphere when I buy gifts for a man? It seems to me of all things the most logical and natural. It makes it easier to think as a man thinks and choose as he would choose. And so I buy my gifts for men at a man's store, the store in fact they prefer themselves and of course that narrows it down to Boyd's—at Sixth and Olive. It is as simple as two and two.

Besides, it is pure delight to shop in the quiet unhurried atmosphere of Boyd's. I like the repose, the feeling of space and the utter confidence that here I can choose with impunity, for their standards are as exacting as my own. I do not hesitate to take advice which I know to be authoritative. And almost best of all is the fine courtesy with which each salesman receives you. I stay until all my masculine list is checked off and then I go away less tired than when I came.

I shop where a man would shop—at Boyd's . . . at St. Louis' greatest store for men.

On Christmas Day

Proclaim—glad throats—your joyful messages!

Ring out—chiming bells—your carols of acknowledgment!

Throughout all Christendom every heart should rejoice with one accord—on the Birthday of the Savior!

This is joy-time for all mankind—and praise-time for Him whose life is an eternal lamp to guide us aright—whose death is an everlasting memorial of unselfishness.

May the Angel of Peace hover ever near us—may soulful charity ever prevail among us—and may the gladness which He taught be shared—each with the other alike—unto the end!

Experts and Laymen Discuss Gov. Smith's Proposed Board To Fix Punishment for Crime

In General, Specialists Indorse and Laymen Oppose Suggestion That Judges and Juries Have Nothing to Do With Fixing Penalty—Clarence Darrow, Warden Lawes of Sing Sing and Prosecutors Approve; Martin W. Littleton and Four Jurors in Snyder-Gray Murder Trial Object.

By PAUL SIFTON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.

GOV. SMITH proposes that New York make the punishment fit the criminal as well as the crime. Speaking before the State Crime Commission recently he recommended the transfer of the sentencing power in felony cases from juries and Judges to a board of expert psychiatrists, lawyers, psychologists, penologists and representatives for a lay public. For, he argued, juries, especially in murder cases, consider the penalty attached to a verdict of guilty.

"The power of a Judge to sentence to death has done more than anything else to prevent convictions for murder in the first degree," said Gov. Smith. "The jury in felony cases ought to determine only the guilt or innocence of the person on trial.

"If the accused is adjudged guilty, he should be turned over to the State for disposition, to be determined by a special board."

The Governor's proposal has been widely approved by the public. Last week Charles H. Tuttle, United States District Attorney, interpreted this approval as "a drift away from the courts as the exclusive repository of the administration of justice."

Others familiar with the administration of criminal law and the treatment of criminals view the Governor's recommendation more as an aid to Judges and juries in the exact determination of justice.

Experts Favor Change, But Laymen Prefer Present System

According to comments gathered by the New York World from District Attorneys, State officials, prominent criminal lawyers, members of the Snyder-Gray jury and others, most of the expert opinion favors the change, while the layman is inclined to keep the present method.

Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing prison and an international authority on prison administration and reform, draws on his own experience to prove that at present, similar sentences are not given for similar crimes by all Judges. Warden Lawes also answers one of the chief objections to the Smith proposal, namely, the charge that such a board would be unduly lenient with prisoners, forgetting the victims and the safety of society. Here is Warden Lawes' statement:

"Gov. Smith's proposal of a commission of experts for sentencing felons after an exhaustive examination following conviction marks, I believe, the beginning of a new epoch in which crime and criminals will be handled in a business-like and common sense way.

"It is high time that the hazy precedents, established when tallow candles were the acme of lighting and the ox-cart the chief method of transportation, be displaced by methods and processes adapted to an age of electric lights and automobile and airplane transportation. I consider the Governor's plan scientifically sound and thoroughly feasible.

Looks for Longer Terms if New Plan Is Given Test

"Under the present system, with approximately 170 trial Judges in New York, it is inevitable that we should have almost as many different kinds and ideas of justice in the matter of sentences meted out to offenders. My study of the sentences of the Judges of the Sing Sing district shows great inconsistencies, some Judge being uniformly severe on the average, while other Judges in the same jurisdiction are uniformly lenient. A Judge must necessarily have the background and viewpoint of the law and cannot in the short time he has a man under observation during a trial and for a few days before sentence form an accurate idea of the time that will be required to correct the convicted man of his anti-social tendencies.

"Contrary to uninformed opinion, a commission such as Gov. Smith suggests would mean longer sentences on the average than under the present system, because now many men must, under the law, be released before they are prepared to re-enter society and become useful citizens. It will not, therefore, be popular with the professional criminals nor the shyster lawyers who live off of them. There is no reason to believe that such a commission would be open to political or other sinister influences—a body of similar standing, the Supreme Court, is above such influences.

"I commend the Governor's proposal to the careful consideration of every thinking man."

Gov. Smith urged that to get the best men available, members of the board be paid as much as the Governor, $25,000 a year. The convicted criminal would be put under observation in a prison clearing house and sentenced only after all the facts relating to his crime and himself had been studied. The members of the crime commission are in accord with his suggestion that the plan be made the subject for an exhaustive inquiry during the next year.

Author of Baumes Law Sees Merit in the Idea

State Senator Caleb H. Baumes, chairman of the State Crime Commission, believes that the Smith proposal has much to recommend it and deserves careful study by the commission and discussion by the public.

Senator Baumes pointed out that the sentencing board would be, in effect, a new court. He added that the chief difficulty would be in finding the right men for the work and to appoint them without impairing public confidence in their work before they began.

"Gov. Smith's proposal is not a new one, but it takes on added importance because it has been recommended by him after careful consideration," Senator Baumes said. "I believe that the commission agrees with his recommendation establishing a board of parole, consisting of the State Commissioner of Correction, the warden of the prison in which the prisoner is confined, and a third member who would give his full time to the work, and also with his belief that probation should remain a local function.

"The plan to transfer the power of passing sentence in felony cases from the Judge to a board is a matter for study and discussion by the commission and the public. At present it is largely an academic question. But the Governor's recommendation has great value in developing public thought and knowledge regarding our judicial procedure.

"It would mean the establishment of a new court for examining and sentencing. There is much to be said in favor of its establishment. At present this work is done by Judges in chambers in the few days intervening between the time the jury returns its verdict and the day set for sentence. A board of the type recommended by the Governor would have more time, more facilities for investigation and greater special knowledge than are at the disposal of the Judges.

Fearful of Experts' Squabblings and of the Religious Questions

"But there are some practical difficulties. Probably the greatest problem would be the selection of the right men to sit in this sentencing court. For instance, I am afraid that, whether the membership were five or 10, the question of religious representation would be raised, and not by one denomination more than another.

"At the hearings of the crime commission we have had psychiatrists tell us that, in their opinion, nine out of 10 persons who plead insanity as a defense are sane. Others have argued that all persons who break the law are maladjusted and in need of treatment. How would an expert between the two extremes be chosen to the satisfaction of everybody?

"In its work the board would be expected to bear in mind the victim and the welfare of society while dealing with the criminal up for sentence. A properly constituted board would do this and might be much better than the present system."

To the professional criminal, Senator Baumes probably is an iron-visaged avenger. Really, he is a kindly faced, slow spoken man with a quiet faith in tried institutions. He hardens only when he speaks of the professional criminal whom the laws bearing his name have driven behind bars, beyond the borders of the State or into making an honest living.

"I don't believe the jury system is so bad," he said. "Most of the time juries return sensible verdicts and we hear nothing about it. Once in a while a jury turns in what we call a 'fool verdict' and we hear a lot about it. The work of the jury is for the most part very good. It would be much better if many

Map of Engineers' Flood Control Plan

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.

THE "official" flood control program, prepared by Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, and submitted to Congress by the President, will if adopted, radically change the methods heretofore used by the Federal Government in its efforts to prevent floods on the lower Mississippi River.

Jadwin proposed an abandonment of the old "levees only" policy followed for so many years by the Mississippi River Commission, and advocated the modified use of spillways, floodways and a widening of the "bottlenecks" which have sent flood waters to unprecedented high levels. He also proposed abandonment of the present thirty-three and one-third per cent local co-operation policy and substituted a plan whereby the local authorities would bear only 20 per cent of the engineering costs.

The outstanding features of the engineers' plan were as follows:

1. Expenditure of $296,400,000 within 10 years, of which $185,400,000 would be for flood control works and $111,000,000 for channel stabilization (navigation) and mapping. The valley states would pay approximately 20 per cent or $37,440,000 of the $185,400,000 expended for flood control works. The initial appropriation should be at least $25,000,000.

Locating the Floodways.

2. Creation of floodways from Cairo to New Madrid from the Arkansas River through the Tensas Basin to the Red River, and from the Red River through the Atchafalaya Basin to the Gulf of Mexico. These floodways would relieve the main channel of the water it could not carry and lower the floods to stages at which the levees, slightly raised, could carry them.

3. Erection of a controlled spillway above New Orleans.

4. Local setting back of the levees in the main river at "bottle necks" to increase its carrying capacity and reduce its flood heights.

5. Moderate raising of the present levees.

6. Progressive revetment of caving banks to protect the foundation of the levees and to stabilize the river both for flood control and navigation.

7. Improvement of the channel between Cairo and New Orleans to insure a permanent nine-foot channel 300 feet wide.

8. Modification of status of Mississippi River Commission over whose actions the Secretary of War now has only veto power. Jadwin would make the commission an advisory body, under the direction of the Secretary of War and the chief of engineers. The president of the commission would have the rank, pay and allowances of a Brigadier-General, and would have the same qualifications as an assistant chief of engineers.

9. Establishment of a hydraulic laboratory to make experiments and serve as a clearing house for flood control data.

10. Continuation of Mississippi flood control work, heretofore authorized, but not mentioned in the present report.

"The plan is a comprehensive one, providing for the maximum flood predicted as possible, and for future expansion to meet changing conditions," Jadwin said. "It gives the maximum of results for the minimum of costs. It recognizes the interests and protects the rights of those who will be chiefly benefited and of the taxpayers who furnish the funds. Complete flood control embodying the cheapest practicable reservoir system would be much more expensive."

Opposition Is Certain.

DESPITE these superlatives there will be considerable opposition to the engineers' program. The opposition will be made up of persons who favor reservoirs, citizens of the valley who will demand that the Federal Government pay all the costs, and residents of the proposed floodway sections who will insist that their farms shall not be sacrificed.

Chairman Reid expects that his flood control committee will be able to report out a flood control bill shortly after the first of the year.

Jadwin, in his report, has attempted to answer many of the arguments that will be advanced by the advocates of other plans. He did this by attempting to show that they were either too expensive or impracticable from an engineering standpoint. To some of the proposals, such as reservoirs, he gave a qualified approval. In answer to others, such as comprehensive handling of the Mississippi and its tributaries, as advocated by Senator Harry B. Hawes in his "Missouri plan," he pointed out that the engineers' survey for all the rivers in the valley had not yet been completed.

Jadwin distributed the costs of the recommended project in the following manner:

From Cape Girardeau to Arkansas River, levees, $53,900,000.

Arkansas River to Red River, levees, $59,300,000.

Boeuf floodway, $7,700,000.

Below Red River, floodway west of Atchafalaya, $17,300,000; floodway east of Atchafalaya, $12,600,000; levees, $18,700,000; Bonnet Carre spillway, $8,200,000; auxiliary levees, $7,700,000; channel stabilization, $110,000,000; mapping, $1,000,000. Total, $296,400,000.

"The portion of the alluvial valley from Cape Girardeau to Cairo can be protected by a slight increase in the size of the levees," Jadwin reported. "The serious problem begins at Cairo at the confluence of the Ohio and the Mississippi. From here to New Madrid the main levee on the west bank chokes the river unduly and should be set back sufficiently to lower the head of water at Cairo by six feet in an extreme flood. The existing river bank levee will be retained but lowered five feet. The floodway between the old and the new levee will be capable of cultivation at all times excepting in floods greater than that of 1922.

Where Levees Will Be Raised.

"FROM New Madrid south to the mouth of the Arkansas, the levees will be raised moderately. Local setbacks will be made below Helena and at other bottle necks where necessary to restore greater cross sections in the main river. These modified works are designed to carry the highest predicted flood except that it may be found expedient not to raise the levee opposite the backwater areas of the St. Francis and the White Rivers. In this event, if a possible superflood comes, it may cause a crevasse at these points, increasing somewhat the height and acreage of the backwater area, but doing comparatively little harm.

"From the mouth of the Arkansas to the old river, at the mouth of the Red, extreme floods cannot be carried between the levees of the Mississippi without dangerous increase in their heights. A floodway for excess floods is provided down the Boeuf River, on the west side of the river. Excess water cannot be carried through the section on the east side since it would be forced back into the main river by the highlands on the east bank below Vicksburg and would have to be carried thence for 160 miles between the main river levees to the mouth of the Red River.

"The entrance to the floodway (on the west side) is closed by a safety plug section of the levee, at present grade, which is located at Cypress Creek near the mouth of the Arkansas. To insure safety, the levees of the Mississippi, from the Arkansas to the Red, will be raised about three feet. To prevent flood waters from entering the Tensas Basin, except into the floodway during high floods, the levees on the south side of the Arkansas will be strengthened, and raised about three feet as far upstream as necessary."

"Safety Plug" Explained.

THE "safety plug" section mentioned in the preceding paragraph is a low levee over which high flood waters could flow. It would protect the land in the floodway only from a moderate flood.

"The section at the head of the floodway will protect the land within the floodway levees against any flood up to one of the magnitude of the 1922 flood," Jadwin continued. "A flood of a magnitude between that of 1922 and 1927 will break it, turning the excess down the floodway, which will carry it safely to the backwater area at the mouth of the Red River.

"Below the Red River, setbacks of the levees will be made at critical places in the main river to insure the better discharge of the flood waters, but the carrying capacity of the main river cannot be increased materially without hazard to life and property in the State of Louisiana.

"At the city of New Orleans, an increase in levee height is considered unsafe, aside from the great cost of raising the levees and the wharves built upon them. To afford proper protection to New Orleans, with its population of nearly half a million and property value of over a billion dollars, a special floodway upstream from the city is essential. The most practical location is on the east side of the river discharging into Lake Pontchartrain. A controlled spillway at Bonnet Carre will limit the discharge through this floodway to that necessary for the protection of the city.

"At high floods it is also necessary to divert down the Atchafalaya Basin the flood waters in excess of the discharge capacity between the levees of the Mississippi. This is accomplished by strengthening and raising the levees on the main river three feet for the necessary distance to assure their safety until the levees at the head of the Atchafalaya Basin can be opened.

"The levees on the south bank of the Red River will be strengthened and raised sufficiently to keep flood waters from entering the Atchafalaya Basin except in the floodway, through the relief or safety plug levee at the head of the floodway. Back levees are to be constructed on both sides of the Atchafalaya Basin for the major part of its length, to inclose the Atchafalaya floodway."

Small Area Unprotected.

IN summing up what could be accomplished by his recommendations, Jadwin stated that if there were no protecting works on the Mississippi, approximately 30,000 square miles would be flooded.

"Under the plan recommended, barring accident, approximately 20,550 miles will be protected annually," Jadwin said. "The remaining 9450 square miles, of which approximately 2340 square miles are cleared land, will be protected on an average of from two years in three to 14 in 15 years, depending upon its location. The remaining 6110 square miles are swamp and timber land which is not injured by flood."

Jadwin did not take up in his report any recommendations regarding the reimbursement of the local levee boards, made virtually bankrupt by the 1927 flood. In defense of his proposal for 20 per cent local co-operation, however, he advanced considerable in-

On Prince Obelensky's Talk About Conditions in Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HOW much longer will it be necessary for the world to wait before the truth will be told about the Russian revolution of 1917? Recently Prince Alexis Obelensky spoke at Howard Hall on bolshevik Russia and education in that land particularly. My impression of the speech is that it was a glorification of the old regime. Aside from this bias, which, of course, is natural from one who has lost position, property and all that is so dear to the aristocrat, the speech was of real interest. His position is now no doubt similar to that of a gentleman of the Old South immediately after our Civil War when he had lost the war as well as his divine right to his slaves. The difference is that the Russian aristocrat has lost his divine right to property which someone else created for him in 90 cases out of 100.

Let me say at once that I don't think communism is a form of government which will be finally accepted by us or any other part of the world permanently, but this is certainly no reason why we today should look upon it in the same way that the ecclesiastics looked upon discoveries by Galileo, Kepler and others of the sixteenth century. The Russian idea of government is an experiment the same as scientists make in chemistry or any other science.

Now to some of the things raised in the Prince's talk. He points out that in 1909 Russia had 135,000 schools but that in 1924 under the present government there were only 40,000 schools. Everyone knows that figures don't lie, but figures can be juggled. I have not before me the exact official figures to indicate the number of schools now maintained in Russia, but do recall 65 per cent of all Russians were in 1926 literate while up to 1914 the largest number was not over 18 or 20 per cent. Your paper quotes Obelensky: "A schoolmistress must teach in her home for they have no fires in the schools. The children come to her home and sit on the floor in the dirt." This is a piece of bad reporting as Prince Obelensky pointed out this to be only an instance and probably not true of more than two dozen schools in all Russia. The matter of school teachers' pay in Russia was also stressed as being only $14 a month, whereas typists receive three times as much. I believe you will agree that our school teachers, while being paid a bit better than the typists, certainly are not the best paid in American life.

The Prince called attention to the alleged large appropriations made for schools in 1908 and 1909 and said that the Czar's government expected to obliterate illiteracy by 1925. Further in his discourse he called attention to the mental difference of the Russian soldier (1914) to English, French and American soldiers, saying they had no idea what they were fighting for. If they had spent so much for education from 1908 to 1914, surely the soldiers would at least have had the fundamentals of European history and law. Or was this money spent to educate the nobility?

Surely the Russians won't find it easy to manage an economic as well as political democracy. On this point one will find an article of interest by Prof. Jerome Davis in the December issue of Current History. Writing in Commerce and Finance, Sept. 17, 1924, Joseph Newberger says: "25 years ago, you could have seen great farms stretching away sometimes to the horizon with a grand mansion and spacious park-like grounds in the center and learn that Prince this or Count that owned all these ten, twenty, fifty, one hundred or two hundred thousand acres. You would see women bareheaded and poorly clothed working in the fields with the men. No, the Prince or Count was not at home. He was living sumptuously in Paris or some other pleasant place, or touring the world in his yacht, or otherwise disporting himself on the wealth which the old economic system was wringing from these peasants who had barely enough to keep body and soul together. Today the Prince and Count are still abroad, but wherever they are, or whatever else they are doing, they are not living riotously on the labor of Russian peasants."

Mr. Newberger further states, "The people now have the land and are working it for themselves. Is not this as it should be? Moreover they (bolsheviks) have gone to the Mosaic law for a model for their revenue system, the peasants yielding up to the government for its support the tenth part of their increase. Was the lawgiver of Israel a bolshevik?" etc.

ANATOLE MYSLIKIN.

Suggested Motto.

THE IMPEACHMENT CHAMPION

An editorial from the Daily Oklahoman, reprinted elsewhere on this page, charges the people of Oklahoma with responsibility for the State's bizarre and distressing record in the impeachment of its Governors. The indictment, though drawn in dignified language, is forceful, severe and an undeniably true bill.

The miserable history of Oklahoma's treatment of her Governors poses this question: Are the people of that State capable of self-government? Decidedly so, judged by their industrial, economic, educational and social record. Their story, written in the script and sacrifice of pioneerdom, is an Iliad of the Southwest. Politically they have failed badly.

Academic speculation could doubtless contrive a plausible thesis on "Why Oklahoma Leads the Impeachment League." But let us look at the facts. A land, which within the memory of men still in early middle age, was prairie, forest and semi-arid desert, is now a teeming, prosperous Commonwealth. The desert sprawling out in sour, forbidding impotence is now leagues of varied fertility. In popular imagination Oklahoma may be a Pacific of petroleum, but when the last oil well has oozed its final drop, the farms of Oklahoma will be yielding a greater treasure than was ever evoked by the twin magicians, Drill and Derrick. Could Coronado and his clanging troopers come that way again they would find a remembered wilderness vibrating with the throb and thrust of many cities.

These things do not just happen. They are the handiwork of a competent people. "The growth of the soil" is the miracle of human character. Oklahoma is the product of Oklahomans.

Among such a people is there no one capable of filling the office of Governor? Men of gubernatorial quality can be found in every city of the State and on hundreds of farms. Why are they not found? Why are not the ablest available men drafted for that office in Missouri, or any other state? Why is it that only a small minority of us anywhere vote in the primary? Why do we let nominations practically go by default? We do not know. But everybody does know that men climb into office now by way of the primary who would never have been heard of in a delegate convention.

Oklahoma is confronted by a singularly urgent necessity of devising a more dependable method for selecting its candidates for Governor. If it could junk partisan politics and unite on a man of known character and capacity the ghost of impeachment would no longer haunt its Capitol. Is that a counsel of perfection? Then why not let both parties try choosing their candidates—just once—by delegate convention? A welcome experiment, we should think, in view of the primary's procession of fiascoes.

A SATIRIST SPEAKS OUT OF TURN.

As official satirist for the Democratic minority Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi contributes more or less to the gayety of the nation. That is an important role. Most of us find the solemn diet of the "grand, gloomy and peculiar" statesmen rather wearisome unless leavened now and then by raillery. But if any man should pray devoutly for the wisdom of the serpent it is the satirist; he needs it; he needs to know when to do his stuff and when to be as silent as the grave.

In attempting to spoof the progressive Republicans for the truce they may have entered into with the Regulars, and the awards received in the form of committee chairmanships and appointments in the organization of the Senate, Mr. Harrison found a touchy audience. Vehement denials were made of any bargaining, of any surrender of convictions. Moreover, the critic was tartly informed that if the Democrats had a program of liberal legislation which included genuine relief for the farmer and honest tariff revision, the Progressives would gladly support it.

Unfortunately the Democrats have no such program, nor have they the leadership capable of formulating such a program. In consequence, the bantering interlude of the Mississippi humorist ended in a somewhat doleful denouement.

STUDENTS SENSE THE DANGER.

In a recent letter to the Post-Dispatch a discerning student of Webster College, Webster Groves, condemns the campaign now under way to federalize our public schools through the creation of a Federal Department of Education, headed by a secretary who would sit in the Cabinet. It is gratifying to realize that students themselves perceive the dangers in such a proposal.

The objections are fundamental and constitutional. As Prof. Amos S. Hershy said in discussing the Japanese school question:

> The writer, although by no means a strict constructionist, does not believe that the Federal Government has the right by treaty or otherwise to encroach upon the police power or reserved rights of the states to the extent of directing or controlling their public school systems. If there are any constitutional limitations upon the treaty-making power, if the states retain any autonomy whatever, they surely preserve a right to the exclusive control of the schools which they maintain out of their resources. What greater trespass upon the province of self-government, what more serious violation of fundamental rights can be imagined than Federal interference with the state's management of its own schools? If our Federal Government should barter away such fundamental rights as these, and the courts hold such action constitutional, then the double structure of State and Federal government which our fathers reared will crumble into ruins, and a new centralized edifice will take its place, in which the states will be reduced to mere provinces, or administrative units.

SEDATIV OR IRRITANT?

An Eastern journal thinks it has found a healing balm to counteract the effects of our conduct in Latin America. In a Department of Commerce report, it has discovered that we are annually exporting many millions of dollars' worth of toys to countries below the Rio Grande. Arise, then, the internationalism of the child to offset the imperialism of the parents.

That, at least, is the way our Eastern contemporary figures it all out, and we fervently hope it is right. If anything so convenient as a toy can heal the effect which our marines and money lenders have had on the Latin Americans, we are all for giving them our entire output of toys.

But while we are contemplating the effect upon the child, let us not forget how the father may be taking it. Is the Nicaraguan, Mexican or Santo Domingoan, or even the Chilean, Argentinian or Brazilian papa likely to think any more of America because our traders have caused his offspring to become discontented with their toys of mud, and to bawl for electric railways and dolls that speak and close their eyes?

We feel pretty certain that the answer of our Eastern contemporary to this question would be the same as ours.

PRIVILEGE FOR FEDERAL OFFICIALS.

In the debates in the Virginia convention in 1788 on the adoption of the Federal Constitution, George Mason expressed great alarm over the extent of jurisdiction proposed for the Federal courts. He said:

> "All cases in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, and the laws of the United States," take in all the officers of government. They comprehend all those who act as collectors of taxes, excisemen, etc. It will take in, of course, what others do to them, and what is done by them to others. In what predicament will our citizens then be? We know the difficulty we are put in by our own courts, and how hard it is to bring officers to justice even in them.
> If any of the Federal officers should be guilty of the greatest oppressions, or behave with the most insolent and wanton brutality to a man's wife or daughter, where is this man to get relief? If you suppose in the inferior (Federal) courts, they are not appointed by the states. They are not men in whom the community can place confidence. It will be decided by Federal Judges.

John Marshall, afterwards Chief Justice, replied to Mason, saying:

> But the honorable member objects to it, because he says that the officers of the Government will be screened from merited punishment by the Federal judiciary. The Federal Sheriff, he says, will go into a poor man's house and beat him, or abuse his family, and the Federal court will protect him. Does any gentleman believe this? * * * There is no clause in the Constitution which bars the individual member injured from applying to the state courts to give him redress.

Mason's fears proved unfounded, inasmuch as Congress did not withdraw Federal officers from the jurisdiction of the state courts for criminal acts done under the color of office until 1833, when South Carolina was practically in rebellion against the United States and forcibly opposed the collection of Federal revenue. In the Force bill of that year Congress provided that any revenue officer prosecuted for an act done under color of his office could transfer the case to the Federal courts. Recently prohibition agents have been permitted to avail themselves of this special justice, although there exists no such emergency as warranted the law of 1833.

Now comes Attorney-General Sargent, however, in his annual report and recommends to Congress that the Federal courts take over the protection of all Federal officers in life and limb. Such a proposal, if not contrary to the letter, is plainly contrary to the spirit of the Constitution. Thus Cooley, in his Constitutional Limitations, says:

> In the American constitutional system, the power to establish the ordinary regulations of police (the protection of lives, limbs, health, comfort and guilt of all persons) has been left with the individual states, and it cannot be taken away from them, either wholly or in part, and exercised under legislation of Congress.

Even if it could be done, such a distinction of classes is invidious. In all governments, save those founded on the English common law, officials are raised above the common people as a privileged class. They are protected by special law and special tribunals. The tendency toward a privileged officialdom in the United States is only too marked and we trust Congress will have the wisdom at least to halt it where it is.

LADIES TO THE FRONT.

There was one thing about the Russian delegation to the Geneva Conference that was probably more significant than its complete disarmament proposal.

It had four ladies in it. If we may judge by the group picture which has just reached this country, they were four rather good looking clubwomen of the type that hears some two-story thinker talk every Wednesday afternoon and finds conversation with uneducated husbands at dinner difficult.

If we are right about that, the Russians are as far in advance of the rest of the world in disarmament delegations as they are with disarmament proposals. There were no women in the late naval disarmament conference. The naval powers picked out the stubbornest men they could find, and when they met at Geneva and tried to bulldoze one another the conference promptly broke up.

It was enough to make any enlightened woman who has heard Will Durant, Nicholas Murray Butler, Lord Hewart, the Abbe Dimnet, and other cold intellects, give a despairing shriek and faint.

Probably the Russian delegation had a few stiff-necked men on it. Litvinoff, who headed it, looks in the picture to be about as yielding as Senator James A. Reed. The difference, of course, was that there were a few sensible women on hand to see that if there were an opening for common sense Russia jumped into it.

In our opinion, the time when any country will send its chief irascibles, its Lord Bridgemans and its Hugh Gibsons, to these important conferences, is about to give way to a more civilized era in which the educated and sensible woman will have something to say about war and its armaments.

THE MAIL MUST GO.

"The mail must go." What depths of privation, what multitudes of dangers are met by the flyers of the postal service in living out, among the bleak winter clouds, the watchword of their calling. Fogs, sleet, storm and cold are only obstacles to be overcome for the helmeted men who take off in their fleet airplanes, day after day, to move the precious mail on its way.

So it was that Chief Pilot Gurney took off for Chicago Friday afternoon after as harrowing an experience as even an air mail pilot could ask. Having barely missed another airplane as he hurtled through the fog on his southbound trip he had been forced a few minutes later to land "blind" in the heavy mist, and had accomplished the almost miraculous, and certainly lucky feat, of coming down without hitting a house, tree or other disastrous obstruction.

To an ordinary flyer the occurrence might have brought a determination never to tempt luck again by keeping in the air while fog covers the ground, but to Gurney, as to his flying mates in the mail service, it meant just another vexatious circumstance that worked toward the destruction of his time schedule. "The mail must go" and go on time.

"WE'LL PROBABLY GET A TOBOGGAN FOR CHRISTMAS"

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

NO RECORD LIKE THIS.

From the Daily Oklahoman.

DURING the 138 years that have passed since the Federal Constitution was ratified only 10 of the many hundreds of men who have served as State executives have been impeached by the representatives of the people.

Four of the 10 victims of the impeachment process were carpet bag Governors of Southern States removed from office at the time of the restoration of responsible government when the shameful reign of ignorance and profligacy was brought to an end. New York and Kansas and Texas and Nebraska each has impeached an unsatisfactory executive. The remaining two of the total 10 are Walton and Johnston of Oklahoma. Oklahoma of all the 48 states is the only one to impeach two of her chosen State executives.

Many different conclusions may be drawn from Oklahoma's unprecedented and unenviable record. Not one of those conclusions, however, reflects any credit on the State. Not one of those conclusions can possibly inspire the law-loving citizen. Not one of them can possibly make the outside world think any the better of Oklahoma.

Granting that guilt has justified every single act of impeachment, it merely proves the incapacity of the people to elect worthy and competent men. Granting that the bills of impeachment were undeserved and unwarranted, it proves the vicious criminality of the impeachment forces. Granting that a shift in public sentiment caused the people who elected the executive to reverse their views and demand his removal, the result merely proves that Oklahomans are too capricious in their conduct and too superficial in their judgments to successfully administer self-government and have far greater need for the restraining hand of a Mussolini than they have for the ballot of a free people.

Never since the barons enlarged the bounds of English freedom, never since the first Edward made parliamentary government vital, never since our Cavalier forefolk passed the Chesapeake capes, has such a chapter as this been written by the sons and daughters of the Anglo-Saxon.

Guilty? Then we are incapable of selecting wise and honest officials. Innocent? Then our representatives are far too ruthless and vindictive to fill any position of responsibility. Whatever the cause and whatever the verdict Oklahoma is shaming herself in the eyes of the world.

"BIG BILL'S" PICTURE, MAYBE.

From the Fort Worth Record-Telegram.

TREASURY authorities are worried about whose pictures to use for decorations on the new greenbacks that will make their appearance next year. Why not give the States a look-in? When new banknotes are to be issued to the national banks of each State, have them adorned with the faces of famous sons.

Of course, the money would scatter rapidly, but it would start right. There are not enough kinds of money to honor the great men. There should be. No "Hall of Fame" will ever equal the corner of a bill for national popularity.

MOTHER SCHUMANN-HEINK.

From the New York World.

WE do not believe for a moment, of course, that Mme. Schumann-Heink has given her last recital in New York. The floral tribute presented by the American Legion on Saturday afternoon did nothing to shake our scepticism on this point; neither did the speech by Walter Damrosch, nor the tears shed by the lady in question. In fact, our scepticism would be just as unshaken if the flowers, the speech and the tears were all placed in the form of an affidavit before a notary. There are some things which we simply find it impossible to believe.

Nevertheless, it is pleasant to pretend that she has retired, for the make-believe brings with it a mood of romantic sadness. What, indeed, could be sadder than the last concert by Schumann-Heink? As far back as most of us can remember, as far back as the days of the De Reszkes, Bispham, Nordica and the young Caruso, she has been a legend, a symbol of all that was gorgeous in the art of singing. Part of her appeal, of course, lay in that great, throaty voice with its infinite inflections, its capacity to make even so theatrical a tale as "The Erl-king" seem real and tragic. But part of it, too, lay in her own personality. She has often been called the "incarnation of motherhood," and possibly this is the secret of the hold she had on the public, and particularly the American public. For, although she took you into the most rarefied atmosphere of music, she did so with a homely, reassuring smile, so that even lowbrows were lulled into a feeling of security and ceased to fear for their souls, and enjoyed themselves prodigiously.

Thus she brought to music a common touch, made it seem safe, moral and human and not a thing [illegible] for sophisticated esthetes. She is a great artist and will continue to be one, we predict, until her next farewell concert, which will probably take place on a Saturday afternoon in December, 1937.

CATTLE, CLEANLINESS AND CIVILIZATION.

From the Chicago Tribune.

AN African native, telling an American explorer that the Africans looked to the United States as the land of liberty, explained that he did not like British rule because the English ordered the natives not to make war upon one another.

"Man's way of life is to make war and take his enemies' cattle," he asserted.

Why try to civilize such philosophy? It expresses the culture of 1914 and the Versailles Treaty. It is honest realism—excepting the delusion about the United States.

In Chicago, Miss Mary McDowell, sincerely seeking to house people healthily and happily, says nothing is so civilizing as running hot water. "Civilizing" is not the word unless nothing more is meant than the superiority that comes with cleanliness. There are other nations quite as civilized as ours—in fact, some more so in certain respects, without understanding in the least the elevating benefits of indoor plumbing. What other nation has a Ku Klux Klan, an Anti-Saloon League, an America First Association and as many bathtubs as the United States?

NOW THAT WINTER APPROACHES

All too many the troubles of ardent young swains in the wooing to which they are prone,
For how else may fond lovers develop their theme if they're left not severely alone?
All the vows of devotion the lovers all make are intended for one pair of ears,
And those vows must be made to the loved one alone, and not where the whole neighborhood hears;
Then how foolish of father to sit in the parlor the while one is courting one's queen,
And how strange for her mother to think that devotion is acted where it may be seen;
Let some sing, if they will, of such hours as they choose, but the hours I think worthy a hymn
I was seated in comfort with her all alone and the lights were becomingly dim.

The fond love that we have for the one we adore is so sacred and holy a theme
That the vows that we make are for only her ears, and all else who would listen blaspheme;
All the deeds that we swear we will do for her sake are the deeds that fond lovers all swear.
But the two most concerned are the man and the maid, so why should a third party be there?
For the love that we bear her is poetry's self, and all men are timid, afraid,
To recite the mad song of their love for a maid, save it be to themselves or the maid;
When I feel all the raptures that lovers may know, when my love's cup is filled to the brim,
I am seated in comfort with her all alone and the lights are becomingly dim.

Proposal for Board to Fix Punishment

In the same way it controls the actions of Judges, prosecutors, lawyers, juries and board such as the one proposed. Generally speaking, they will obey a healthy public opinion."

Attorney-General Wants His Own Power Enlarged.

Attorney-General Albert Ottinger said that the Governor was probably right in his recommendation, inasmuch as it was reached after unequaled experience in dealing with all sorts of cases and appeals.

"It would be essential to be circumspect in the personnel of the board," Ottinger said. "As to the wisdom of the change, that is a question of policy with which the Governor is better fitted to deal than anyone else."

Approving Gov. Smith's recommendation that the Attorney-General be empowered to investigate and prosecute cases of attacks by State troopers or employes in State prisons, Ottinger urged that the Attorney-General's office have restored to it the State-wide criminal jurisdiction it had in the early days of the State. At present the Attorney-General has such power only under specific acts, such as the Martin anti-stock fraud act and the election law, and when it is specifically delegated to him by the Governor.

"I believe it is perfectly safe to provide concurrent jurisdiction giving the Attorney-General power, 'upon good cause shown,' to take the place of a District Attorney," Ottinger said. "This phrase, 'upon good cause shown,' would present to the courts the question of whether the Attorney-General was justified in stepping in, and would preclude the suspicion of political interference. Such double check system would be a vast benefit."

Ottinger said that a State bureau of investigation would be a great aid in the detection and punishment of crime.

Martin Littleton Opposes, Clarence Darrow Favors Plan.

Two criminal lawyers of national reputation, Martin Littleton and Clarence Darrow, differed on the advisability of a sentencing board.

Littleton said: "In my opinion, such a suggestion would be valuable in cases where question of insanity or mental deficiency is raised, but I am not in favor of machinery of this kind in the case of the inveterate criminal who ought to get the penalty prescribed by law."

And here is Darrow's indorsement of the plan: "I was glad to see Gov. Smith's statement with reference to the proper methods to be followed in criminal trials. I believe the next step in the solution of the crime problem would be a law in which the jury would pass on the fact as to whether the criminal committed the crime while the question of what should be done with him should be left to science and experience.

"The main thing to be considered by such a commission as Gov. Smith suggests would be: When can a defendant be safely returned to society? In many instances it would not be wise to imprison him at all.

"A great mistake made in criminal cases is that separating offenses into serious ones and those not so serious. Many times it is safer for the community to have at large a man who has committed a murder than it is to have at large a forger, a thief or a confidence man. There is much less danger of a murderer's committing another crime."

Snyder-Gray Trial Jury Solidly Against the Change.

Finally, here are the replies of citizens who served as jurors in one of the most noted murder cases of recent years, the Snyder-Gray trial. They were asked two questions—whether they thought the transfer of sentencing power desirable; and whether it would have been harder or easier to reach a verdict in the Snyder-Gray case if the penalty had been in the hands of separate boards. The answers follow:

William E. Young, foreman: I do not think the change is desirable. In rendering my judgment I did not consider the penalty for Gray or Ruth Snyder. I still believe there is no question, according to the evidence, that both parties are guilty of the crime committed.

John Schneider — In my opinion, this change is not desirable. It would not have been easier to reach a verdict. My mind was not on the results of the verdict, but on the facts in the case.

Charles Meissner—If all cases were conducted as was the Snyder Gray case, by all judges, there would not be any need of a board of expert criminologists to decide any case. If all judges were as competent as Judge Scudder things would be better judicially. The decorum would be upheld instead of criticised. No, I don't approve of any change.

E. J Van Vranken—"I do not see the need of a change such as suggested by Gov. Smith. Only when some crime has been committed that receives the prominence of the Snyder-Gray trial and a persistent effort is made to escape the penalty prescribed by law does any question seem to be raised. What is wrong with the Court of Appeals? If all degrees of guilt in crime and their penalties were to have to await a decision of such a board as is suggested by Gov. Smith to determine upon the penalty. I believe that great additional delay would be added to that which already takes place before trial. Those intended to be benefited would in reality be penalized. Politics could not be kept out.

Fifty Per Cent at Municipal House in November Between 40 and 60.

Of 1572 men sheltered by the Municipal Lodging House during November, 775, or more than 50 per cent, were between the ages of 40 and 60. There were 645 between 20 and 40, a total of 65 less than 20 years old, and 87 who were more than 60. Only 147 of the lodgers were listed as physically disabled. During the month 1045 of the lodgers were vaccinated.

Floodways and Spillways Planned To Relieve Levees formation as to the benefits accruing to the protected regions. He pointed out that the average value of this land was $224 an acre, when towns and improvements were included, and that the probable value of New Orleans alone was $3,500,000,000. He placed the total value of all the property, movable and real estate, in the protected areas, at $5,000,000,000.

"The expenditure would be justified even though such a flood as the one this year occurs but once in 150 years," Jadwin declared.

"In view of the national aspect of flood control, and because of other considerations, it is believed that the United States should bear a larger proportion of the cost of construction than in the past, and that of the states or local interests be as small as consistent with the results desired. While the proportion must be determined in the wisdom of the President and Congress, a division by which the United States bear 80 per cent and the local interests 20 per cent of the costs of levee construction and control works in general; and by which the United States bears 50 per cent and the local interests 50 per cent of the costs of the special ring levees proposed at Morgan City, Melville, Simmesport and Arkansas City, would be in general accord with the existing policy of the President and the precedents established by Congress."

Dividing Up the Cost.

Jadwin divided the costs in the following manner:

By the United States: Eighty per cent of general and control works, $147,360,000; 50 per cent of special protection work, $600,000; 100 per cent of works for channel stabilization and mapping, $111,000,000. Total, $258,960,000.

By local interests: Twenty per cent of general levee and control work, $36,840,000; 50 per cent of special protection work, $600,000. Total, $37,440,000.

The local interests would also be expected to furnish rights of way and to protect the Federal Government against charges for flowage assessments and damages.

"While $37,440,000 is small in comparison with the amount to be spent by the United States and with the amounts already spent by the people of the valley, it must be remembered that these people still owe considerable sums on their bonds on which the money spent was raised," Jadwin said. "Some of the levee districts are also near the limit of their bonding power under present state laws and also near the limit of their credit. However, it is not equally clear that this expenditure spread over a 10-year period among four or more states would constitute an unreasonable burden on the states themselves in view of the increased taxable values which will result from the improvement."

Right of Way From States.

Jadwin emphasized that the states rather than the local levee boards should be considered in the proposed program. He insisted that no Federal funds should be expended within any state "until that state has accepted by appropriate legislation" the conditions and responsibilities required by the Secretary of War.

The only exception he would make to this policy would be in instances "where the procedure requisite to the enactment of the legislation would unduly delay the initiation of work of far reaching benefit, particularly if such work is essential to the protection of another state which had fulfilled the conditions."

According to Jadwin, the states should provide without cost to the United States the rights of way for all levee structures and such drainage works as may be made necessary by the new levee construction. Jadwin pointed out that the local authorities could acquire these rights at much less cost than could the Federal Government.

Calls Other Plans Visionary.

Jadwin discussed at considerable length some of the "visionary schemes" that had been suggested for controlling the Mississippi. Almost facetiously he remarked that "even the richest country in the world cannot afford to dig channels 10 times as large as the Panama Canal half way across the continent through mountain ranges, nor pump through pipe lines over 100,000,000 tons of water per hour from Cairo, Ill., to the Gulf of Mexico." To dredge the river channel annually to reduce the 1927 flood level eight feet would cost $80,000,000 a year, Jadwin pointed out in discarding the dredging scheme. He said that capitalization of this sum at 4 per cent would be $2,000,000,000. Dredging of side channels, he declared, was neither economical nor practicable. A general setting back of all the levees was also discarded by the chief of engineers on the ground that to set them back six miles—to reduce the flood stage eight feet—would cost $1,000,000,000. Straightening of the channel was disapproved on the theory that one portion of the valley would be benefited at the expense of communities below. Reforestation was given only qualified approval. Even the most comprehensive reforestation program would reduce the flood level only half an inch, Jadwin stated.

Rejection of "Levees Only."

The "levees only" policy as announced by Col. Charles L. Potter, president of the Mississippi River Commission, at the beginning of the flood, was rejected on the grounds of expense and impracticability. "To raise the levees on the Mississippi sufficiently to hold the maximum predicted flood with a five-foot freeboard would require that they be raised 12 feet at Cairo, 19 feet at Arkansas City, 12 feet at Angola and six feet at New Orleans," Jadwin explained. "Such a raising is most inadvisable since the levees are now about as high as they should be. Levees of such height would increase tremendously the hazard from possible crevasses and would involve many foundation difficulties. It is doubtful if such raising would be practicable. The cost would be $556,500,000."

Reservoirs did not fare so badly with Jadwin. He pointed out that the reservoir theory was ideal when it fitted. He devoted six pages of his report to show that it didn't fit on the Mississippi at present. To erect 203 reservoirs at the headwaters of the tributaries for purely flood control purposes would cost $1,300,000,000, Jadwin stated. These could be counted on to reduce the river level about six feet at Cairo, seven feet at the mouth of the Arkansas and five and four-tenths feet at the mouth of the Red River. "These reservoirs would afford inadequate relief at a cost four times as great as the cost of the plan recommended," Jadwin said.

A system of 30 reservoirs near the valley would cost $525,000,000, Jadwin estimated. He rejected this plan because it would cost more than the project he recommended.

Jadwin did not completely close the door on reservoirs. He pointed out that eventually they would be of considerable aid.

Where Reservoirs Would Help.

"As time goes on it is hoped that reservoirs constructed primarily for local purposes will withhold flood waters and thus aid Mississippi control by affording an additional factor of safety," he said. "For instance, a reservoir on the Mississippi River near Commerce, Mo., 25 miles north of Cairo, would store some flood water and develop considerable power. Its cost would be approximately $130,000,000, over twice the cost of the Muscle Shoals project. While the costs are too high at present a market for the power may develop and a distribution of costs be arranged some time in the future to make the reservoir feasible. There is also a reservoir site on the Osage River that may be developed later in connection with power development. Likewise there are reservoir sites on the White and Arkansas rivers that are being considered in connection with local projects."

DEAL ON FOR SALE OF J. T. MILLIKEN & CO

Trustees of Estate Seek Permission to Dispose of Capital Stock of Chemical Firm.

Negotiations are under way for sale of the chemical firm of John T. Milliken & Co., 612 South Seventh street, part of the estate of John T. Milliken, who died in 1919.

This became known yesterday when John G. Lonsdale and the National Bank of Commerce, trustees of the estate, petitioned the Circuit Court for permission to sell the capital stock of the company, owned entirely by the estate. The company was incorporated with $750,000 capital stock in 1921.

It was stated the trustees had received an advantageous offer for the stock and did not consider it feasible for the estate to continue its ownership. Irvin V. Barth, attorney, who filed the petition, said the source of the offer and the amount involved could not be disclosed at this time.

The trustees' suit, a friendly proceeding, makes the Milliken heirs defendants nominally. They are the widow, Mrs. May Patrick Milliken; a son, John T. Milliken, and two daughters, Mrs. Emily Lambert and Mrs. Harriet Moore. They have a lifetime income from the Milliken trust estate. After payment of debts and taxes, the estate netted about $3,000,000.

PAY-AS-YOU-PLAY PLAN COUNTRY CLUB

Westborough Organization Purchases Site of Old Westwood Association.

The old Westwood Country Club property at Berry road and Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, has been sold to a syndicate which will operate the golf course and other facilities upon a plan which partakes of some of the features of the "pay-as-you-play" scheme.

The establishment will be operated by the newly formed Westborough Country Club on a basis under which members will pay $10 a year without assessments or dues, and a nominal fee for the use of the golf course—probably $1 for each 18 holes on week days and a larger amount on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The club grounds were sold through Henry R. Weisels, Inc. The purchase price has not been made public, but it is known that the club was asking $300,000 for it. The Westwood Country Club's new course at Conway and Ballas roads will be ready about July 1. The Westwood club was represented in the sale of its old property by Lewis Monheimer and Lewis Rosen.

Westborough Country Club is headed by Walter L. Pfefer, who is a member of the advisory board of the United States Golf Association. It was announced that the club would be opened under the new plan on next July 1. Facilities at the disposal of the members include the golf course and the clubhouse, which is equipped with locker rooms, men's dormitory, cafe, shower baths, dancing pavillion, lounge and card rooms and other recreational facilities. Among improvements planned is a swimming pool.

PATROLMAN KILLED RESPONDING TO CALL

Oliver W. Cook's Motorcycle Crashed on Curb on Way to Scene of Holdup.

Speeding to answer a holdup call, Motor Cycle Patrolman Oliver W. Cook was fatally injured Friday night when his machine jumped the curb bordering the street car right of way on the Union boulevard viaduct and turned over. He was taken in a police car to St. Luke's Hospital, where he died early yesterday of a fractured skull and fractures of the spine and pelvis. He was 30 years old.

Patrolman Cook had gone as a volunteer to answer the holdup call. About 9:40 o'clock that night he chanced to visit the Page Boulevard Police Station to telephone traffic headquarters. While he was there a telephone call came from Charles Vaughn, clerk of a gasoline filling station at 4445 West Florissant avenue, who reported he had just been robbed by a man who escaped in an automobile. Cook said he would go on the chase. He mounted his motor cycle and rode north in Union at high speed and with siren blowing.

Roaring across the viaduct, Cook's machine veered to the left and the wheels scraped against the curb that marks the Public Service Co.'s right of way. Wallace Pait, 4643 San Francisco avenue, said he saw the sparks fly. According to Pait, the motor cycle continued on for about 60 feet, one wheel scraping the curbing, and then jumped the obstruction, turning over in the gravel roadbed. Cook was caught under it.

The officer's wife, who was informed of the accident and taken to the hospital, remained at his bedside for several hours, but later was induced to return home on the promise that she would be called again if needed. About 4 a. m. Cook began to sink and died before Mrs. Cook could reach the hospital.

Verdict of Accident in Death of Chauffeur in Crash.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the case of Herman Bauer, a chauffeur, who died Friday of skull fracture, suffered the day before when a machine he was driving collided head-on with a Manchester street car at Theresa and Chouteau avenues. Bauer, who was 45 years old, was trying to pass a truck on the left at the time of the accident, police were told.

An inquest in the case of Charles T. Maulding, 1116 Pennsylvania avenue, East St. Louis, who died Friday of injuries suffered when run down by an automobile in East St. Louis, is scheduled for Tuesday. His body has been sent to Wayne City, Ill., his former home, for burial. The machine which hit him was driven by Mrs. Mabel Liles, a waitress, who said he stepped suddenly in the path of the car.

Miner Killed When Train Strikes His Automobile.

Engelhardt Nadler of Lensburg, Ill., was killed yesterday when an automobile he was driving was struck by St. Louis-bound Illinois Central passenger train No. 240 from Carbondale, Ill., at a crossing two and a half miles south of New Athens.

Nadier's automobile was demolished and hurled about 20 feet from the crossing. Nadler was 40 years old, a coal miner, and is survived by his widow and four children.

60 MASONIC LODGES TO JOIN TO CHEER HOME RESIDENTS

More Than 400 Persons Will Share in Christmas Program; 100 Others in Hospital.

Christmas cheer for 400 persons, old and young, in the Masonic Home, on Delmar boulevard, west of Union boulevard, will be provided this year, as in the past, by a committee from the 60 Masonic lodges of St. Louis and St. Louis County. Moolah Temple will entertain more than 100 boys and girls in the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, 700 South Kingshighway.

The Christmas program at the home will start at 7 a. m., with a special breakfast, to be followed at noon by a turkey dinner. A Christmas tree and music will add to the holiday festivity. Gifts for the disabled children will be distributed Saturday afternoon. At 6 o'clock Christmas morning, carol singers from Moolah Temple will awaken the children.

SEEK CHRISTMAS DONATIONS FOR LINDBERGH MEMORIAL

Committee in Charge of Fountain Plans to Hold Meeting Jan. 3.

The Spirit of St. Louis Memorial Committee has issued an appeal for Christmas donations to the fund it is raising to erect a fountain in commemoration of Col. Lindbergh's New York-to-Paris flight. All gifts are to be mailed to the treasurer, Mrs. Charles H. Hoyle, 5702 Cabanne avenue.

The committee will meet Jan. 3 at Jefferson Memorial.

To Hold Festival in Maplewood.

A three-day festival will be held under auspices of the Humane Society of St. Louis County in the Brownson Building, Maplewood, Jan. 19, 20 and 21. Proceeds will be used to erect a new shelter house and quarters for the Society, to replace its present quarters in Webster Groves, which have been outgrown. The festival originally was scheduled to have been held outdoors several days ago but was postponed.

MENTAL HYGIENE SOCIETY PLANS FIVE OPEN MEETINGS

Each of New Working Division Will Have Charge of One Discussion in 1928.

The Missouri Society for Mental Hygiene will hold five open meetings in 1928, each in charge of one of the five new working divisions adopted last week. The divisions and their heads are: Mental deficiency, Dr. George A. Johns; mental disease, R. C. Fagley; research, Mrs Alexander Langsdorf; vocational guidance, Miss Laura Kinkead, and education and legislation, Miss Marguerite Grimmer. The annual meeting will be in May.

A bi-monthly news letter, edited by A. W. Jones, secretary and manager of the Tuberculosis and Health Society, has been started for distribution to members of the society and others interested in its problems. The society was organized last spring to promote mental health.

Christmas Seal Proclamation.

The 1927 Christmas Seal sale of the Tuberculosis Society will continue until Christmas eve. Gov. Baker has issued a proclamation indorsing the sale. The tuberculosis death rate in Missouri, 83.4 per 100,000 population, or 2905 deaths in 1926, is slightly higher than the rate in adjoining states, according to Gov. Baker.

BOARD INCITES STATIONS TO SEEK 'CLEARED' WAVES

Says Any Broadcaster Can Displace Another by Proving It Can Give Better Service.

By THOMAS STEVENSON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Soon there may be a scramble by stations for possession of the so-called cleared waves between 300 and 500 meters, if broadcasters accept a recent statement of the Federal Radio Commission at its face value.

The statement, in effect, is that no station is yet frozen on a cleared wave; that any station can obtain one of the cleared waves merely by proving that it is in a position to render greater public service than some broadcaster at present enjoying the privilege.

In fact, the commission is anxious that efforts be made to take cleared waves away from certain stations now occupying those channels. The Radio Board is by no means "sold" on all the stations on the cleared waves, and it is thought that some of them either will have to improve their facilities or give way to other broadcasters.

Here is Radio Commissioner Caldwell's interpretation of the picture that is in the minds of his associates:

"Because of the necessity of getting programs to listeners who are not served by local stations," says Caldwell, "it became obvious to us that we would have to clear a number of channels for distance reception.

"We decided to clear the band between 600 and 1000 kilocycles (300 to 500 meters).

"We went about clearing those channels by removing most of the inferior stations from those waves.

"This process left those channels clear for the better stations which had been using those waves.

"Those stations which have cleared waves are not there because we think they are the best on the air. There are many stations which are as good, and probably many are better. Those stations are on the cleared waves because they were the best on them at the time we undertook to clear them.

"Unquestionably, some of the stations on cleared waves are entitled to them. I am not so sure that all of them are.

"There are a number of considerations which enter into this proposition.

"First, there is the geographical location. We have got to distribute these cleared waves all over the country. I think there are a number of cities which are entitled to cleared waves if they will maintain stations which are in a class deserving of cleared waves.

"Second, there is the matter of power. I see no point to giving a cleared wave to a station if it does not use power enough to get out to a very considerable part of the United States.

"Third, there is the chain-program problem. There is no use in clearing two dozen channels for stations if a large percentage of those stations are going to send out the same program.

"I would like to see stations apply for the cleared waves if they think they have a better claim than any of the stations already using those waves."

About two weeks ago, the commission refused to consider applications for changes in stations until the new plan has a chance to prove itself, saying:

"Acting on what is believed to be distinctly in the public interest, convenience and necessity, the commission ordered, effective Dec. 1, changes in the status of certain broadcasting stations. Broadcasters affected by the order who believe that unfair treatment has been accorded them, have recourse to a public hearing in accordance with General Order No. 12. Requests for modification of said order prior to a reasonable period on the new assignments will be denied by the commission."

'CHIC' SALE STAR OF NEXT EVEREADY HOUR ON KSD

Charles (Chic) Sale will be featured in the Eveready Hour program to be broadcast Tuesday evening through KSD.

He will keep open house over the radio as the central figure of an old fashioned Christmas eve home-coming. "Chic's" custom each year is to open his house to all his relatives and friends in the rural community where he makes his home. These Yuletide occasions are said to be notable affairs to the theatrical profession.

A silver cornet band, in addition to the Eveready Orchestra will play.

Sale, who is now playing in "Gay Paree," will leave that production temporarily in St. Louis to go to the WEAF studio in New York to broadcast. He will include among his recitations an original monologue, portraying the return of the prodigal on Christmas eve.

The Eveready Revellers and Virginia Rea, soprano soloist of the Eveready Group, will assist.

BEATRICE HARRISON

To Prevent Heterodyning.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — WRNY, New York, is trying to prevent a "whistle" between that station of KOA, Denver.

WRNY will have three or four paid official observers in the Middle West listen in. On hearing a heterodyne they will telephone to call the New York station. The station operator will thereupon regulate the frequency to eliminate the "whistle."

SINGLE RADIO HOUR WILL COST $67,000

Program for Night of Jan. 4 Planned by Dodge Brothers to Feature Four Stars.

A single hour of broadcasting on the night of Jan. 4 is to be sponsored by Dodge Brothers at a cost said to exceed $67,000.

Will Rogers, Fred Stone, Paul Whiteman and Al Jolson are to be featured stars in this special broadcast, which will probably be the most costly yet put on the air. They will play their parts from about as widely separate points as could be chosen in this country.

Rogers, who is to play master of ceremonies in the program, is to broadcast from Hollywood. Stone will be in Chicago at the time. Whiteman is to be in New York City with his band and Jolson will be in New Orleans.

It will cost Dodge Brothers around $25,000 for the fees of the four stars and other performers. The cost of telephone lines and other mechanical details will run around $35,000. Rental of an hour's time of the 33 radio stations that will be hooked up for the program will be about $7600.

More than 12,000 miles of telephone wires will be used in three transcontinental circuits, one to serve the stations, one to transmit the programs to New York and the third for emergency. Hundreds of engineers will be at work on these three lines both prior to and during the broadcasting.

More than 30,000,000 persons will tune in on this program, according to M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co.

WCCO Leases Station For Chain Broadcasting

Will Put Network Programs on 500-Watt Transmitter and Devote Its Own 5000 Watts Power to Local Features.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — A 500-watt transmitter has been leased by WCCO for broadcasting chain programs in the Minneapolis-St. Paul region.

WCCO itself, which is of 5000-watt power, specializes in broadcasting programs by Minneapolis and St. Paul artists and entertainers as well as local happenings of importance, though it probably will take part in broadcasting events of national interest.

The leasing of the other station is an experiment by H. A. Bellows, former member of the Federal Radio Commission, who has returned to Minneapolis to resume the managership of WCCO.

Before Bellows was appointed to the Radio Commission, he was a leading advocate of the proposition that stations should represent their communities and should make a consistent effort to contribute definitely to broadcasting as a whole from that viewpoint. He contended that any sizable city had sufficient talent to enable a station to broadcast plenty of worthwhile programs. Bellows held that WCCO had been highly successful in carrying out that idea and that its features were worthy of comparison with those of any station.

When he became a member of the Radio Commission, his advocacy of the idea of local programs and representation by stations of their home communities had a marked influence in determining the policy of the commission in allotting wave lengths. Especially was this so because it was in direct contrast with the belief of managers of a number of other stations, who have shaped their policy on the belief that listeners want the best, that the big chain programs are overwhelmingly superior to programs by local talent, and that the more they can get of chain broadcasting the better the listeners are pleased.

Anyway, the Radio Commissioners are watching with interest the progress of WCCO's experiment, especially as it points to a way by which congestion of the air could be materially lessened, without drastic action.

"TWO BLACK CROWS" ON KMOX WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Moran and Mack, widely known as "The Two Black Crows," will be featured in the Columbia Phonograph Hour to be broadcast at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, by the Columbia chain through KMOX. This will be the third radio appearance of these black-face funmakers. Their last broadcasting was at the annual Radio Industries Banquet in New York City in September.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Radio engineers find that the lowest wavelength at which a tube will oscillate is between 3.5 and 1.5 meters.

This AC Electric Radio

First of all, an electric receiver must be a good receiver. It should be judged for one thing alone: Its quality of reception.

That's the thing about the ERLA Electric. Of course it's a real electric receiver. It operates from your light switch, from AC current. It contains no chargers, no A battery, no B battery.

PRICE
Complete, Nothing More to Buy
$167
AND UP

But more important, the method of supplying AC power in ERLA Electric makes possible the use of standard ERLA receivers in electric reception. So that in clarity, in volume, in sensitivity, in quality of tone ERLA Electric Radio is identical with ERLA battery operated Radio. Arrange for a demonstration.

STEWART-WARNER SETS WITH AC TUBES REACH ST. LOUIS

The new Stewart-Warner AC sets, which use Cunningham C tubes, have just reached St. Louis. This AC receiver has 6 tubes, and uses the same circuit that has been a feature of all Stewart-Warner sets this year.

An output transformer, designed to protect the windings of the loud speaker and to smooth out reproduction, has been built into these new AC sets.

The new models are thoroughly shielded with aluminum, and have single control. They use the large Stewart-Warner audio transformers, which are designed to put the bass notes as well as the treble into reproduction.

Heterodyning on Nearly All Others in 300-500 Meter Band, They Declare.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Although they admit that reception has been greatly improved by recent changes, radio engineers of the Radio Commission actually have cleared only five channels for distance reception.

Here are the channels they say have been really cleared:

428.3 meters (700 k. c.)—WLW has this wave exclusively, except in the summer when WMAF, South Dartmouth, Mass., also uses it.

SONG 500 YEARS OLD ON PROGRAM FROM KSD

A Capella Chorus From Medieval Age to Be Sung by Seiberling Singers.

A medieval troubadour song, said to be 500 years old, and never before heard on the air, a six-part chorus and a special arrangement of an old English Christmas carol by Channing Lefebvre, organist, will feature the second Seiberling Singers broadcast through KSD on Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock.

The unaccompanied chorus, "Dawn Through the Woods Is Creeping," has been arranged by Marshall Bartholomew, director of the program. It is a reminder of the debt the world of music owes to the wandering minstrels of England, France and Southern Europe in the Middle Ages.

The six-part chorus, "Battle Hymn of the Monks," is from Max Bruch's cantata, "Media Vita," and will be heard with organ and orchestral accompaniment. The text for the "Battle Hymn of the Monks" is taken from the work of the German poet, Ekhard.

Bruch died a few years ago at the age of 84.

Channing Lefebvre, organist of the Seiberling Singers weekly presentations, contributes his own arrangement of English carol, "Good King Wenceslas," to the evening program. This will be sung

Swing Along....Will Marion Cook
Chorus, orchestra and organ.
Dawn Through the Woods Is Creeping. (Medieval troubador song).
Arr. by Marshall Bartholomew
Chorus, unaccompanied.
Serenade ....Saint-Saens

Orchestra.
Good King Wenceslas (Old English carol) Arr. by Channing Lefebvre
Chorus, unaccompanied.

Leakage is one of the chief faults of a poor grid condenser, and one of high standard is about the most important part in a receiver.

Mothersill, assistant treasurer of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., who resides in Webster Groves. Announcement of the award, which is a $2800 grand piano, was made by the Aeolian Co. of Missouri.

The contest was based on the best letters on "What Music Means in My Home, as Expressed by This Evening's Duo-Art Recital." Prizes were awarded for letters on each of five radio recitals through KSD and allied stations and, in addition, there was a set of grand prizes.

Mothersill won $100 for the best letter on the fifth recital in the contest, which closed Nov. 30. Then his prize winning letter was adjudged the best of all the thousands entered in the entire contest.

The second grand prize—also a grand piano—was won by Mrs. A. B. Madison, 14 Morton avenue, Cliftondale, Mass. Third grand prize was awarded to Mrs. Frederick Doyle, 265 Jackson avenue, River Forest, Ill.

Five fourth prizes, each of $50 were awarded to W. H. Hodges, Ballston, Va.; Milo Miloradovich, 40 West Eighty-fifth street, New York City; Rafael Polidura, 23-25 Beaver street, New York City; Mrs. Genevieve Stone, 76 Lake Flower avenue, Saranac Lake; Van Tassel Sutphen, 22 Frankling Place, Morristown, N. J.

Judges of the Aeolian contest were Leonard Liebling, editor of Musical Courier; Kurt Schindler, director of the Musical Forum of New York; Henry Hadley, eminent composer; George H. Gartlan, head of the Music Department, Department of Schools of New York City, and Pitts Sanborn, noted music critic.

LOFTIN-WHITE CIRCUIT USED IN NEW ARBORPHONE RECEIVER

The Loftin-White circuit, which has aroused much interest among custom set builders because of its equal selectivity and volume on all wave lengths, has been commercially adapted for use in the new models of the Arborphone receiver.

The greatest difficulty in utilizing tuned radio frequency in receivers has been in designing the circuit to function with uniform efficiency over the whole broadcast wave band. Somewhere in the wave band it has generally been necessary to sacrifice efficiency. The Loftin-White circuit is said to give as good results on the higher waves as on the lower ones and vice versa.

This circuit was devised by Edward H. Loftin, formerly Lieutenant-Commander, United States Navy, in charge of radio research and patent work, and S. Young White, a private experimenter of note. It was widely discussed when brought out, and many receivers embodying it have been constructed. But the Arborphone is said to be the first factory-built receiver to utilize it.

The new Arborphone has three radio frequency stages, detector and audio stages. It has single dial control, with provision for especially fine tuning when elusive distant stations are being hunted. Complete double shielding is employed.

NEW TUBE AMPLIFIES 20 TIMES AS MUCH AS 201A

It's Use in Special Circuits Expected to Exert Great Effect on Home-Built Receivers.

A development that may have a marked influence on custom receiver building, and eventually on all radio sets, is the introduction in this country of the shielded gird tube, which has been known, and used to a limited extent, in Europe for some time.

Already, two sets for home constructors—one a tuned radio frequency circuit, the other a 7-tube superheterodyne—have been designed to use these new tubes, which have an amplification constant of 175 or more as compared with that of nine for the average 201A type tube.

First of these new tubes to be marketed in the United States is the Shieldplate SP122. This shielded grid tube is designed as a voltage amplifier in radio frequency circuits specially constructed for its use and also as a space charge gird tube or impedance or resistance coupled audio frequency amplification. Its construction is entirely different from the conventional design.

A straight up-and-down filament is surrounded with the spiral control grid, the terminal of which is brought out through the top of the bulb in order to reduce the plate-grid capacity to a minimum. The cylindrical plate is completely shielded on the inside and outside by the second grid, the terminal of the latter being placed where the grid of standard tubes is located in the socket.

This second grid, when operated on a plus 67½ volt potential, will act as an electrostatic shield between the control grid and plate, eliminating all capacity effects between the control grid and plate and preventing any feedback, which was the main drawback of previous radio frequency circuits and necessitated neutralizing or introduction of considerable losses.

The filament is similar to that of the UX120 type and draws 0.125 amperes at a maximum of 3.3 volts.

A plate voltage of 135 to 145 volts is recommended with a shield grid potential of plus 67½ and a negative C Bias of 2-3 volts on the control grid. The SP122 tube will have in this case an amplification constant of 170 in comparison with 8 of the 201A tubes and will furnish an actual gain of 45 to 50 in a stage of intermediate frequency amplification against 6 to 7 in previous superheterodyne circuits. Thus a considerable reduction of tubes is possible with a great gain and perfect stability, if properly designed apparatus is selected for its use.

NOTED RADIO ENTERTAINERS ON KMOX UNTIL CHRISTMAS

The Mona Motor Oil Twins, John Wolfe and Ned Tollinger, are broadcasting as headliners on the Christmas tree program sponsored by KMOX. These recording entertainers come to KMOX from New York, where they broadcast over the Columbia network.

This team has appeared on an average of 150 to 200 stations a year.

They were originally scheduled for a five-day appearance, but George Junkin, director-announcer of KMOX, requested that their home station, KOIL, permit them to remain until Christmas.

Each year KMOX makes a special effort to have as many leading radio entertainers here for its Christmas tree campaign as possible. The Ray-O-Vac Twins will appear Dec. 19, 20 and 21. Lou Faris, the Eiffel Tower of Radio, and Elmer McDonald, tenor, will appear Dec. 24.

Last year the station received more than 20,000 packages for poor children.

JENNY LIND IMPERSONATED IN BROADCAST OVER WLW

Special to the Post-Dispatch

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 17.—Five years after the centenary celebration of the birth of Jenny Lind, a radio revival of the Jenny Lind tradition is being broadcast through WLW. Two concerts, last Wednesday, the second at 8 p. m. next Wednesday, are sponsored by Charles Lind, a descendant of the "Swedish Nightingale."

Lydia Dozier, a Cincinnati soprano, is impersonating Jenny Lind in the radio revival. Two years ago she impersonated her in a recital when the Burnet House, at which Jenny Lind stopped when she visited Cincinnati in 1850, on her triumphal American tour, was being torn down. Miss Dozier was chosen by the Cincinnati Historical Society to give in costume the Jenny Lind program because it was felt that her voice was most like the "lifty fervor of the tone" of the great singer.

Songs that were a part of Jenny Lind's repertoire on her American tour are being sung by Miss Dozier. They include, among others, "All Through the Night (Marzhauzer), "When I Was Seventeen," an old Swedish song: "The Echo," with flue obligato (Bishop); "Coming Through the Rye;" "Home, Sweet Home," and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," her two favorites, and "The Shadow Song" from Meyerbeer's "Dinorah."

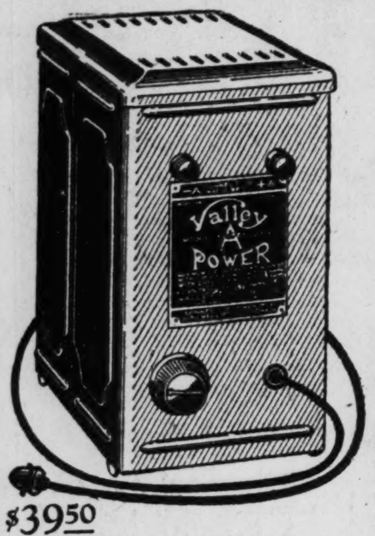
Eliminate your storage battery with a NEW

Valley "A" Power Unit



$39.50

Plugs into any light socket and gives a constant full "A" power. Eliminates the "A" battery and charger.

Here is the unit which now makes it possible to completely electrify any set. The Valley "A" Power Unit eliminates the 6-volt storage battery by replacing both the "A" battery and a charger. This unit contains no batteries, tubes or moving parts; it makes no hum or noise. To install, simply connect up the Valley "A" Power Unit in place of the storage battery. If a "B" Power Unit is used, plug it into the back of the "A" Power Unit and you have a completely electrified set without disturbing your set or making any changes in it.

The Valley "A" Power Unit consumes current from the light socket only when the set is in use. Convenient pendant "off and on" switch on the Valley "A" Power Unit turns on both "A" and "B" Power, so it is not necessary to use the switch on your set.

The results obtained with the Valley "A" Power Unit are much more satisfactory than when a storage battery is used. There is always an even flow of full strength current which gives clear, powerful reception at all times. The Valley "A" Power Unit comes in a handsome black enamel, satin finish case, complete with cord, plug and 4 ft. pendant switch.

Valley B Power Unit

Model 40—Designed for use with radio receivers of 5 and 6 tubes or less. Supplies all B current necessary, including extra B voltage and C voltage required when a UX-112 power tube is used. Equipped with standard Raytheon type BH tube, ideal for this service.

IVANTZOFF IN "AIDA" OVER KSD WEDNESDAY

Russian Baritone to Have Role of Amonasro — Astrid Fjelde in Title Part.

Verdi's "Aida" will be broadcast in tabloid form by the National Grand Opera ensemble through KSD, under direction of Cesare Sodero, Wednesday evening at 9:30.

The soloists will be: Aida, Astrid Fjelde, soprano; Amneris, Devora Nadworney, contralto; Amonasro, Ivan Ivantzoff, baritone; Rhadames, Giuseppe di Benedetto, tenor; Ramfis, Nino Ruisi, basso.

Story of the Opera.

The scenes of the opera are laid in Memphis and Thebes, in the time of the Pharaohs.

At the opening of the opera there is a dialogue between Rhadames and the high priest, Ramfis, leading to tenor aria, "Celeste Aida."

Aida, the heroine, although a slave, is the daughter of Amonasro, King of Ethiopia, who threatens Egypt. She spends her captivity among the Egyptians. A secret attachment exists between Aida and Rhadames, a young Egyptian officer, who is also loved by Amneris, daughter of the King of Egypt, whom Aida serves as slave.

Rhadames is chosen to lead the Egyptian troops against the invading Ethiopians. There is a martial chorus in the temple as the consecrated sword and banner are delivered to the young warrior by the high priest. Aida sings "Ritorna Vincitor!" (Return Victorious) as Rhadames starts off to war. The priestesses of the temple sing to the accompaniment of harps, to which the sonorous chant of the priests in front is added. In the finale of this act Verdi uses two native Egyptian themes, the priestesses' chorus and the dance-melody given out by the flutes.

A Powerful Scene.

The second act opens with a chorus by slave girls, and the march of the returning conqueror is heard in the distance, with the approaching trumpets leading to a triumphal motive. With the entry of Rhadames and his array of warriors, war trophies, and retinue of captured slaves, a great chorus is heard, "Gloria all' Egitto" (Glory to Egypt). The act proceeds to a tremendous climax. Rhadames brings the rebellious King, Amonasro, a captive.

Amneris, long suspecting her rival, Aida, does not discover her love or her rank until King Amonasro is brought in a prisoner. She is further made to realize the truth when Rhadames, asked to name his reward for victory, pleads for the lives of Aida and Amonasro and the release of the other captives. The King agrees to release all but Aida and Amonasro.

Amonasro sings the powerful air, "Ma, tu, re, signore possente" (But Thou, O King, Most Powerful Lord), adding his plea to that of Rhadames. Upon Rhadames the unwilling victor, the King bestows the hand of Amneris, and the act closes amid great jubilation.

Swift to Tragedy.

Acting on the advice of Amonasro, Aida counsels Rhadames, in the third act, on the banks of the Nile, to flee his country with her and take up arms for her father. There is a lovely romance by Aida, "Oh, patria mia: Oh, cieli azzurri" (Oh, native land: Oh, skies of tender blue). Then Aida's song of despair: "Ohime' mi sento morir" (Alas, death approaches.)

The plotting lovers are overheard by Amneris and the high priest. The infuriated Princess denounces Rhadames as a traitor to Egypt. He is captured, tried for treason and sentenced to be buried alive in the vaults of the temple.

Pardon is offered him if he will accept the hand of Amneris, but he refuses and descends to the tomb. There Aida joins him through a secret passage. There is a duet, "O terra, addio" (Farewell to Earth). The tomb is sealed and the lovers are united in death while the broken-hearted Amneris kneels in the temple above, over their graves, as the priestesses sing their melancholy chant to harp accompaniment.

$32.50
Slightly Higher West of the Rockies
4-volt model for Radiola Sets or any receiver using small tubes, $27.50. Slightly higher west of the Rockies.
Electric operation with ABOX means that any set operating eight tubes or less receives power direct from the light socket, of exactly the right characteristics for perfect reception, with the total elimination of battery, charger and relay.
There are no tubes to burn out or replace, movable parts to wear out, or critical adjustments to be made.
ABOX will last for years. You'll marvel at its sturdiness and strength. Yet it weighs less than half as much as an ordinary storage "A" battery and is always as spic and span as a new dollar.
Your set can be converted into a full-fledged electric "A" power receiver, without rewiring or changing tubes—simply make two connections.
You've never experienced such economy and convenience as ABOX will give you.
The ABOX Filter is an entirely different unit from the Eliminator, being the filter circuit alone in a small, compact unit. If you have a suitable charger, it can easily be converted into an "A" Eliminator by substituting the ABOX Filter for the storage battery. Shipping weight, 11 lbs. Price, $19.50. Slightly higher west of the Rockies.

DE GOGORZA ON KSD TOMORROW EVENING

Famous Baritone Soloist for General Motors Family Party.

A feature of the General Motors Family Party for KSD listeners tomorrow evening, will be Tschaikowsky's "1812 Overture," played by the combined General Motors Symphony Orchestra and the Goldman Band.

Emilio de Gogorza, noted concert baritone, will be soloist in this program.

The "1812" overture is one of the few works written to order that has survived a public event. Ordered to commemorate the retreat of the French from Moscow, it contains Russian folk music, and toward its close the retreating French trumpets are heard as the ponderous brass section brings up the old Russian National Hymn.

In some European performances a huge bass drum is used for the "cannon" effects. Some of the larger New York motion picture orchestras have set of actual explosions and red fire, in addition to Cathedral chimes, to depict the thanks and joy of the triumphant Russians in 18[illegible].

De Gogorza, was born in Brooklyn of Spanish parents who were passing through America. When he was two months old, they returned to Spain. At eleven he was sent to England to study that language, and nine years later came back to the United States of which he is now a citizen.

De Gogorza is a well-known concert and recording artist.

The violoncello is one of the finest instruments to broadcast owing to its rich, beautiful tone, and its great technical possibilities.

MAKES RADIO STATIC UNHEARD
A simple, amazing device has been invented by C. H. Geppert, N-966 Hewitt Bldg., Des Moines, Ia., which filters 50 to 90 per cent of static in radio receiving sets. Not only that, but when static is not bad, you can increase your volume tremendously, bring in more distant stations, save 30 to 40 per cent on batteries, eliminate local stations from running in, give your set at least one more stage of radio reception and greater selectivity. Works on all radios; can be attached instantly by anyone without change to set. Mr. Geppert wants agents and is willing to send a no-cost sample. Write him today.

MORE COMPLAINTS OF CHAIN PROGRAMS

Criticism Based on Occupancy of 300-500 Meter Band by Network Stations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Complaints are reaching the Federal Radio Commission against chain stations which occupy the cleared waves between 300 and 500 meters (600 to 100 kilocycles.)

Listeners in the Middle West assert that they frequently can get only one program from most of the large stations on the cleared waves.

They are asking the commission to take stations which broadcast chain programs of cleared waves, so that a greater variety of entertainment may be obtained.

A recent letter cited the Maxwell hour as an example.

"Although the Maxwell program is generally pretty good," wrote the listener, "I do not like being in the position where I cannot get anything else.

"Last Thursday evening I tried to get something else from another station. I fished around for nearly an hour, and here is what I got:

"WBAL, Baltimore — Maxwell program.

"WJZ, New York—Maxwell program.

"WHAM, Rochester — Maxwell program.

"KDKA, Pittsburg — Maxwell program.

"WLW, Cincinnati — Maxwell program.

"WJR, Detroit—Maxwell program.

"KYW, Chicago—Maxwell program.

"WRHM, Minneapolis—Maxwell program.

"KSD, St. Louis—Maxwell program.

"WOC, Davenport — Maxwell program.

"WHO, Des Moines — Maxwell program.

"WOW, Omaha—Maxwell program.

"WDAF, Kansas City—Maxwell program.

"WHAS, Louisville — Maxwell program.

"WSM, Nashville—Maxwell program.

"WMC, Memphis—Maxwell program.

"WSB, Atlanta — Maxwell program.

"WJAX, Jacksonville — Maxwell program.

"WRVA, Richmond — Maxwell program.

"WBAP, Fort Worth—Maxwell program.

"Undoubtedly, there were others broadcasting that same program. What should I do in a case like that? Close down my set if I do not like the Maxwell program?

"I believe if the commission will investigate and find out how many of these stations are on cleared waves, they will see the injustice of the present arrangement."

Trade Notes

A special radio demonstration bus, in which Arborphone receivers are operated, has been in St. Louis the past week. It has been sent out daily from the Barrett Electrical Supply Co., 3111-15 Washington boulevard, exclusive Arborphone distributer, to show dealers all over the metropolitan area just what the new models of this receiver can do.

MORE COMPLAINTS OF CHAIN PROGRAMS

Criticism Based on Occupancy of 300-500 Meter Band by Network Stations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Complaints are reaching the Federal Radio Commission against chain stations which occupy the cleared waves between 300 and 500 meters (600 to 100 kilocycles.)

Listeners in the Middle West assert that they frequently can get only one program from most of the large stations on the cleared waves.

They are asking the commission to take stations which broadcast chain programs of cleared waves, so that a greater variety of entertainment may be obtained.

A recent letter cited the Maxwell hour as an example.

"Although the Maxewll program is generally pretty good," wrote the listener, "I do not like being in the position where I cannot get anything else.

"Last Thursday evening I tried to get something else from another station. I fished around for nearly an hour, and here is what I got:

"WBAL, Baltimore — Maxwell program.

"WJZ, New York—Maxwell program.

"WHAM, Rochester — Maxwell program.

"KDKA, Pittsburg — Maxwell program.

"WLW, Cincinnati — Maxwell program.

"WJR, Detroit—Maxwell program.

"KYW, Chicago—Maxwell program.

"WRHM, Minneapolis—Maxwell program.

"KSD, St. Louis—Maxwell program.

"WOC, Davenport — Maxwell program.

"WHO, Des Moines — Maxwell program.

"WOW, Omaha—Maxwell program.

"WDAF, Kansas City—Maxwell program.

"WHAS, Louisville — Maxwell program.

"WSM, Nashville—Maxwell program.

"WMC, Memphis—Maxwell program.

"WSB, Atlanta — Maxwell program.

"WJAX, Jacksonville — Maxwell program.

"WRVA, Richmond — Maxwell program.

"WBAP, Fort Worth—Maxwell program.

"Undoubtedly, there were others broadcasting that same program. What should I do in a case like that? Close down my set if I do not like the Maxwell program?

"I believe if the commission will investigate and find out how many of these stations are on cleared waves, they will see the injustice of the present arrangement."

Trade Notes

A special radio demonstration bus, in which Arborphone receivers are operated, has been in St. Louis the past week. It has been sent out daily from the Barrett Electrical Supply Co., 3111-15 Washington boulevard, exclusive Arborphone distributer, to show dealers all over the metropolitan area just what the new models of this receiver can do.

TRANSFORMER AUDIO STILL MOST POPULAR FOR SETS

Transformer-coupled audio amplification retains its popularity by a wide margin, in spite of claims of superiority made by proponents of resistance and impedance amplification, according to engineers of the Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing Co.

They contend that for tone quality, correctly designed audio transformers and careful attention to the output system and tubes will produce fully as natural reproduction and with much greater volume than either of the other types.

An audio filter can be used to aid in reproduction of low notes, by cutting off the extremely high frequencies, which often cause noisy reception. A 171-A tube is absolutely essential in the second stage for fullest musical expression, the engineers say.

Another precaution for best reproduction is use of correct C battery voltage, 4½ volts being used on the grid return of the first stage and 40½ on the second. One hundred and eighty volts of B on the plate of the second audio tube insures a wealth of undistorted volume. No. 3-AX audio transformers are used.

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

PART SEVEN. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 18, 1927. PAGES 1—4A

Alan Brooks. As Satan In "The King of Kings" At the American.

The Big Little Theater

Players-Guild to Provide Dramatic Novelty of the Week With Three One-Act Plays, While the American Theater Is Presenting the De Mille Picture, "The King of Kings" and "Abie's Irish Rose" Is Holding Down the Boards at the Shubert-Rialto.

AMATEURS will hold the spotlight in the ordinarily scant attention paid to the drama during the week before Christmas, for the American Theater is devoting this week and the next to Cecil De Mille's motion picture of the life of Christ, "The King of Kings," while the Shubert presents "Abie's Irish Rose," which, according to rumor, has been seen here before. Even the stock company out at the Empress has dug up an old-timer out of the past and will give "The Old Homestead."

It is the newly organized Players-Guild which will provide the dramatic novelty this week with an offering of three one-act plays at the little Artists' Guild Theater on Union boulevard. George Bernard Shaw's "Overruled," J. M. Synge's "The Shadow of the Glen," and Stephen Leacock's "Behind the Beyond" comprise the program which will be offered from tomorrow night to Friday night, inclusive, with a special students' matinee Wednesday.

In presenting a group of one-act plays, the Players-Guild was guided by several factors—a desire to keep in touch with the Little Theater movement as well as moving forward toward a local art theater; a wish not to tax members of the cast with nightly rehearsals before the holidays, as would be necessary with a three-act drama, and the hope of mustering a large group of players and testing them under fire.

With the experience acquired from these diverse one-act plays, ranging from the deft wit of Shaw, through the drama of Synge, to the broad farce of Leacock, the Players-Guild expects its players to be fully ready in "The Curious Mishap," which is to be given in February, to exceed the standard set in its first production, "Outward Bound."

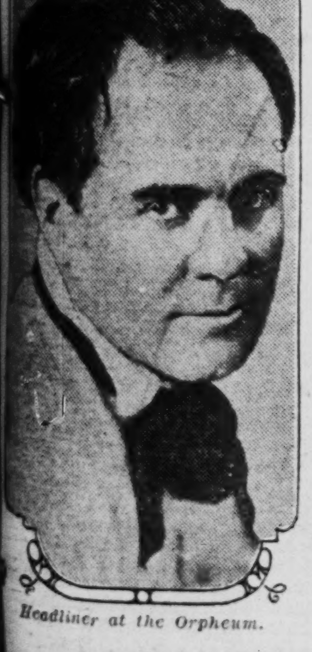
The selection of Goldoni's comedy is indicative of the goal of the Players-Guild, for in no other way could "The Curious Mishap" be seen in St. Louis. It is a play, furthermore, that has a definite niche in dramatic history, marking the transition from Shakspearean drama to the modern form.

IN THE coming week's productions some 18 local players will appear under the direction of F. K. Cowley. The cast of "Overruled," which deals with the possible consequences of married couples flirting while on shipboard, consists of Grace Miller as Mrs. Juno; Charles Dillon as Gregory; Max S. Muench as Mr. Juno, and Gertrude Funkhouser as Mrs. Lunn.

Synge's play concerns the attempt of an old man to trap his young wife in infidelity, and will be enacted by Norah J. Taylor as Nora Burke, the young wife; Avon Blue as a tramp; Elliot Bergfeld as Dan Burke, and Marcy Armstrong as Michael Dara.

The cast of "Behind the Beyond," a travesty on the problem play, includes Edwin P. Lehman as the Tired Business Man; Lucia Hutchins as His Wife; Rheba Spotts as the Sweet Young Thing; Gene Woods as Arbuthnot Gay; Alan A. Atchison as Sir John Trevor; Adeline Goldstein as Lady Cicely Trevor; J. K. Gruner Jr. as Mr. Harding; Rosetta Siegfried as Mrs. Harding; Warren F. Drescher as the Butler at the Trevors, and Jane Buel Bradley as a French maid.

Leo Carillo



Headliner at the Orpheum.

CECIL DE MILLE, who made "The King of Kings," has been connected with the motion picture industry almost from its inception. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. de Mille of stage and playmaker fame, he was born at Ashburnham, Mass., and was educated in his father's school at Pompton, N. J., and at the American Academy of Dramatic Art. His brother, William, became a playwright and he entered the acting profession. Fifteen years ago Mr. de Mille, in conjunction with Jesse L. Lasky and Mr. Lasky's brother-in-law, organized a small motion picture unit and went to Hollywood, where the three invested a few thousand dollars in a movie-making enterprise that started in a disused barn, one block back from the now far-famed Hollywood boulevard, in the Los Angeles suburb.

Out of this tiny enterprise—one of their first pictures was "The Squaw Man" with nearly all outdoor locations—there grew in combination with Adolph Zucker's New York unit the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and the Para-

Thyrsus to Present Caesar and Cleopatra

Through an arrangement with the Theater Guild of New York the Thyrsus Society, the dramatic organization of Washington University, will present George Bernard Shaw's drama, "Caesar and Cleopatra," during the coming year. This play has not been available for amateur production and when the Thyrsus Society first asked for permission to put it on here they were refused the rights. Later the play was released to them.

"Caesar and Cleopatra" will be given by the Washington University organization early in April at the American Theater and rehearsals will be started after the holidays.

Peter Greig will have charge of the production for Thyrsus. The play has not been seen here in many years.

Harefoot Club In A Musical Comedy

"Feature That," a snappy musical comedy, will be presented by the Harefoot Club of the University of Wisconsin, when it appears at the Odeon, Friday evening, Dec. 30. All parts in the production, both male and female, are taken by university men. Last year the club, whose motto is "All Our Girls Are Men, Yet Everyone's A Lady," appeared here in the highly successful musical comedy, "Meet the Prince."

The appearance of the Harefoot Club in St. Louis is part of a mid-Western tour which will cover 16 cities. The boys will appear in 27 performances in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Missouri, with matinee shows in eight cities.

Behind the Screens Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17.

HE WAS the model for a collar ad. She was an inventor's daughter. Now these two natives of New York City are Hollywood's latest team of romantic screen lovers, soon to be introduced to film fans as competitors of the John Gilbert-Greta Garbo, Ronald Coleman-Vilma Banky and Janet Gaynor-Charles Farrell combinations.

She is Sally Eilers and he is Matty Kemp, and the producer who plans to star them as a romantic team is, of all persons, Mack Sennett, whose films made the custard pie and the bathing suit famous.

But then, Mack Sennett has never hesitated to do the unexpected if it happened to appeal to him. Back in the spring of 1914 he announced he was going to make a six-reel comedy, which was so unexpected in those one-reel custard pie days that he might have worried the industry into hysterics if the World War hadn't broken out and distracted everyone's attention from the awful risk he was taking with his money. The picture not only didn't bankrupt Sennet: it made Charlie Chaplin famous, so six-reel comedies soon became commonplace.

Now the Columbus of custard-pie comedy chooses to think he has discovered a new romantic team, and those who remember such Sennett graduates as Gloria Swanson, Chester Conklin, Phyllis Haver and Wallace Beery will hesitate before advising him to stick to the slapstick that made him famous.

Sally Eilers came to California as a child and went to high school in Hollywood. About nine months ago she went to work as an extra in pictures, and she still was an unknown when Sennett picked her to play the lead in what was to have been "The Romance of a Bathing Girl," but eventually turned out to be a romantic war comedy, "The Goodbye Kiss," with Sally and Matty Kemp supplying the romance. Their work together pleased the producer so much he determined to keep them together as a romantic team, and in line with this policy they will start work on another picture within a few weeks.

Sally's team-mate has been in pictures since the summer of 1925, when Carl Laemmle signed him in New York after becoming interested in him through the collar ads for which Matty posed. He remained at Universal for about a year, playing a part in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and several comedy and Western leads before going over to Sennett to play juvenile leads.

Both Sally and Matty are talented off-screen as well as on. She paints; he plays the violin. Sally brags of one accomplishment, however, which for a romantic heroine is rather interesting: She insists she's a marvelous cook.

With "Sadie Thompson," her latest picture, completed and ready for release, Gloria Swanson will return to Hollywood from New York about the middle of December to begin preparations for the production of her third independent offering under the United Artists banner.

The editing and titling of "Sadie Thompson," which was filmed under the direction of Raoul Walsh, was completed following Miss Swanson's departure for the East. A print of the picture was sent to New York by air mail for her approval. Plans for a pre-Christmas release having been abandoned, it now seems likely that "Sadie Thompson" will have its premiere in New York very early in the New Year, possibly during the first week of January. Supporting the producer-star in "Sadie Thompson" are Lionel Barrymore as the reformer "Alfred Davidson," Blanche Friderici as "Mrs. Davidson." Charles Lane, Florence Midgley, James A. Marcus and others, with Raoul Walsh in the role of the Marine Sergeant, "Timothy O'Hara," in addition to directing.

"Ramona," which Edwin Carewe is producing with Dolores del Rio starred, was made 16 years ago in one-reel form. David Wark Griffith, who is again producing for United Artists ("Drums of Love" being his newest film), directed this original version of Helen Hunt Jackson's novel. Another United Artists producer, who is "My Best Girl" at the Rialto just now, was the star. Miss Pickford created the character for the screen.

The bold, bad villain who shot "Alessandro" to death subsequently deserted the gun for the pie crust as a medium of destruction. Mack Sennett was the naughty boy in the one-reel "Ramona."

"The Little Colonel" of Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," Henry B. Walthall was the "Felipe" of this original version of Mrs. Jackson's story.

In the footsteps tramped into the celluloid of time by Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett and Henry B. Walthall, there come such players as Dolores del Rio, Warner Baxter, Roland Drew (who was born Walter Goss), Vera Lewis, Michael Visaroff, John T. Prince, Carlos Amor and Mathilde Comont.

Dolores Del Rio, by the way, will make her next appearance on the screen on New Year's day in "The Gateway of the Moon," a drama of the South American jungle, according to an announcement from Fox Films. Previously it had been announced that Miss Del Rio's next picture would be "No Other Woman," but this has been withdrawn in favor of the jungle film.

It is just a year ago that Miss Del Rio made her success with her portrayal of the French Charmaine in "What Price Glory." In "The Gateway of the Moon" she portrays an exotic jungle beauty who captures the heart of an English engineer building a railroad through the wilds of Bolivia. Walter Pidgeon plays the role of the English engineer and Leslie Fenton has a sympathetic part. Anders Randolf portrays the villainish chief engineer, with Adolf Millar as his assistant. Comedy is provided by Ted McNamara, who distinguished himself along that line in "What Price Glory."

Changing directors and leading women after nearly three months' camera work on the picture, "Tempest," John Barrymore is working day and night to catch up with the most intensive schedule of his screen career.

Eighteen hours' work a day is not unusual for the star and his company of hundreds. Many scenes in the romantic story of revolutionary Russia are being retaken as a result of scenario changes decided upon by Barrymore and Sam Taylor, the new director. When "Tempest" originally was planned, six months ago, the film chiefs engaged Camilla Horn, European star, for the leading feminine role, but UFA, to whom the 19-year-old beauty was under contract, would not permit her to come to America at that time. Vera Veronina, Russian actress, started work opposite Barrymore and had appeared in only a few scenes when she was taken suddenly ill. Dorothy Sebastian next was borrowed from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with the understanding that she should be away from her own lot only a few weeks.

Metro unexpectedly recalled Miss Sebastian; in the meantime, however, Camilla Horn had secured her release from UFA and arrived in Hollywood. Camilla's arrival solved all the difficulties and she immediately started work in the role of a General's daughter, with whom Barrymore, as a leader of rebellious soldiers, falls in love. With the decision to make radical changes in the story of "Tempest," the original director, Slav Tourjansky, relinquished the megaphone in favor of Sam Taylor, who recently completed Mary Pickford's new feature, "My Best Girl."

Filming of "Tempest" probably will run well into next year, as every sequence in which the chief feminine character has appeared must be re-made, and many more sets are to be constructed as a result of additions to the story. Barrymore's supporting cast includes Louis Wolheim, George Fawcett, Ullrich Haupt, Boris de Fas, Lena Malena and Albert Conti.

Richard Barthelmess has returned from his brief vacation following the completion of the picturization of Willard Mack's stage play, "The Noose," and is preparing to start work on John Fox Jr.'s, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come."

Barthelmess will have two leading ladies in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." They are Molly O'Day, the youngster who made a hit in "The Patent Leather Kid," and May McAvoy. Gardner

Broadway is becoming effete. It is now considered impolite to hit a lady with your hat on.

Ray Long, Rex Beach, Roy Howard, Irvin Cobb and C. B. Parker recently went on a hunting expedition in the wilds of Oklahoma. Mr. Cobb and Mr. Beach are said to have written two good stories while there. So it wasn't an entirely futile trip.

Geraldine Farrar is now gray-haired but not old. She is still buoyant and vibrant with girlish freshness. No one has ever succeeded her in flapper popularity at the Metropolitan but she refuses to return to opera. She prefers concert tours and thus avoids all the bickerings and jealousies that go with grand opera. A sensible lady.

The Rialto has 15 distinct theatrical hits—the biggest "wham" list in five years.

The dignified publishing house of Dutton's has published a book called "Face Value." It is the life story of an exhibitionist in a Paris peep show and, as awful as the theme may sound, it is done with such moving grace and beauty that it has become one of the most striking books of the year. And a best seller.

The most depraved job in the world, it seems to me, is that of a Paris "guide." He is a skulking figure who stands in doorways button-holing strangers to show them the bestial life of a wicked city. He is in league with the scum of the underworld and will lead his victims to traps of death for a few dollars.

I heard a father complaining the other day that all his children cared about him was what they could get out of him. That is the fate of every father until offsprings reach an age of appreciation. Every child has the "gimmes" and Dad in their eyes is a soft mark. And if I had children I would want them to think of me as Old Easy Mark all their lives.

Ruth Elder was, of course, a real heroine and the newspapers were very gracious to her following her heroic and ill-starred flight. But the truth is New York showed comparatively no interest. Miss Elder arrived too late and the reputed hitch with her husband was unfortunate. New York had spent itself on other Atlantic hoppers. I saw her arrive at two theaters shortly after her home-coming and the motorcycle guard accompanying her looked sheepish. There were no crowds to protect her from. Another time she was introduced in a theater but the enthusiasm was mild.

Mysterious Movie Moves

Negotiations Going on for Consolidation of Cinema Houses of the West Which Would Take in Skouras Theaters Here—Loew's Sees the Hand-Writing on the Wall and Will Put a Personality Plus Expert on Its Stage With a Band Next Week.

By NIE.

SOME sweeping changes and consolidations are soon to be brought about in the motion picture world with St. Louis very much involved in the big deals. As told in these columns last week the changes being considered are largely affairs of business and bookkeeping and management. There is nothing about the affair of vital interest to the cash customers who care little who runs the cinema palaces so long as they are able to buy tickets to an at least promising looking show.

The negotiations now under way, and partly completed, involve the absorbtion of the local theaters of Skouras Brothers by the Wesco Theater Company, a Pacific Coast organization controlling and operating several hundred houses in the far West. Wesco also plans to take in the Saxe Amusement enterprises in Wisconsin, the Circle Theaters Company, centering in Indianapolis and the Northwest Theater chain operated in Minneapolis. For several weeks this deal has been going on with the banking firm of Hayden, Stone & Co. of New York taking part in the conferences which have been held in Milwaukee. It is reported that the Saxe chain of houses has already gone into the consolidation with Wesco.

This new middle western circuit, if formed, will be operated as a unit of Wesco forming one vast collection of show houses. The deal is said to have in view the placing of Spiros Skouras in charge of the Saxe circuit with his headquarters in Milwaukee.

No one connected with the Skouras outfit here will discuss the deal and there are so many slip ups in motion picture business proposals that the negotiations may come to nothing at all, but there is every indication that the plan will go through this time.

Incidentally the deal has progressed far enough to take Bill Goldman away from St. Louis and he is already established in an important position with the theaters in Wisconsin. Goldman was one of the movie pioneers here starting when the game was young with a tent show. Later he was managing director of the Missouri, general manager for the Paramount houses here and then associated with the Skouras organization.

IT must be remembered that the scheme for a consolidation of Skouras and Loew here in St. Louis was looked upon as an assured fact until the death of Marcus Loew upset matters. Now the local Loew house, with an eye on the success of the form of entertainment furnished by Ed Lowry and Brooke Johns is going to follow in the footsteps of the Ambassador and Missouri and bury its picture under an enlarged stage show. In other words Loew's State will have what more learned circles term "A Big Lear and Ogle Man."

There, in one brief sentence, is the information that Loew's will abandon the type of presentation it has used for more than three years it has been in operation; and that it will go into the "personality leader" or "bandshow" policy.

A "personality leader" is one of those form-fitting individuals who can turn on electric light smiles at will. They can park the pupils of their eyes in the northeast corner, while delivering themselves of a wise-crack that will become the prop of flapper and drugstore hemens conversation during the week it was delivered. That's a "personality leader."

FOR three years, Loew's has relied on "name" stage attractions, plus more or less semi-classical bursts of more or less entertainment.

For 35 cents (until 6 p. m.—adv.) matinees, in addition to yards and yards of motion pictures, Loew's stage has presented such varied theatrical opera as Sousa's Band, the Siamese Twins, Olga Petrova, Edna Wallace Hopper, the 62-year-old flapper; Irene Franklin, Waring's Pennsylvanians, Edna Leedom, principal comedienne of the Ziegfeld Follies; Emma Trentini, Prof. Gene Tunney, the eminent boxer; a 110-piece Boy Scout

When Charlie Chaplin Searched For a Makeup—And Found It

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 17.

IT WAS in a little backyard space at the Christie Studios, where the actors gather and sun themselves waiting for the call of Eddie Sutherland to hurry them into a scene of the 1928 version of "Tillie's Punctured Romance," that the yarn spinning began—as it always does on the outer fringes of the sets.

W. C. Fields, with his derby and the essential toothpick that he had been using for scenes in a circus wagon, was balanced up against a palm tree in an undertaker's chair, letting the afternoon sun beat down on his neck, not yet quite healed from the almost fatal bicycle ride which he recently took in "Two Flaming Youths." Chester Conklin, in his flannel nightshirt and frowsy old bathrobe and slippers, the whole ensemble topped off with the Western hat of Mr. Frisbee, the circus owner, was the chief "reminiscer," for he was one of the host of comedians who were on "the old Sennett lot" in the days when Tillie's romances was first punctured some thirteen years ago, and even before that. Louise Fazenda was there. So was Mack Swain.

Bob Kerr, a Christie comedy director, was another of the group, who, in the so-called good old pie days, got his $3 per day and did just about every kind of work in the category to earn it.

"When I think of the neck-breaking stuff we used to do and think nothing of it," said Chester, "it makes me shiver. You had to in those days to get by and keep your job. No, sir, I wouldn't do 'em now for this studio as a gift and the Paramount lot thrown in."

A typical day was described by Kerr—one of the first days he worked as an extra. In the morning an automobile bumped him off the pier at Venice; an hour later he rode a motorcycle off the same pier, and still in the same day he doubled back into the automobile which had bumped him off the dock, when the car itself was sent into a similar dive into the Pacific.

Speaking of the $3, one night recently Harold Lloyd came up behind Kerr's seat at the fights and whispered in his ear, "Push the cart, buddy, or you don't get the $3." Harold was reminding him of the time at the Keystone 14 or 15 years ago when Kerr was an assistant director, getting $18 a week, and Harold was one of the $3-a-day extras. The "company" of actors, directors and extras used to clean up the stage, sweep it off and scrape the mud off the back end toward the hills where water washed down in rainy weather, before their real day's work began. By that time Sennett would be at the studio and ready to exercise the cops.

On this particular day there was a cart to be pushed way up the hill in Edendale where pictures were made. Kerr, yelled at Harold to help push. "It was a long push and I didn't blame the actors for ducking the job," said Bob. "Harold called my attention to the fact that he was being paid $3 for acting. So I told him to go on and help. 'Push the cart or you don't get the $3,' I said. On the way up the hill we had a nice long chat in which, from my own lordly position as an $18-a-week guarantee man, I handed out a lot of advice to the newcomer by pointing out how nobody got ahead in that studio unless he pushed the carts and swept the stage. Harold was a good cart pusher and he got his pay."

At the time when "Tillie's Punctured Romance" was filmed by Sennett, Charlie Chaplin was getting $175 a week, and at that time Sennett thought for a long time he was being overpaid. Mabel Normand got about $150 and, according to Chester, gave away at least half of it to broken down extra people who were sick or out of work or who came to her with troubles of every description.

"The best hearted girl in the world" is the often repeated testimonial to the laughing, open-handed Miss Normand of the pie days.

Chester Conklin and Mack Swain who were in the original Tillie picture got about $40 or $50 a week, and earned every cent of it. Eddie Sutherland, who is now directing the new version of the Tillie picture at Christie's, in those days was playing juveniles. About the time Charlie Chaplin began to be spoken of as being a very funny comedian, he used to tell the boys on the lot, "wait till my brother Syd comes over. His stuff is twice as funny." When Syd did come over, however, with a demand from Sennett of $1200 a week, which request nearly knocked the usually good-natured Irish producer right out of his swivel chair, Sennett didn't think Syd was funny at all. Syd finally took Charlie off to Mutual for about $1500 a week.

But that was some time after Charlie really made his first big hit in a comedy. Charlie had been fiddling around the studio trying all kinds of makeup and showing them to the boss. One rainy day the star's dressing room (Ford Sterling was the big star around the place then) housed three ardent pinochle players—Sterling Roscoe Arbuckle and Conklin. Charlie came breezing in, still trying makeups. He tried Arbuckle's pants, Chester's coat, and Ford Sterling's big shoes, then began monkeying around with a pile of crepe hair lying on the table, sticking little pieces of it on his upper lip and trying out the facial expressions in the mirror. The next day when the company had started to shoot on the stage on "Mabel's Strange Predicament," or some such picture, Charlie skipped around the stage in his new ensemble. He wasn't in the picture but was getting tremendous laughs out of the gang on the sidelines. At the usual time when the boss showed up the studio crowd was at the height of their amusement over Charlie's pantomime in his new outfit. Sennett spied the comedian and told him to wear the same stuff and do just what he was doing in the current picture. So he did, wandering in and out of the scenes for no particular reason as to the plot, but the character got over big.

His real success in a comedy didn't come until later, however, in a picture called "Dough and Dynamite." Charlie had been wanting to direct for some time, and the opportunity offered itself when Sennett was away at Catlina. Chaplin and Conklin, during one of those foggy morning lulls, were stalling around figuring what to do in the boarding house comedy Charlie was making while the boss was away. They wandered down to a bake shop near the studio and Charlie got an inspiration which fitted in very well with the scheme of things in the studio. For in those days of violent action they used to heave a pie any time when in doubt. Charlie made a big hit, especially in the scenes in which he coiled embryo doughnuts around his wrists. The picture was a big hit, but the boarding house story was abandoned and used for another picture.

Those were the happy days. Pie was cheap and actors were cheap. And the pictures were funny. Perhaps the same stuff wouldn't be considered so funny today, when it seems to take a little more production, and a little more elaborate subjects than being socked by a pie, being kicked and falling down or being smacked by an automobile full of police to set people into gales of laughter.

MARJORIE BEEBE and MADGE BELLAMY in "VERY CONFIDENTIAL" — St. Louis

BEHIND THE SCREENS

James will play the second male role. In "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" Barthelmess plays a typical American boy again, the sort of a role that best pleased his admirers.

Lillian Gish has signed a two-year contract with Jos. M. Schenck, President of United Artists, the company for which she made "Broken Blossoms," "Orphans of the Storm," "Way Down East," and other films which gave her prominence as an emotional actress.

Miss Gish will make but one or two pictures a year, Mr. Schenck said. Her first United Artists Picture will be ready for release in September, 1928, he added.

D. W. Griffith, who discovered Lillian Gish and made her famous through "The Birth of a Nation," may direct Miss Gish's first picture under her new contract.

Lillian Gish was a girlhood friend of Gladys Smith. Gladys, who had become Mary Pickford and "The Biograph Girl," introduced Lillian to Griffith. Now Miss Pickford and Miss Gish are United Artists stars; and so are Norma and Constance Talmadge, other members of the Griffith group. The director himself is again making films for the company he founded in 1919 with Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks. "Drums of Love," his new United Artists Picture, has just been completed.

A total of 450 yards of spaghetti (estimated), enough to ruin 355 vests (estimated), was used in the restaurant scenes for Pola Negri's latest production, "The Secret Hour," which has been completed at the Hollywood studio. A little, dingy cafe in the Italian quarter of Los Angeles was utilized for the scenes which show Pola Negri as a waitress, a beggar of love who finds it after many heart tribulations.

Fay Wray, the Hollywood high school girl who was selected by Erich von Stroheim to play the role of Mitzi in his super-picture, "The Wedding March," soon to be released, was notified by two words that she had been chosen for the part.

The role of Mitzi was considered to be one of the best of the year, and actresses of the film city were fighting for the chance to play it. Von Stroheim had seen Miss Wray in the Hollywood presentation of the Pilgrimage Play, given annually in the foothills above the city, and had remembered her.

One day he called her to his studio and tests were made before the camera. The next day he called her again. After several minutes of careful, silent scrutiny Von Stroheim started to talk of his plans for "The Wedding March." Never a word about Miss Wray or her chances. He talked on and on. Then, at the conclusion of the one-sided interview, when Miss Wray had risen to depart, Von Stroheim walked up to her, took her by the hand, and said, "Goodby Mitzi."

Wipe away the tears, children and adults, chase away the gloom frowns. There is to be no comedy famine this winter. On the contrary it is to be a busy season for Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, Paramount's team of joy spreaders.

The next step the two comedy stars are to make in their campaign is a step into the underworld, according to word emanating from their studio. A burlesque crook melodrama tentatively titled "Partners in Crime" is to be the next Beery-Hatton chuckle opera. The picture is to be a unique type of melodrama with a thrilling plot. This melodrama is to furnish a lurid background for Beery and Hatton.

Vatican Choirs Concert Friday

AN event of interest in music circles is the concert at the Coliseum on Friday night of the Vatican Choirs, from the Roman basilicas, consisting of singers from the Sistine chapel, St. Mary Maggoire, St. Peter's Basilica and St. John Lateran. They will sing under the patronage of Archbishop Glennon and under the auspices of the St. Louis Chapter, Knights of Columbus.

The appearance in the larger cities of the United States and Canada during the present tour marks the second time in history extending over 16 centuries that these ecclesiastical singers have ever sung outside of the papal environment. Until a few years ago these choirs have never been heard away from their appointed place in Rome. It was necessary to obtain the Pope's special permission for this visit.

At the solemn services in the Sistine Chapel at which His Holiness himself is present, attended by the Knights of Malta and the diplomatic corps, only the Sistine or Papal Choir has the privilege of conducting the musical service.

Symphony Rests Until Next Week

BERNARDINO MOLINARI, artistic director of the famous Augusteo, Rome, is now on the ocean en route to America to make his first appearances in this country as guest conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, Thursday evening Dec. 29 and Friday afternoon Dec. 30 at the Odeon. By the closest possible connections he will reach St. Louis on Christmas day, and on Dec. 26 will begin intensive rehearsals with the orchestra, for the first of his programs.

Until his debut there will be no concerts—either Symphonic or Popular by the orchestra and the next Sunday Popular Concert is scheduled for Jan. 8.

Yale and Harvard Clubs in Unique Dual Concert at the Odeon Friday

A DISTINCT novelty in college entertainment will be given next Friday evening, at the Odeon with the Yale Glee Club and the Harvard Instrumental Clubs in a dual concert. Classical music will be the part of the Yale Glee Club and spirited marches and popular music that of the Harvard Instrumental Clubs, the two presenting sufficient variety for every one. Each club carries soloists, young men prominent in the musical as well as the athletic life of the college. R. C. Durant of the class of '28 will be soloist with Yale. During his three years at Yale he has been a member of the Junior Varsity crew and in his freshman year rowed on the championship class crew. He is a second tenor, a member of the Whiffenpoofs, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Scroll and Keys. A. H. Holbrook is soloist with the Harvard group and serves as associate manager of the track team.

The only St. Louisan with the clubs is Lawrence E. Mallinckrodt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Mallinckrodt.

Both clubs arrive in town Friday afternoon and will be met at the station by the reception committee and taken to the University Club in busses where they will dine and proceed to the Odeon for the concert.

The combination of the clubs is almost unprecedented and came about in St. Louis because the Christmas itinerary of the two clubs met up here. The Yale Club, which holds to the classics, follows along with other Eastern colleges which have advanced their musical departments to a serious and dignified place in the regular curriculum.

The program for Friday evening follows:

The Yale Club is led by Marshall M. Bartholomew, to whom is due much of the credit for the position Yale holds in intercollegiate musical circles. Besides being a conductor and director of musical education, he is a composer, the club having sung a number of songs with success on many occasions.

THE PLAYERS-GUILD TO FURNISH NOVELTY OF DRAMATIC WEEK

mount Theaters, now the greatest single factor in world movies.

For a dozen years De Mille was the director general of the Lasky studio, making there "The Ten Commandments" and all his earlier productions. A few years ago he left the Paramount organization and allied himself with Producers, now combined with Pathe. His first picture for them was "The Volga Boatman," followed in the spring of 1927 by "The King of Kings."

IT is 41 years ago since the first production of "The Old Homestead," Denman Thompson's widely known comedy-drama, which has been selected by the National Players as this week's offering at the Empress. The piece was first presented in 1886 at the old Academy of Music in New York, where it played continuously for three years, five months and 11 days, a record which even "Abie's Irish Rose" or "Chu Chin Chow" had to hustle to beat. And following this phenomenal run, it played "the road" for 20 years with Denman Thompson in the leading role of Joshua Whitcomb, the warm-hearted, peace-loving New England farmer who goes to the big city in search of his wandering boy. Even in the New York of a half century ago, old Joshua found much to marvel at. Perhaps the greatest of all wonders to him was the policeman who, as the old gentleman discovered, was born in that great metropolis, had lived there for 30 years, and hadn't been killed yet!

Frank Jaquet, who 25 years ago played in Denman Thompson's company as Reuben, the prodigal, will appear at the Empress this week in the leading role. Hazel Whitmore will be seen as Rickety Ann, the little orphan girl who helps Aunt Matilda with the chores on the old farm, and John Lorenz as Happy Jack, a tramp who turns gentleman. Phil Macy will play the part of Reuben and Alice Baker that of Aunt Matilda.

The play will be presented with very few changes from its original form. The Swansey quartet, the Grace Church choir, and the old-fashioned country dance will all be retained. Even the now obsolete asides, those confidential messages from actor to audience, will be stage-whispered across the footlights once again as in days of yore.

HOLBROOK BLINN, in Ferenc Molnar's successful drama, "The Play's the Thing," comes to the Shubert Christmas night to be followed New Year's night by Mitzi in "The Madcap." On the same night, Jan. 1, "The King of Kings" having ended its stay at the American, the Market street playhouse will have the comedy, "Tommy," which played all last year at the Gaiety Theater, New York, and only last week finished a Chicago sojourn which began in August. St. Louis will be the third city in America to see it. On Jan. 9 the David Belasco production, "Lulu Belle," starring Lenore Ulric, comes to the American for an extended stay.

BIG MOVIE DEALS BEING TALKED ABOUT BY WESTERN HOUSES

Band, Sissle and Blake, Vincent Lopez Orchestra, the Gus Edwards Revue, McIntyre and Heath, Coon-Sanders Kansas City Night Hawks, the Russian Symphony Choir, Al Herman's Minstrels and Nora Bayes. Also, local Art Lovers had their first opportunity to contemplate Gilda Gray's bead-covered (every now and then, and when you'd least expect it) person at close range, while Gilda galloped across the Loew stage.

But that's over.

NEW times, new fashions for the "personality leader" vogue is on; and Loew's deserts its hitherto-beloved form of presentation to do as the Romans (or is it the Grecians?) do.

The tremendously-profitable style established right here in St. Louis has set the whole United States, theatrically speaking, into a frenzy of "band shows," featuring "personality leaders."

In each city, the local fiddlers and saxophone players, clad in tuxedos, are hoisted onto the stage, to fill the air with the immortal harmonies of "Me and My Shadow." Or else, Isadore Ginsberg and his musical confreres are dumped into fuzzy pants and bandana handkerchiefs, to stimulate the boys of Cow's Hips, Montana, in productions named "'Way Out West."

With the local bandsmen on the stage, the managements probably have figured that it was up to them to do something for Esthetic Beauty. So dancing groups of 12 Tiller girls, locally recruited, were relied upon to supply the missing something. And when the legs of those lovely ladies all point in the same direction, the managerial boys decided all had been done that could be done for the Arts and the Sciences.

Vaudeville acts are introduced by the master of ceremonies, with the familiar Texas Guinan night club urge, "Give this little girl a hand," with no thoughts being contemplated of a public spanking.

SO Loew's Christmas gift to local Art Lovers will be Teddy Joyce, who, Maj. Bowes of the New York Capitol broadcast to listeners-in last Sunday, will "wow" the ... cal inteligentsia.

Teddy, it seems, has been a young riot at the Capitol with his dancing, his violin playing, his moments at the piano and the 'cello or what have you.

At the Loew movie parlor things are moving frenziedly beneath the surface, pending Teddy's arrival.

The publicity department is in a fever. Maurice Davis, the Self-Sacrificing young man who does Loew's ads and newspaper copy, in a great-souled way has given his own private "billing" to Teddy. Poe La Rose, for five years the "right hand" of Roxy at the Criterion, Rivoli and Rialto in New York, has come to St. Louis to produce each week's show. Melba Vierdag, St. Louis girl who was "captain" of the Rockets which Russell Harkert took from St. Louis to dance in the Greenwich Village Follies, will drill the Muny Opera graduates Loew's has engaged for its Tiller chorus.

And some day some movie house manager is going to wake up and remember that what he is running is, fundamentally, a picture theater.

ADOLPHE MENJOU, whose picture, "Serenade," is at the Ambassador this week, started out on his theatrical career as a comedian. Now he is considered the personification of the suave society gentleman.

"The stage and screen are filled with comedians," Menjou says, in explaining why he changed to his present type of characterization. "Some are good and some are not.

"I knew that it was not in my get-up to be a really great comedian. I wanted to be classed as an actor more than anything else. By 'actor,' I mean a player who can essay any type of role.

45 SMOKE PRODUCERS REPORTED ABATED

All in Single District Where Soot Fall Was Reduced 40 Per Cent Last Month.

In the last 30 days 45 apartments, hotels and industrial plants in a single district have been removed from the list of chronic or moderate smokers and given a clean rating by the Citizens' Smoke Abatement League, officers of the organization have announced.

The district, one of eight into which the city has been divided in the campaign to eliminate smoke, is bounded by Grand boulevard on the east, Magnolia avenue on the south, Kingshighway on the west and Page boulevard on the north. H. W. Menzemer, supervisor, and three instructors are in charge.

From an observation tower atop the Hampden Hall Apartments, Newstead and McPherson avenues, they spotted the worst offenders in the district and then persuaded the owners to remedy the evil or gave instructions in proper firing to the furnace tenders. The smoke observers reported willing co-operation.

A 40 per cent reduction in soot fall in this district last month as compared with the same month last year was attributed by the league officials to these methods of fighting the smoke evil.

PUBLIC HEARING ON PAGE PLAN

A public hearing on the matter of removing the parkways in the center of Page boulevard from Spring avenue to Vandeventer avenue and from Pendleton avenue to Taylor avenue will be held by the Board of Public Service Jan. 3 at 10 a. m.

The proposal to remove the parkways provides for paving the sections of the boulevard which they cover, as was done recently on Union boulevard in the block south of Pershing avenue.

Christmas Pageant and Concert.

A Christmas pageant and musical concert will be given Tuesday evening at Scottish Rite Temple, 3635 Lindell boulevard. The Scottish Rite Choir and Scottish Rite Woman's Chorus will sing, and there will be a Christmas tree and Santa Claus for members and their families.

Certified Builders' Election.

Officers of the Certified Builders' Exchange have been elected for the coming year as follows: President, C. E. Hamilton; vice president, William Degenhardt; treasurer, Edward H. Beckemeier, and secretary, Natt S. Getlin. H. A. Bertholdt was elected chairman of the board, with the following members: Leo K. Milberger, George C. Reed, W. F. Wilkins, George C. Meyers and Beckemeier and Getlin.

Old-Time Concert at White House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A novelty presented to Washington society during the week was the playing of seventeenth and eighteenth century music on ancient instruments at the White House musicale following the President's dinner to the diplomatic corps on Thursday night. Rare old Italian violins, violas, cellos and double basses from the Rodman Wannamaker collection were used. The program was modeled after those given by private orchestras of the courts and nobles of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and included manuscript played for the first time in 200 years.

5,000,000 UNIT YEAR PREDICTED FOR 1928

Unusual Plant Expansions in 1927, Perfecting of Sales Forces, Given as Reasons.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Dec. 17.—Production and sales in the automotive industry, slow for the past 10 weeks, took a material seasonal spurt with the two last weeks of the year. Men are being taken on at the factories, sales are increasing and there is generally a much more healthy tone to the industry in this territory.

Preparations for the New York Show and for the 1928 season have resulted in renewed and increased activity among the makers. There will be at least 14 new cars shown at New York, and the new lines, already established, will be made on a larger scale. Few companies will fail to have important new features for the show and for next year's presentation to the public.

Plant Expenditures High.

Plant expansion, both for passenger and for commercial production, has been the rule in 1927, which is estimated to have exceeded all previous years in the amount of money put into permanent buildings and equipment. Chevrolet is already at work on the new line, which will present some distinct advances, and with Ford again in the list of important manufacturers, high totals are a certainty, barring some inconceivable world condition to keep sales down.

With the end of 1927, Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing Co. sees the completion of the new plant at Pontiac, designed for the largest production of commercial vehicles ever known. Chevrolet is set to produce a million units next year. The buying response to the new Ford makes it certain that the 24 assembly lines of the company will be kept increasingly busy.

Every important company has laid down lines for launching history's most important production program.

Five Million Unit Year.

The five-million unit year that has been predicted as the result of plans made in America and Canada is of course a possibility, for the industry has a trick of doing astonishing things. But, if this gigantic production is to be absorbed, there must be unprecedented buying response, both at home and overseas. Indeed, the export factor now looks like the strongest factor to be relied upon in establishing new records for sales. Some sections of this country are already sold to the saturation point, or very close to it.

Selling the entire country to the saturation point and realizing on the long labor and investment in foreign fields may bring about the absorption of 5,000,000 units, but anything that falls very far short of these will fail to accomplish the purpose. Impressive gains in export business, with nine months of 1927 exceeding the total figures of 1926 and every indication of a continued patronage from Europe, Australia and South America, are among the most encouraging signs.

Sales effort in this country will have to be exceeded even above its present rate to provide outlet for production already planned.

October Registrations.

Registrations in October by the 24 producing companies in this general district show some interesting figures. Reports from practically every state show that the 24 registered 25,492 fewer passenger cars in October, 1927, than in October, 1926. Production from this district constitutes the great bulk of output in America.

Stearns-Knight Active.

John N. Willys and H. J. Leonard are active in the newly formed Stearns-Knight Sales Corporation formed to further the sales, advertising and service of Stearns-Knight sixes and eights. The Stearns company has planned material expansion for 1928. Willys is chairman of the board and Leonard president. L. E. Corcoran, formerly general sales manager for Pierce-Arrow, is the new general sales manager for Stearns.

Exports High.

Exports of automotive products for the first 10 months of the year set a new high figure, with a total of $356,260,883, more than the total for the complete year of 1926, which was $327,507,000. October's contribution to the 1927 total was $29,434,925, which was $5,814,760 more than for the same month last year—a 24.6 per cent increase. And this with the Ford car completely out of the picture.

October shipments of commercial cars showed an even greater increase. There were 8872 automotive units sent overseas, which was an increase of 106.8 per cent over the figures for October, 1926.

Benoist Wins Decoration.

In recognition of his victories in four International Grand-Prix races, the French Government is presenting Robert Benoist, world's champion motor speed driver this year, with a cross of the Legion of Honor. Builders of the winning cars will be similarly honored.

AFTER SPEED RECORD

CAPT. MALCOLM CAMPBELL.

CAMPBELL TO PILOT 450 H. P. NAPIER CAR

British Ace Will Attempt to Better Segrave's 203 M. P. H. Daytona Record.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, England, Dec. 17.—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, English racing ace, has obtained the permission of the British Air Ministry to use one of its special 450-horsepower Napier engines in a special automobile which he will drive at Daytona Beach, Florida, on Feb. 2, it was officially learned here today. Campbell now is putting the finishing touches on the chassis design of his racer.

Campbell's aim in the ensuing Daytona Beach race is to keep for Great Britain the world's speed record of 203 miles per hour, set by Maj. M. P. D. Segrave in the "Mystery S" Sunbeam at Daytona Beach last spring. Campbell plans to drive the Napier-powered racer himself. It is to be designed after the Napier-powered Schneider plane which recently won the Schneider Cup seaplane competition, and he believes it will be easy to better Segrave's record.

Models of the car have been tested in the Air Ministry's air tunnels and it is said that the tests have already effected a saving of over 200 horsepower.

The fact that the Napier engine is still on the Air Ministry's secret list and that no details concerning it are permitted to be published, is regarded as an indication that Capt. Campbell expects formidable competition from the American cars entered in the race, it was said here today.

Another British speed marvel to be entered in the race is being built by Louis Coatalen who designed Segrave's Sunbeam. Coatalen has announced that his car will be powered with two 500-horsepower engines and it is expected to do about 250 miles per hour. The body is to be modeled after that of a seaplane and steam cooling is to be used.

Frank Lockhart, the Indianapolis Speedway ace, is among the prominent American racers who will enter freak cars in the Daytona competition. He is now at work on a 36-cylinder car to to have three engines each of 12 cylinders. It is expected to develop approximately 1500 horsepower.

Park Visitors Increase.

A total of 49,055 automobiles entered Yellowstone National Park during the 1927 season, bringing 157,566 tourists, as compared with 144,729 motor visitors in 44,472 cars last year.

Says Car of Future Will Have Front Wheel Drive

Engineer Asserts Rear Wheels Could Be Suspended Without Using Axle and Running Boards Will Be Eliminated.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 17.—The ultimate in body design has almost been reached with the present conventional type of automobile power transmission, according to Alben F. Carlson, prominent automotive engineer.

Carlson, in an address before the Buffalo section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, said that if lower bodies continue to be demanded, the chassis engineer will have to come to the rescue of the body designer with a practical way of reducing the frame kick-up at the rear and the size of the rear-axle housing, while still giving the amount of spring travel that is conducive of comfortable riding.

One possibility not so remote as it may seem, Carlson declared, is front-wheel drive, which would, in his opinion, erase all troublesome factors connected with low body designing.

"The rear wheels," he asserted, "could be suspended separately without using a rear axle, or the axle could be bent channel shape under the rear of the body. The body then could be entered from th curb without use of a running board, and the only limiting factor in the overall height of the car would be the road clearance of the chassis frame. The car would ride easier and the reduction of frontal area would allow either a reduction in engine power or an increase in car speed, because more than 75 per cent of the power needed to drive a car 60 m. p. h. is used to overcome wind resistance."

An ultra-modern design of a five-passenger sedan body was shown by the speaker. It has a high radiator and the line of the top of the hood and the cowl approaches the horizontal. This, combined with the length of the hood and lowness of the body, gives a pleasing forwardly sweeping motif. The visor is designed to be built into the body and the seat cushions are of generous proportions.

Proper streamlining reduces the frontal area another square foot.

FEDERAL AID SYSTEM INCREASED 8300 MILES

Government Payments in 1927 Were $81,371,000, Which Was Less Than in 1926.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec 17.—Federal aid road projects completed during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, increased by more than 8300 miles the mileage of improved roads in the Federal aid highway system, and brought the total length of roads improved with Federal assistance up to 64,209 miles, the chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, Thomas H. MacDonald, says in his annual report to Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, made public in Washington yesterday.

The Bureau of Public Roads also co-operated with the State highway departments in secondary improvements necessitated by increased traffic on 1376 miles.

Independently for the most part, it completed construction of 453 miles of main highways in the National Foreses. At the request of the National Park Service, the bureau surveyed and supervised the construction of important roads in the national parks and monuments, among them a number which will give access to hitherto unapproachable beauty spots of the national domain.

Federal payments during the year amounted to $81,371,013.03 or about $6,000,000 less than the disbursement of the previous year, which in turn was $8,000,000 lower than the year before.

"It may be expected," MacDonald comments, "that the annual expenditure will be still further reduced in the future until—the accumulated balances of earlier appropriation being expended—the program of expenditure reaches the rate set by the annual authorization of $75,000,000 of recent years."

The Federal aid highway system now includes more than 185,000 miles of road, about one-third of which has been improved with Federal assistance. Except about 7500 miles, all the 64,000 miles have been improved in the last six yeasr.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 17. —Gasoline prices in the United States range all the way from 10 cents a gallon to 27 cents for straight run and from 13 cents a gallon to 29 cents for high test gas, it was revealed in a check up by 950 motor clubs affiliated with the American Automobile Association completed here today.

The check-up by the national motoring body showed that on Nov. 22, gasoline was selling at 47 different prices.

In order to secure an accurate picture of the gasoline price range on a given day, identical forms were sent to every A. A. club throughout the country and the local clubs in turn checked the prices in their respective areas and

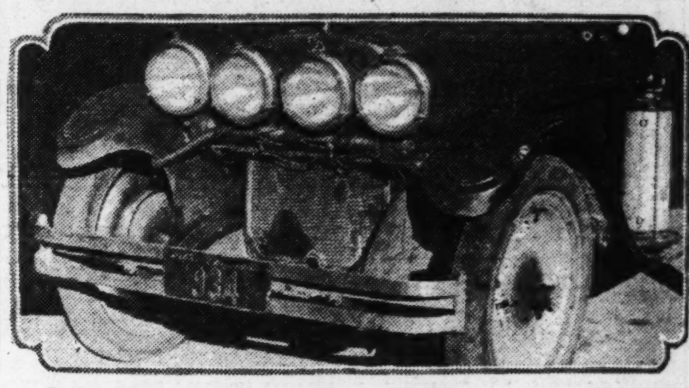
U. S. Experts Aid Headlight Research



In an effort to develop a more satisfactory type of headlight, experts of the Bureau of Standards in Washington are experimenting with this four-in-one headlamp arrangement. The lights are thrown on a car ahead which carries a target device and the Army type range finder, the lever alongside the car, permits rapid measurements of the distance between the cars.

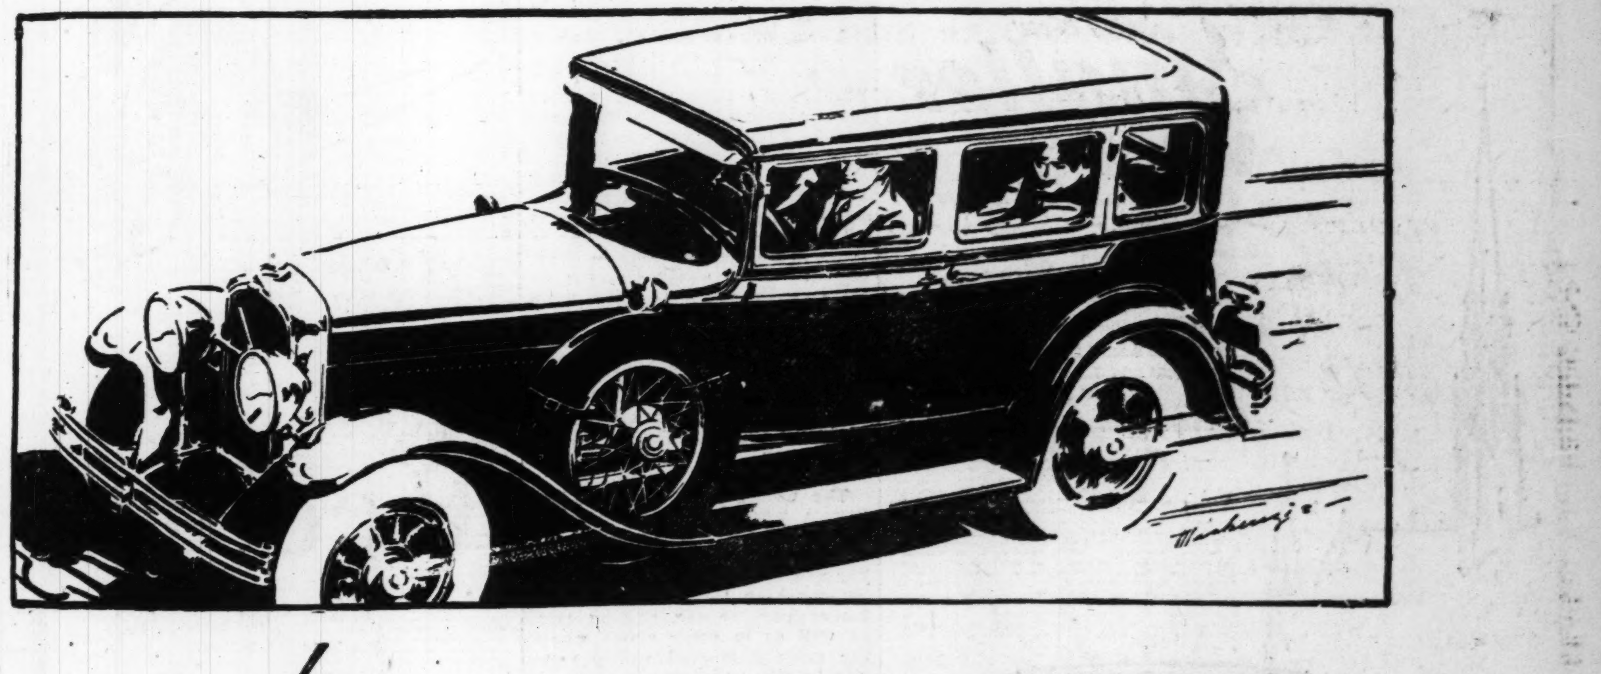
THE NEW MARMON 78 IS A STRAIGHT-EIGHT

$1895 F. O. B. FACTORY

This is what the new MARMON 78 will do



Top Speed—From 70 to 80 miles per hour, depending on driving conditions. Eight cylinders (straight) with new type "Duplex Down-Draft Manifold," delivering a distinctly new type of streaming, effortless power.

Acceleration—No "flutter" or effort at low traffic speeds in high gear; tests show from 10 to 50 miles per hour in 15⅓ seconds.

Ease of Riding—This characteristic, always so pronounced in Marmon cars, has been carried even further in the road balance and riding ease of the "78."

Easy Handling—Flat-type steering wheel of large circumference but small, comfortable grip, in combination with new "anti-shimmy" steering gear and perfectly balanced chassis, have produced the most light and velvety handling ever found in any motor car. Steering column and pedals adjustable to reach of driver contribute even further to the driver's comfort.

This is the best-looking Marmon ever built—a glance will reveal its graceful design and exquisite good taste.

This is an entirely new type of performance—with straight-eight results such as have never been achieved before.

And as to value—certainly no car in any price field ever offered as much or more for the money. You can see it in examining it. You can sense it in riding in it. Interesting features of its design are:

A straight-eight motor delivering 86 horsepower. Wheelbase. 120 inches and conventional tread (the roominess in both front and rear compartments compares with that of cars of 130-inch wheelbase). Mechanical four-wheel brakes of most improved and dependable type. Marmon quality materials and precision throughout.

NEW MARMON '78' HAS LARGER POWER PLANT

Develops 86 H. P. at 3200 R. P. M.—All Models Have Longer Wheelbase.

New body design, roomy interiors, and a straight-eight power plant of Marmon manufacture producing stream power and a wide range of performance are combined in the new Marmon series 78 eight-cylinder models which are having their formal display today at the More Automobile Co., Marmon distributer here.

The models on display today are a five-passenger sedan with military wheels and regular front fenders, a five-passenger sedan with wire wheels and spares carried in front fender wells, a standard coupe and a collapsible coupe.

Prices.

They are priced as follows: Standard sedan, $2195; standard coupe, $2195, and collapsible coupe, $2295. These are delivered-in-St. Louis prices. Wire wheel sport equipment is $100 extra on all models. Other body styles, completing the line, shortly are to be on display.

This new model succeeds the original Marmon eight, the "Little Marmon." The former model has been discontinued.

General comparison of the two cars shows with respect to the new one that it has a three-sixteenths large cylinder bore, a four-inch longer wheelbase and a standard tread of 56 inches, instead of the narrow tread of the other car. Otherwise, the general design remains unchanged.

In appearance the new car has the effect of an extra long hood, low super-structure and high side panels. It has long, low windows, affording very complete vision, flat front with short visor, a full and almost straight back. Fenders are long and low and deeply crowned.

Radiator Size Increased.

The radiator design follows the style of all previous Marmon radiators, but its size has been increased proportionately to provide greater cooling capacity. A new type nickeled head lamp is used to conform to the general design of radiator and fenders.

Design of all types is closely similar, but in the caseof the two open cars—the phaeton and roadster—the full folding windshield affords an unmistakable "swank" carried to the point of decided emphasis.

Body construction, interior and exterior, permits use of new color treatments and new designs in the way of interior fitments. Closed car interiors are garnished in walnut wood, hardware is in figured bronze and instrument boards are decorated to conform to the general effect of the upholstery.

Interiors are custom designs. Broadcloth and Bedford cord upholstery are combined with the custom bronze hardware and the walnut mouldings with a design of Italian parquetry.

Engineers' Report

What the engineers say of the new Marmon "78" is:

That it has a top road speed of 70 to 80 miles an hour, depending on driving conditions; tests on speedway show sustained speed of 80 maintained during many hours of continuous day and night driving.

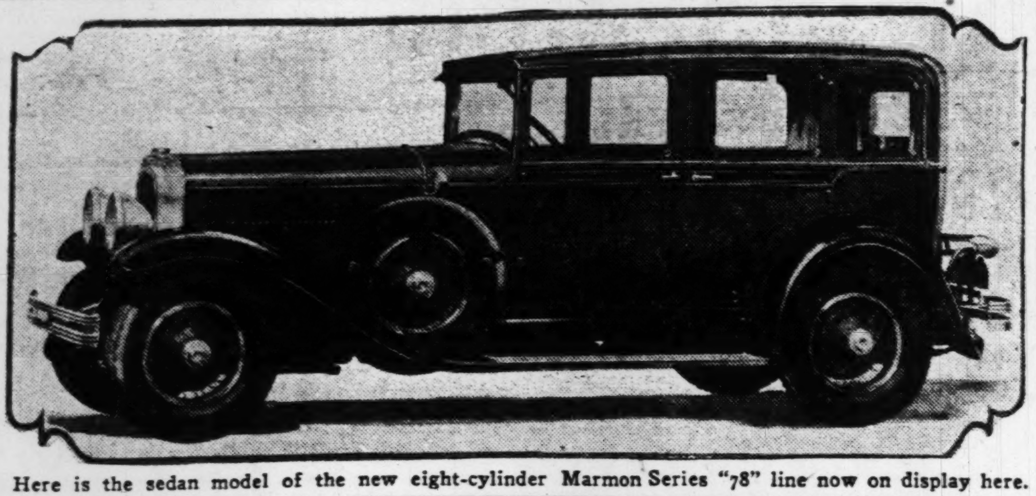
That it has an acceleration of 10 to 50 in 15¾ seconds.

That it topped the famous Uniontown hill in Pennsylvania, on the St. Louis-New York road, 43 miles an hour after a standing start in high gear.

That it has a gasoline economy of 14 to 18 miles an hour, also depending on driving conditions.

That it is ableto maintain top speed in transcontinental driving over all types of highway.

How the New Marmon Series "78" Sedan Looks



Here is the sedan model of the new eight-cylinder Marmon Series "78" line now on display here.

DODGE 4-CYLINDER DE LUXE SEDAN REDUCED TO $950

Four-wheel Mechanical Brakes Also Added as Standard Equipment.

Simultaneous with the announcement of a $25 reduction in the price of the de luxe sedan model of the new Dodge Brothers four-cylinder line, comes advices that all four-cylinder models are hereafter to be equipped with steel-draulic mechanical four-wheel brakes. The line with the new equipment is now on display here by the Tate Motor Car Co., Dodge distributer. Cars comprising the line are the de luxe sedan, standard sedan, coupe and cabriolet roadster.

The new four-wheel brakes are of the expanding band type, operating mechanically on 12-inch drums. They constitute a major improvement to Dodge Brothers four-cylinder line and are being added at no extra cost to the purchaser. Only the de luxe sedan is being reduced in price. It will hereafter sell at $950 f. o. b. Detroit. Prices of all other types with four-wheel brakes remain the same.

FRANKLIN FORESEES GOOD AUTO BUSINESS IN 1928

Confident that the entire automotive industry will enjoy unusual prosperity in 1928, H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Automobile Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., expects his company to break its best sales records next year. Basing his optimism on record sales during the last four months of 1927, Franklin said:

"September, October and November represent our biggest fall quarter, with one exception, during our more than 25 years of making and selling automobiles. The first 11 months of 1927 saw more Franklin cars sold than the entire year of 1926.

"Our 1927 September sales showed a 49 per cent increase over September, 1926, and October showed 160 per cent sales increase over October, 1926. November sales were 24 per cent ahead of the same month last year and orders now booked for December assure us of a continued increase.

"At the present rate of sales, which we expect to maintain, 1928 should show at least a 50 per cent gain over 1927. This increase has been due in no small part to the dramatic demonstration of air-cooling furnished the motorist by airmen during the past few months.

FORTY-SEVEN GAS PRICES IN U. S. SURVEY SHOWS

returned the forms to Washington.

Lowest at Peoria, Ill.

The lowest price on the date of the check-up was 10 cents for straight run and 13 cents for high test gasoline, at Peoria, Ill., and the highest was 27 cents for straight run and 29 cents for high test, at Phoenix, Arizona.

Proximity to sources of supply appeared to be a negligible factor in determining current prices, says the A. A. A., since prices were in many instances higher close to the oil fields than they were at points to which a long haul was necessary. Prices at tidewater were on the whole higher than those charged at inland points.

The average price at points along the Atlantic Seaboard was 22 cents a gallon. The average price in the Mississippi Valley region was 19 cents a gallon. The average price on the Pacific Coast was 20 cents a gallon.

On the west coast of Florida, for instance, there was a range of prices varying 5 cents in a distance of 32 miles. Gasoline sold for 18 cents in Tampa, 20 cents in Plant City, 21 miles away, and for 23 cents at Lakeland, 11 miles from Plant City. Another instance, in Indiana, disclosed that straight run gasoline sold for 19.3 cents and high test gasoline for 22.3 cents, at Columbus, while it sold for 15.3 and 18.3, respectively, at Edinburg and Franklin, 10 and 20 miles away.

Widest Range in Illinois.

The widest price range was in Illinois where the price of gas ranged from 10 cents a gallon to 19½ cents for straight run gasoline and from 13 to 22 cents a gallon for high test. Illinois has a 2-cent gasoline tax and in this, as well as in other states where the price fluctuated widely from city to city and town to town, it was shown that the tax is negligible as a factor in the wide fluctuation of prices.

In the New England States, far from the oil fields and one of the greatest consuming sections, the price of gasoline varied 7 cents, ranging from 15 cents a gallon to 22 cents for straight run and from 18 cents a gallon to 25 cents for high test gas.

"In the East Central States, comprising Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Kentucky and Tennessee, the price variation was 13 cents for both varieties of gasoline. The range was from 10 to 23 cents per gallon for straight run and from 15 to 26 cents for high test.

"Variations of 7 cents for both straight run and high test gas were shown for the eight West Central States, comprising, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Arkansas, South Dakota and North Dakota. The range varied from 14 to 21 cents a gallon for the former and from 17 to 24 cents for the latter.

"The three Pacific Coast States, Oregon, Washington and California, reported variations of 4 cents in straight run gasoline and 5½ cents in high test. The price range was from 21 to 25 cents for the former and from 23 to 28½ cents for the latter."

NORTHERN MISSOURI HIGHWAYS IMPASSABLE

Foot of Mud on Earth Roads—Horse-Drawn Vehicles Forced Into Use.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., Dec. 17.—Recent heavy rains have made roads in Northern Missouri difficult to impassable. Dirt roads in places are topped by a foot of mud and secondary highways, good until several weeks ago, are so slippery that they are difficult to travel even with chains.

A traveling man out of St. Joseph reported that it took him three hours to go from Chillicthe to Laclede, a distance of 25 miles, 10 minutes from Laclede to Brookfield—five miles—and 55 minutes for the 36 miles between this point and Macon. He reported the road through the Locust Creek bottoms near here and the dirt road between Wheeling and Laclede as impassable to all but horse-drawn vehicles.

The five miles between Brookfield and Laclede and the 36 miles between Macon and Brookfield were until several weeks ago fair gravel secondary roads.

Salesmen and farmers have forsaken their automobiles and are relying entirely on horse-drawn vehicles as a mode of travel.

More German Motorists.

Women motorists in Germany are reported to be on the increase. The Police Department in Berlin now issues permits to women at the rate of about 120 per month.

Buyers are not waiting for demonstrations, or for appraisals of their present cars. They are flocking to this new Six on the strength of its transformed appearance, and the chassis quality and performance which they know so well as Hupmobile. Many are buying now who had not planned to buy before next spring.

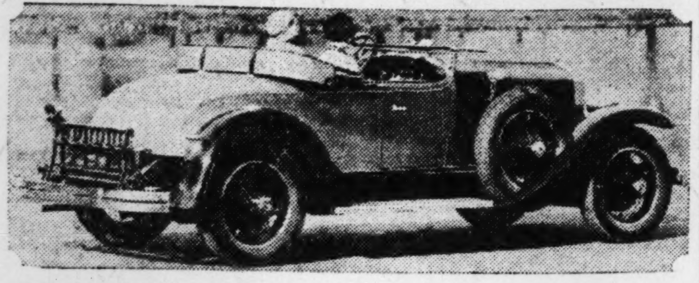
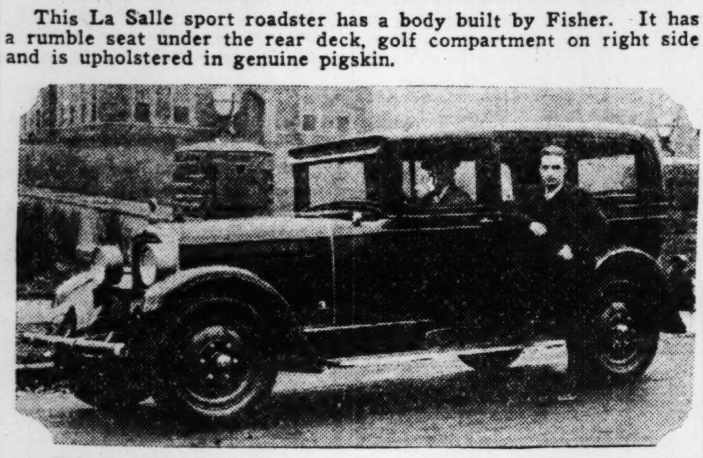
What's New in Motor Cars



This La Salle sport roadster has a body built by Fisher. It has a rumble seat under the rear deck, golf compartment on right side and is upholstered in genuine pigskin.



This new limousine-sedan recently added to the Nash six-cylinder line seats seven passengers, and is designed to meet the demand for a convertible chauffeur-driven car.

New Nash Limousine-Sedan Here

Announcement is made by the Nash Motors Co., of a new advanced vestibule sedan, a 7-passenger model with a glass-enclosed front compartment, on a six-cylinder chassis.

This car, known as the Imperial sedan and designed to meet the demand for a chauffeur-driven car in the Nash price class, is now on display here by Southwest Nash Co., Nash distributer, and to associate dealers. It is priced at $2165 f. o. b. factory.

The glass partition which divides the driver's compartment from the passenger compartment is in two sections which slide horizontally. Thus complete privacy is secured when wanted, although when the owner drives the partitions can be opened to allow communication between the front and rear sections.

The body, being mounted on the 127-inch wheelbase advanced six chassis, affords ample room for seven passengers. Appointments include mohair upholstery, wanut finish throughout and a vanity case and smoking set.

Fender Lights Standard on Pierce-Arrow

Radiator bracket headlamps, originally announced as standard equipment on the new Series 81 Pierce-Arrow line, are, according to W. G. Astridge, general sales manager for the Western Automobile Co., Pierce-Arrow distributor, to be only optional equipment.

The old distinctive type of fender headlamp, Astridge states the factory reported the past week, will be retained as standard equipment. The bracket type are obtainable as optional equipment at no additional cost.

The new fender headlamps carry with them small auxiliary helmet type lamps mounted midway between fender and radiator in an extremely graceful grouping.

For those who prefer them, bracket lamps are offered as optional equipment at no added cost. The new Pierce-Arrow bracket headlamps used on the Series 81 are made in a special design, the helmet type.

S. A. E. LISTS OVER 600 STANDARD AUTO PARTS

Increasing Total Does Not Restrain Designer in Exercise of Originality.

With over 600 standards and recommended practices adopted by the Society of Automotive Engineers and published in its Handbook, activity in standardization work seems to increase rather than diminish, according to executives of the S. A. E.

Despite all the standardizing which has been done in the automotive industry, there is great variety in the construction and appearance of the different makes of automobiles, trucks and busses. This desirable condition is due to the fact that standards fixed pertain to such details as dimensions of bolts and nuts, screw threads, pipe diameters and connections, physical properties of metals and other materials, and other invisible factors and details.

Appearance Not Effected.

These standards do not restrain the designer in the exercise of originality nor effect the general proportions and appearance of the vehicle, but they make parts and fittings interchangeable on different makes of cars, and, by reducing the multiplicity of sizes and types of minor items entering into the makeup of an automobile, reduce the cost materially.

Some of the details shortly to come before the standards committee for approval relate to sizes and angles of fan belts and their pulleys, dimension of storage battery terminals, size of hole to be tapped in engine manifolds for connection to vacuum brakes, engine testing forms, dimensions of duplex carburetor flanges, thickness and width of engine hood lacings, size of captscrew holes in the flywheel housing, and the like.

Now the standards department of the society is gathering data from motor truck and motorcoach manufacturers with regard to the height and width of face of bumpers fitted on these vehicles, with a view to standardizing these as it standardized passenger car bumpers several years ago so that when the vehicles come together the bumpers will not overlap, but will strike each other and thus serve their purpose of protecting the bodies.

Bus Performance Tests.

Another proposal is that performance tests for motor trucks and motorcoaches be developed along the lines of passenger car performance tests standardized by the society. This subject is being studied.

Comprehensive specifications for motorcoaches have been revised recently but await further action before being published. They relate to such general subjects as height of floor from the ground, width of entrance and exit doors, location of emergency door, body overhang, brakes, fenders, exhaust signals and lighting, and to details such as handles, ventilators, gasoline tanks, mirrors heating and wiring.

Some airplane standardization work has also been undertaken. A committee from the society is to work with Army and Navy Conference representatives to develop specifications for airplane storage batteries.

SILVERTOWN TIRES CARRY 7 1-2 TONS WEIGHT IN TEST

Seven and a half tons of dead weight sustained by a thin wall of cords and rubber while that weight was being carried over the ground at a speed of from 70 to 90 miles an hour, was the test two 44x10 Silvertown Airplane Tires underwent in preliminaries for the flight of the "Southern Cross."

This tri-motored Fokker monoplane has been built for an effort to set a new world's record for sustained flight. At present the record is held by two German aviators, who remained in the air in a similar type plane 52 hours 22 minutes 31 seconds.

Lieut. George R. Pond, U. S. N., who will pilot this monoplane on its endurance flight, recently completed what is known as the "80 per cent weight test" in a flight over San Francisco and, after bringing the big plane back to Mills Field, taxied to the northern end of the mile-long runway for the final preliminary flight.

Inspection disclosed a buckled axle. The strain on the undercarriage had been too great for special strength-tested steel and a serious accident had been narrowly averted. Goodrich engineers, who attended the tests, reported that the Silvertown tires showed no effect of the strain.

Imagine the monotony if we all looked alike!

THIS would be a dull old world if we were all content to be standard, commonplace beings as much alike as peas in the pod.

Happily, however, the tendency in America is to rise above the commonplace. There is a great increasing class of discriminating people who appreciate the things that are distinctive, different, apart from the ordinary.

Chandler designs and builds automobiles especially to please this discriminating class. Royal Eights and Sixes distnguished for style, for richness, for comfort, for power.

Chandler pioneered the high-compression motor, and holds many national and international performance records. Chandler also pioneered centralized automatic chassis lubrication.

If you like the things that are different, more advanced, more distinctive, come in and see these new Chandler models.

USE OF AUTOMOBILES IN MEXICO IS INCREASING

Good Roads a Contributing Factor — Truck Transportation Growing.

MONTEREY, Mexico, Dec. 17.—More orders for automobiles are now being placed by dealers in Mexico than ever before. The same is true as to trucks.

In November 60 carloads of automobiles entered Mexico through the Laredo gateway, each car containing an average of five automobiles. Imports of 900 automobiles were received through other border ports of entry and the ports of Tampico, Salina Cruz and Mazatlan.

One of the factors contributing to this increase in automobile sales is construction of good roads. This is especially true around Mexico City. Modern highways now radiate from the capital in several directions. While the trunk highway between Mexico City and Laredo is not yet completed, it is in fairly good condition and is used daily by automobile tourists. Construcbiles were received through other tions work on this road is to be resumed early in January and will be continued without interruption until the project is completed, according to Government officials.

In addition to the early resumption of operations by the Ford Motor Co., Dodge Brothers may establish a large assembling plant in Mexico City.

NEW MOON EXECUTIVE

R. A. RAWSON.

RAWSON MADE ASSISTANT SALES MANAGER FOR MOON

F. H. Rengers, vice president and general sales manager of the Moon Motor Car Co., has announced the appointment of R. A. Rawson as assistant general sales manager. Rawson comes to the Moon Motor Car Co. with a background of many years of successful automobile merchandising to his credit.

In 1921 he became sales manager for a large distributer in the Northwest. Two years later he joined the Franklin Automobile Co, In 1924 he was made manager of merchandising for Stutz, and later vice president of that company's Indianapolis branch. Rawson recently was general sales manager for the Elcar Co.

WARNS AUTO DEALERS NOT TO SELL CARS TO MINORS

About 80 executives of firms which are members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, heard a talk Wednesday at noon by E. J. Brennan, attorney for the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association on "Contracts, Automobile and Otherwise." Brennan was introduced by Robert E. Lee, manager of the association, owing to the absence from the city of the president, Col. P. H. Brockman.

Brennan, former manager of the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis, in his talk warned the automobile men against signing shady contracts or indefinite agreements and particularly against having any unsecured dealings of any kind with a minor, explaining that the Missouri law gives the right to a minor, who is any person under 21 years of age, to repudiate any kind of a contract made except for the bare necessities of life.

Brennan advised the automobile dealers to secure an amendment to the Missouri automobile shop lien law, which would simplify the process of taking over cars held for repairs.

MACHINE DRILLS CYLINDER BLOCKS FROM BOTH ENDS

With well planned strategy, the clever boxer springs into action—with nimble footwork, first bores in, then dodges back, while blows of his opponent flail the air.

With equal cunning, the automatic machines at the Reo Motor Car Co. perform their grim advance and skilled retreat. Producing cylinder blocks for Flying Clouds, they drill from both ends at once, and as the drill points are about to meet, draw one drill quickly back as the other finishes the hole.

One of the machines which is used for this work and which operates in this uncanny fashion operates two long drills, which bore the long oil duct for the pressure lubrication system that feeds oil to the seven main bearings in the Flying Cloud engine. Like deadly antagonists, these drills press forward, but unlike fighters, they are united in a common purpose, the finishing of a smooth accurate hole in minimum time.

CHEVROLET DEALERS MEET TO ELECT OFFICERS

The annual election of officers and directors of the St. Louis Chevrolet Dealers' Association was held at the Statler Hotel Tuesday night, Dec. 13. Harold MacCarthy presided.

J. Rush James was elected president; Moke Epstein, vice president; John MacCarthy, secretary, and Phillip P. Fox, treasurer.

Directors elected were: Frank A. Flint, Harold MacCarthy and Chas. Hilmer.

200 UNIT DAILY OUTPUT FOR JAPANESE FORD PLANT

Since the announcement of the erection of an assembly plant at Higashikanagawa, Yokohama, for the Ford Motor Co., of Japan, work has been started on the main unit. According to plans, the new plant, which will have a capacity of 200 cars daily, will be ready for production by August, 1928.

The main building will be 480 feet long and 300 feet wide. The site, which contains seven acres of land, has 386 feet fronting on Tokio Bay and runs back 650 feet to a railway siding. A canal suitable for light barges adjoins the land on one side, while the bay is navigable for ocean vessels.

New York Auto Show to Reveal Many New Cars

Radical Innovations Not Likely—Leading Point of Interest Is Extent to Which Refinement Has Been Carried.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—If new models may be considered as headliners at the Automobile Show, then the forthcoming exposition which opens at Grand Central Palace on Jan. 7 promises to be the most interesting in years. Not less than 15 new models will make their debut on this occasion.

From a preliminary examination of the new cars, it is not likely that there will be any very radical innovations. The leading point of interest is the extent to which refinement has been carried.

New Upholstery Design.

Great advance has been made in the effective use of upholstery fabrics. Materials, patterns, and tones have been selected to produce a maximum eye appeal. On many cars seat cushions and backs are upholstered in one material, whereas side and headlinings are of contrasting material. The result is excellent. Well-designed arm rests, shoulder rests, pockets and other features also add to the effect. Extensive use of walnut panels or colored panels give a nice finishing touch to the other interior features.

Radiators are generally higher and deeper, fenders are fully crowned and sweep gracefully into the running boards, front fenders also curving harmoniously into the frame members. Lamps have been redesigned and so placed that their curves blend well with the lines of the forward part of the car. On a number of models aprons have been added at the rear to cover spring ends and gasoline tank with the result that the rear presents a much more finished appearance.

Colors are brighter and more effective. The fundamental aim is to produce automobiles which possess fully harmonious lines. Striping, for example, is no longer applied haphazardly, but is put on with definite aims in view, in some cases to help blend the more difficult body lines, to set the color masses off attractively and to accentuate the appearance of length, and so forth.

On the whole, 1928 models are really much easier riding than their predecessors because of the use of more flexible springs and the more general adoption of shock absorbers. Four-wheel brakes will be found on all models at the show with perhaps one exception.

In many cases engine power has been increased but in a number of cars the increase has been utilized not so much to provide greater hill-climbing ability, but rather to give a slower and smoother running engine and a higher maximum car speed, secured by using a smaller rear axle gear ratio.

Power Improvement.

Improvement in power has been attained in various ways; by better intake manifolding and valve action; by increasing the engine size; by raising the compression. In some instances all three methods have been utilized. The marked trend toward higher compression is an important technical development of the year, and some cars have been definitely designed with compression high enough to require the exclusive use of high-compression fuel.

CHEVROLET DEALER TO ERECT NEW BUILDING

Vincent E. Belcher and Charles H. Hilmer of the Hilmer-Belcher Chevrolet Co., 1163 South Kingshighway, broke ground Thursday for the erection of a new two-story sales and service building at Kingshighway and Vandeventer avenue.

The new building will face on both Vandeventer and Kingshighway, with 125-foot frontage on both streets. Approximately 15,000 square feet of available floor space in each floor or a total of 30,000 square feet in both. An added 15,000 square feet will be available for storage on the roof if necessary.

The building will be the new type brick and steel construction and fireproof throughout.

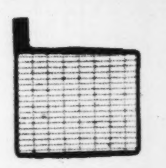
He said "It Can't be Done"
But—
CONTINENTALS did it!



*Dehydro Plates are battery plates that are made additionally porous by our process of dehydration. This permits more rapid circulation and thus lessens strain on the active material within the battery. It means quick response—greater capacity—and longer life for the plates.

CONTINENTALS for Radios too!

When you buy a Continental Radio Battery you know how many plates it contains, their dimensions, and what the actual ampere-hour rating is!

Three years ago, a battery dealer called at the factory. He had seen the Continental TWO-YEAR Guarantee.

"It can't be done," he said, "No battery can live up to such a rigid guarantee!"

Then we told about *Dehydro Plates. Plates that are baked additionally porous to provide extra capacity and unusual staying-power. A revolutionary process*, to be sure! A process that makes Continentals last longer—and makes possible the Continental TWO-YEAR Guarantee!

No wonder Continentals are quick to respond—even on zero mornings. No wonder they "ditto" that performance their second Winter too! —They're made to deliver a greater load and stand more strain than any other battery!

An All-American Christmas for the All-American Family

The Landau Sedan, $1265
Body by Fisher

An All-American Christmas. The whole family gathered for this happy day. Gifts .... laughter .... lights on a heavily-laden Christmas tree—

Because he knows that mother will revel in its luxury and comfort. That daughter will be fascinated by its swank and style. That son will be forever boasting of its speed .... and power .... and pick-up. That he himself will enjoy it .... at so little cost.

The very gift for the All-American family—for the family that appreciates American ideals of motor car beauty—that has American ideas of motor car luxury.

* * *

Give them an All-American Six this Christmas—and make it the merriest Christmas the family has ever known!

"I wonder ...."

It's a snappy evening in December. You're driving the family downtown to the theatre. Suddenly this thought comes to your mind —"I wonder if there's enough anti-freeze in my radiator to keep it from freezing while we're in the theatre!"

An unpleasant feeling, isn't it? But why have it? You won't need to "wonder" about radiator protection this Winter if your car is safeguarded with Ivo Radiator Glycerine, the permanent anti-freeze. Ivo's protection is permanent because glycerine's higher boiling point keeps it from evaporating or boiling away. You can operate your engine at a higher, more efficient temperature without fear of losing your protection. You're safe even when an occasional warm spell happens along in Winter.

Once your cooling system has been made glycerine tight and filled with Ivo, it's there to stay and protect all Winter long. Only the water evaporates and must be occasionally replaced as in Summer.

Ivo is odorless; it will not burn or explode; it will not injure any part of the cooling system; it will not harm the finish of your car if accidentally spilled upon it.

The dealers listed below will tell you how much Ivo your car needs to protect it against freezing in your locality. Drive in today, have your car serviced with Ivo and enjoy greater driving satisfaction than you've ever known before.

Look for this label on "IVO" cans and drums

ONE MAN CONTROLS BIRMINGHAM TRAFFIC

Switches to All Intersection Signs Governed by Single Master "Throw-Over."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 17.—Instant control of traffic at any intersection in the business district, on any street or avenue, or in the entire business district is available to the operator in charge of Birmingham's newly installed traffic control system.

Traffic engineers have termed the new system the most modern and efficient and the only one of its kind in the country today.

The elaborate switchboard making this control possible, complicated as it is internally, looks like an ordinary office table with a large brass plate studded with switches covering half its top. The intricate electrical wiring is concealed in the space under the top, which can be raised to make the wiring easily accessible.

There is a line of switches for each street and avenue. The board is so placed that these lines of switches are parallel with the streets and avenues they control. Each row is labeled showing the street or avenue it controls, as well as each switch for its street intersection.

In addition, at the sides of the table, there are switches controlling all lights on each street and avenue. There is the master switch to control the entire traffic system to stop traffic instantly throughout the entire lighted area.

Beside each switch is a little pilot light, like the lights on a telephone switchboard. When traffic on any intersection is stopped, this light flashes on and remains on until the intersection is opened. If the master switch stops traffic on Twentieth street, for instance, all the pilot lights for each intersection on Twentieth street flash on. When the main switch, controlling the entire system, is thrown, all the pilots light. These lights guide the operator in his control of the system.

Provision was made in wiring the switchboard for the installation of a telephone on every intersection where there is a traffic light. Those telephones have not been installed, but if they are, every traffic officer in the business district instantly will be at the call of the operator.

Other connected telephones which can be located on the desks of the Chief of Police and traffic Captain, are provided for by the wiring.

The board is set up next to the telephone switchboard in the Central Fire Station, where the operator who receives the fire calls can operate the light controls.

An automatic timing device, mounted near the switchobard, controls the timed operation of the lights. At regular intervals it changes the lights and rings the bells on the amber light. It is equipped, also, with a manual control in case it gets out of order or different intervals are needed. The switchboard is hand operated in emergencies only.

There are now 41 traffic lights in operation in the business district controlled through this switchboard. The board provides wiring for 78 lights covering the entire area from Fourteenth to Twenty-sixth streets and from First to Sixth avenues. This, it is pointed out, will permit the addition of lights without changes in the switchboard.

BUICK PIONEERS TO MEET AT ST. LOUIS IN 1928

The Buick Pioneers, who will be entertained in St. Louis in 1928 by F. W. A. Vesper, the St. Louis member, includes only those Buick distributers continuously handling Buick automobiles for 15 years or more. In its ranks are some of the old veterans who have been selling Buicks since the first Buick was built.

The first Buick ever shipped was taken by C. L. Whiting at Rochester, N. Y., and the first carload was shipped to H. E. Pence at Minneapolis. Almost at the same time C. G. G. Peckham, who is now president of the Ohio Buick Co., at Cleveland, who was then located in Dayton, had a sample also.

The Pioneer organization bring with it as guests members of their own official families, including sales managers, etc., and the object of the organization is to meet at a different member's place of business in order to inspect his organization and to exchange ideas that pertain to the business.

E. T. Strong, president of the Buick Motor Co.; C. W. Churchill, general sales manager, and other factory officials will attend the meeting. The dates have not been definitely decided, but will probably be in late September.

ST. LOUIS-LOUISVILLE ROUTE NOW ALL HARD-SURFACED

Detour 74 Miles Long Eliminated in Indiana and 22 Miles of Paving Opened.

With the elimination of a 74-mile detour in Indiana and the opening of 22 miles of paving on U. S. No. 150 in the same State, the route from St. Louis to Louisville is now entirely hard-surfaced and 29 miles shorter than heretofore.

The paving opened is between Paoli and Palmyra, Ind. There is still a local detour nine miles long between Paoli and West Baden, but this is over all-weather road.

Activities of Boy Scouts

WINTER HIKES FOR BOY SCOUTS IN HOLIDAYS

Each of Four Divisions of City and County to Participate.

A new departure in district activities for St. Louis Boy Scouts will be inaugurated during the Christmas holidays in the form of a district winter hike for each of the four divisions of the city and county. In each case every troop in the district will assemble at a common center and hike to an unidentified destination, where a program of outdoor games, intertroop contests, and surprises will be waiting.

Each hike will be taken a different day, the Suburban District Dec. 28, the South Dec. 29, the North Dec. 30 and the West Dec. 31. For all but the first, special street cars or busses will be provided to transport the troops to the assembly place.

Suburban District troops are to assemble in front of the Episcopal Church at Bompart and Lockwood avenues, Webster Groves, at 9:30 o'clock, each group under competent leadership, and with its own automobile transportation. If desired, arrangements may be made at scout headquarters for a special bus. Individual scouts are to bring two bread and butter sandwiches, a spoon, a bowl and a folding cup; "hunter's stew" will be furnished at the camp. The scouts will be back at the church by 5 o'clock.

South District troops will assemble as units at Jefferson avenue and Broadway at 9 o'clock, from whence special cars will take them to the end of the Broadway car line, making only two stops, at Dover and Loughborough streets. The hike will start at the end of the line. The same equipment is necessary as on the suburban hike, and, as on that, the scouts will return to the car line by 5 o'clock.

As the north and west districts cover more territory, special busses will run on several routes to carry the troops to their meeting places; in the case of the North District at Helen and Florissant avenues at 9:30 o'clock. All busses will leave their starting points at 8:30, and pick up their quota of troops on the way. North District Route No. 1 will start at Broadway and Howard and operate as follows: West on Howard to Thirteenth, north to Hebert, west to Carter to Mary, north to Florissant, west to Telen. Troops 3, 19, 42, 52, 72, 130, 148, 156, 161, 172, 202, 206 and 243 should use this route.

Routh No. 2 will start at Grand and Easton and operate as follows: North on Grand to Carter, west to Mary, north to Florissant and west to Helen. (Note—Enough busses will operate over this route to take care of the crowd.) Troops 184, 204, 205, 162, 99, 12, 207, 235, 226 should use this route.

Route No. 3—A special bus will leave St. Louis and Warne avenues and operate as follows: West on St. Louis to Kingshighway, north to Florissant and west to Helen. Troops 33, 64, 103, 55, 47, 29, 83, 147 and 84 should use this bus. More busses will operate on this line if needed.

Route 4 will start at Union and Easton and operate as follows: North on Union to Florissant, west to Helen. Troops 92, 221, 122, 49, 1, 129, 65, 237 should use this route. (Note—Enough busses will operate over this route to take care of the crowd. Troops 50, 236, 199, 191, 114, 22, 222, 230, 240 should hike direct to the meeting place.

Even the hiking point of the West District will be unidentified, but busses will operate as follows; leaving their starting points at 8:30.

Route No. 1: Bus starts at Wellston car loop, follows regular Page avenue bus route east to Kingshighway, then south to Delmar and on to our hiking point. Troops 5, 35, 44, 59, 94, 82, 101, 125, 195, 71, 7, 75, 150, 246, 154 should use this route. Stops will be made at Page and Goodfellow, Page and Kingshighway and any other place where there are scouts.

Route No. 2: Bus starts at Grand and Delmar and operates west on Delmar. Troops 70, 21, 32, 79, 99, 106, 20, 48, 111, 6, 93, 137 should use this route. Stops will be made wherever there is a troop between Grand and Kingshighway.

Route No. 3: Starts at Kingshighway and Delmar and operates west on Delmar. Troops 13, 23, 54, 89, 119, 136, 2, 11, 30, 60, 113, 14, 46, 134 should use this route.

Route No. 4: Starts at Delmar loop and operates east on Delmar to Skinker. Troops 26, 31, 98, 87, Kingsland 1, 9, 17, 49, 102, 110, 135, 197, 159 should use this route.

Both North and West District troops should bring the same equipment as the Suburbanites.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS

The South District of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, now possessing a membership on paper of 2059 scouts, is campaigning to lift the total to 2100 by Jan 1. The paper membership total was arrived at by adding last year's registration of eight rtoops due to re-register this month, but as a rule several scouts drop out at each re-registration.

It is therefore considered necessary to obtain 75 new members in the next two weeks, approximately one recruit for each troop in the district.

TWO SCOUT COURTS OF HONOR TO BE HELD TOMORROW NIGHT

West and Suburban District Will Have Last Assemblies Before New Rule Goes In.

The last two Boy Scout Courts of Honor at which application for a First Class badge may be made without the candidate satisfying a board of review that he has successfully passed all his tests for the new rank will be held tomorrow evening in the West and Suburban districts. The former court will convene at 8 o'clock at the Ben Blewett Junior High School, and the latter at the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves, Elm and Lockwood avenues, at the same time. The Suburban court was scheduled to meet at the Webster Groves High School, but it was found necessary to change to the church.

Scouts who are to receive either Merit or First-Class badges are to gather at 7:30 o'clock, to be checked. The West District Court will be presided over by George M. Burbach, newly appointed chairman of the district, and the Suburban by Morgan E. Coggeshall, chairman of that division.

The meeting places of the boards of review will be announced later, according to local headquarters.

100 BOY SCOUTS PLAN 5 DAYS OUT OF DOORS

Party Will Begin Winter Camp at Irondale Dec. 27 for Vacation.

Five days of outdoor camping in zero and near-zero weather will constitute the Christmas vacation of 100 St. Louis Boy Scouts who will attend the fifth annual winter camp of the St. Louis Council at Camp Irondale, Dec. 27 to 31. Sleeping in the open-front Adirondack shacks of the Ranger Camp, and spending the entire day in outdoor sports and games, the scouts will be within four walls hardly a minute between the time they leave the special Missouri Pacific train that will carry them to Irondale until they make the return trip. Yet because of their own and their leaders' experience in camping, they expect to remain as warm and comfortable as if they were at home.

The Ranger shacks, used throughout the summer by the Rangers, first-class scouts with considerable experience in camping, are three-sided affairs built of rough logs, and large enough to accommodate two scouts and their equipment. In front of each shack is a "reflector" fire place, built so that practically all the heat from a hot constantly burning wood fire is thrown back into the shelter, keeping it at a surprisingly high temperature. The fire, with warm clothing and bedding, is sufficient to keep the campers warm and dry even during the zero nights common to the Ozarks at this period of the year.

A program has been arranged for every day of the camp, which will be under the supervision of Assistant Scout Executive H.W. Haun, assisted by Jack Wright and W. E. Thompson of the headquarters staff. Outdoor scout tests will be studied and passed, as at every camp, but the remainder of the program will be strictly seasonal. Skating parties, hockey games, and winter hiking will be featured, and if, as last year, there is snow, the annual snowball battle around a snow fort will climax the events.

As last year, motion pictures will be taken of the various games and activities of the scouts, and the films shown later at special troop meetings, Courts of Honorand other scout events. The motion pictures are taken under the supervision of the Community Fund, of which the Boy Scouts are a member organization.

Cooking at the camp will be done by a regular chef, but otherwise the scouts will take care of their own wants, and each will be responsible for keeping his own shack clean. As a precaution, each camper must undergo a physical examination before the trip is started. Arrangements for the camp and the examination are to be made at local scout headquarters, 505 Chemical building.

Boy Scout Troop Notes

WEST DISTRICT.

Kingsland 1 of Kingsland Memorial Presbyterian Church was recently transferred to the West District. Headquarters takes this opportunity to announce the transfer to the field and welcome Kingsland 1 to the West District.

The Visitation Catholic School is making application for a charter for a troop. The first meeting of the boys was held Monday night, with an attendance of 20. Deputy Scout Commissioner Father Maxwell and Field Executive S. C. Reaves of the West District. J. S. Kenny will serve the troop as scoutmaster.

Troop 154 of St. Mark's Catholic School held two meetings last week, the former on Tuesday night and the latter on Friday night, for the purpose of reorganization. About 30 boys were present at both meetings. The troop is headed by J. Washburn as scoutmaster and W. Smyth as assistant. Field Executive Reaves and Deputy Commissioner Rev. C. P. Maxwell assisted in the formation of this troop.

Troop 59 of the Eden Immanuel Evangelical Church has organized a drum and bugle corps. Seven buglers and three drummers were present at the first rehearsal. At the last meeting Troop Bugler Jack Casey was promoted to the rank of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster.

Troop 2 of the Pilgrim Congregational Church is practicing for a scout play they are going to give Dec. 30. Two hundred visitors are expected to be present. The Panther patrol is leading in the patrol with 1089 points, the Stags coming second with 845, Eagles third with 733, Beavers fourth with 727, Snakes fifth with 695, and the Flying Eagles last with 430 points. The final results and the awards of the contest will be given out at the program a week from Friday night. At the last meeting it was announced that a finished birdhouse will receive 25 points in the contest. Scout Ellison Fishwick has been appointed patrol leader of the Snakes, with First-Class Scout James Delano as his assistant.

Troop 90 of Temple Shaare Emeth had a turnout of 19 scouts on a hike to Creve Coeur Lake last Sunday. A concentrated study of the new handbook is being carried on by the entire troop. The Juniors are having a merit point contest, details of which were worked out by Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Carl Bauman.

Troop 178 of the Scruggs School performed a good turn last week by distributing handbills for a school entertainment. Once each week a different patrol is assigned to raise and lower the school flag, with bugle calls as a part of their service to the school. During the last month two new scouts, Jack Beger and William Hanson, have been added to the roster of the troop.

Troop 107 of the Ebenezer Evangelical Church added two new scouts during the week Forrest Doering and Herman Dreher. Scout James Krause has been appointed assistant patrol leader and Scout Ted Muschany has been made junior assistant scoutmaster.

Troop 86 of the Horace Mann School reregistered last week, with 11 old scouts and six new.

SOUTH DISTRICT.

Troop 18 of the Compton Heights Baptist Church held a Fathers' and Sons' banquet last Friday evening. Fifty-eight men and boys attended, this number including all but one scout and his father of the entire troop membership. The ladies of the church prepared the supper, after which the film of Winter Camp was shown. The boys found this film interesting, as a number of them were in the picture. Scout Nelson Wurtz was invested at an Investiture Ceremony during the evening. The last feature on the program was a number of games played between the fathers and sons, the fathers winning both the tug-of-war and shot-put.

Last Sunday evening the troop had charge of the evening services at the church, attended by parents and friends of the scouts. The 12 Scout Laws were dramatized by the troop and Rev. Mr. Stone, pastor, preached on the Scout Oath and Laws, and brought out a number of points to illustrate the different laws.

Troop 209 of the St. Mathew's Evangelical Church is a new troop in the South District. They were presented their troop charter at a parents' meeting last Thursday night by Dr. R. C. Coleman, chairman of the South District, who also gave a talk on Scouting. Assistant Field Executive Laemmli also was present and spoke on the connection of Scout Headquarters with the Institution sponsoring the troop. Twelve boys were present as charter members. F. L. Cratz is scoutmaster of this new troop, the troop committee being composed of the following men: A. W. Will, E. Reising, A. F. Albersweth, F. Pfeiffer and Charles Moench.

Troop 34 of the Shenandoah School put on the investiture ceremony at the South District Court of Honor Monday night, and invested one new boy into the troop. A number of boys from Troop 34 assisted in the mailing of the field glass at Scout Headquarters last Thursday evening.

Troop 143 of the Hancock School had as its leader at the last meeting Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Earl Shoemaker and Patrol Leader William Wollman. Two troop committeemen, Hartman and Jones, also were present. Assistant Scoutmaster Doerr is attending the Scout Leader's course at the Sheldon Memorial. The Fathers' Club will meet next Monday and all scouts have been urged by Scoutmaster Bauer to bring their fathers. Scouts Ewald Hartmann, Jacob Kuehn and William Hillgaertner received merit badges at the South District Court of Honor and Scout Edwin Swift received his first class pin.

Troop 192 of the Gardenville School organized two patrols of six scouts each at its meeting Friday night. Scout Ralph Rogers was selected as patrol leader of the Panthers and Scout Lester Wildberger as patrol leader of the Flying Eagles. Scout Elliott Koenig was chosen as scribe. Eugene Nagel and Richard Teubner were enrolled as new scouts and several other applications were given out. The pathfinding questionnaire contest was won by the Flying Eagle Patrol.

Troop 194 of the Redeemer Evangelical Church is conducting an inter-patrol contest, the prize to which will be awarded by one of the committeemen. Every Sunday morning the scouts of Troop 194 direct traffic after Sunday school to help the children across the street.

Troop 160 of the Immanuel M. E. Church organized a new patrol at the meeting last Monday night, with Scout Irwen Yaeger as patrol leader, and Scout John Doring as his assistant. The troop is planning a Christmas good turn and is collecting clothing and toys for distribution to needy families in the neighborhood. The scouts have adopted a new slogan for the troop: "160 Leads."

Troop 155 of the McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church celebrated its third birthday with a party at which about 70 parents attended. Mothers of the members furnished ice cream and cake. The patrol of the troop put on stunts which were voted the best ever put on by the troop. The Tiger Patrol won first place with a drama based on the song "Ivan Skizavitsky Skivar." The Moose Patrol won second place with a stunt patterned after "Barney Google" and his Angora Lodge. The Silver Fox Patrol won third place, with "Romeo and Juliet" up-to-date.

Troop 74 of the Sherman School held its semiannual election of officers last week, as follows: Senior Patrol Leader, William McCully; quartermaster, Wilbert Gansloser; scribe, Harry Hillker; bugler, James McCully; patrol leader, Eagles, Albert Hunn; assistant patrol leader, Wilbert Gansloser; patrol leader, Wolves, Edward Dowling; assistant patrol leader, Herbert Pyle; patrol leader, Tigers, Curran Howle. Nine of the scouts hiked to Kenwood Springs last Saturday under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmasters Kelly and Kouri. The troops is planning its first annual Christmas festival for Dec. 23.

Troop 152 of B'Nai El Temple went on a hike to Monks Mound last Sunday with eight boys and three men attending. Tests were passed, after which eats were served, and Scoutmaster Hierch gave the scouts a treat of candy. At the meeting last Thursday evening Assistant Scoutmaster Lieut. Hellman gave a talk on aeronautics.

Pimples Itched a Great Deal. Cuticura Heals.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about two weeks I could see the pimples were going away, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Hazel Brooks, 917 Cass Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

At Lambert Field

PHIL DeC. BALL, owner of the Browns, Wednesday concluded a hunting trip to Oklahoma in which he covered about 1800 miles in his Ryan monoplane. He was accompanied by his son, James P. Ball of Cleveland, O., and Frank T. Dunn, his pilot.

Leaving St. Louis-Lambert Field three weeks ago, Dunn first flew to Vining, Ok., where the party spent several days in a game preserve in which Ball is interested. Later they flew to Tulsa, then to Southwest Oklahoma, for more hunting, and finally to Cherokee, Ok., where they spent two weeks.

The elder Ball went from Cherokee to New York by train for a business trip, but his son returned to St. Louis with Dunn in the monoplane. It was the younger Ball's first experience in the air. The trip was without incident, Dunn reported.

Since Ball purchased his airplane last summer he and Dunn have spent 104 hours in the air, covering more than 16,000 miles. Some of the trips have been completed in darkness. Ball purchased the ship primarily for business purposes and has been able to effect substantial savings in time by using it.

Three Douglas Mail Planes Sold.

Of six Douglas mail planes purchased two months ago by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation when the Federal transcontinental line went into the hands of private operators, three have been sold. Two of the big planes went to the National Air Transport, which now operates the eastern end of the transcontinental route, and a third was sold to Michael Luft, a commercial operator, of Detroit. In a demonstration to Luft of the plane's carrying capacity, Chief Mail Pilot Harlan Gurney took off one of the Douglases with a load of 1500 pounds of cement. All of the ships are equipped with night flying rig, including wing searchlights and parachute flares. They are powered with Liberty engines.

Field Manager Flies in Chicago.

O. E. Scott, manager of Lambert-St. Louis Field, represented Mayor Miller at a conference of Mayors of more than 30 cities at Chicago last week in connection with the opening of Chicago's new municipal airport. During his stay Scott piloted 11 mayors over Chicago on a sight-seeing tour in a Ford tri-motored monoplane owned by the Standard Oil Co.

He was impressed, he said, upon his return, with the apparent determination of Chicago to become the aeronautical center of the United States. One of the projects impending there is the construction of a flying field on the lake front within a few minutes' drive of the Loop.

Ryan Planes Carrying Passengers.

The Von Hoffman Aircraft Co., agent for Ryan monoplanes, one of which Lindbergh has made famous as the "Spirit of St. Louis," has been using one of its Ryan broughams frequently in cross-country flights. Recently John L. Campion, one of the company's pilots, made a cross-country trip to Louisville, Ky., carrying in the cabin as passengers Harry H. Culver, a California real estate man, and Mrs. Culver. The flight was without incident and Campion returned on the following day. Later he piloted William Simpson to Memphis, speeding Simpson on his journey to New Orleans, where his mother was reported dying. When he landed at Memphis, Campion reported, the temperature was so low that it froze the oil in the oil tank vent, causing the tank to burst from internal pressure.

Two Carloads of Motor Parts.

Two carloads of spare parts for OX-5 motors, of which the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, with 1150 engines in stock, now controls the supply, have been received at the field and are being sorted. Some of the motors are to be sold to the Curtiss-Robertson Aircraft Corporation for use in the new "Robin," a cabin monoplane which is to be manufactured at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

New Waco Ten at Flying Field.

Among the new planes stationed at the field is a new Waco Ten with OX-5 engine, owned by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation. Unlike earlier Wacos, which were green, the new ship is painted a dark red.

Oscar Johnson Buys Waco Ten.

A Waco Ten, with many extra features, including a 100-horsepower OXX-6 motor, has been purchased from the Robertson concern by Oscar Johnson of 38 Portland place, who is now taking advanced instruction under the tutelage of Elmer Dempsey. Like "Casey" Lambert, who keeps a Ryan monoplane with Whirlwind motor in service at the field, Johnson plans to use the Waco for sport purposes.

Bad Weather for Air Mail Pilots.

Unusually unfavorable weather conditions during the last two weeks have given much uneasiness and not a few narrow escapes from bad crashes, to the pilots on the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route. On one trip within the last two weeks Chief Pilot Guerney's plane became so laden with ice that he barely made a landing field. The trip was resumed after he had knocked the ice from the wings, wires and struts with a wrench. On anotrer occasion, as was told in detail last Friday in the Post-Dispatch, Gurney narrowly escaped colliding with another mail plane in a fog south of Chicago and on the same trip was forced to land "blind" after his motor had begun to heat dangerously.

Similar difficulties have been reported by Pilots Smith and Slonlger, Gurney's flying mates. Slonlger was taken off the mail service during the last week and sent to Laredo, Tex., in a DH to await pictures of Col. Lindbergh's arrival in Mexico City, to rush them to St. Louis for distribution to various ponts in the United States by wire.

BONUS OFFER EXPIRES JAN. 1

Veterans or Dependents Must Apply by That Date.

War veterans and dependents of dead veterans who have not applied for the Federal bonus have only a short time left for the time limit is Jan. 1, 1928. In spite of the discussion that attended the granting of the bonus by Congress, there are veterans today who have not applied for it, says Charles G. Beck, manager of the Veteran's Bureau in St. Louis, 4030 Chouteau avenue, in calling attention to the early expiration of the time limit.

"Because it was not a cash bonus and was issued in the form of a 20-year paid up endowment policy known as adjusted compensation, many former service men neglected to apply for it. By waiting three years they have delayed the maturity date while prompter veterans already have a loan value on their policies," Beck added.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat tickle, bronchial asthma, or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Say "Merry Christmas" with a Maytag

SAY Merry Christmas in terms of extra hours of leisure—of increased health and beauty—of lifelong happiness. Give a Maytag for Christmas.

Here is a washer that does an average washing in an hour. With its new, silent power-drive it produces a water action in the scientifically shaped cast-aluminum tub which forces dirt from garments with astonishing speed. Its NEW ROLLER WATER REMOVER expels both water and soap evenly from all fabrics—from pockets and seams as well as from sheets, thus drying the clothes quicker than ever before. An automatic feed still further hastens the water-removing process. Buttons pass easily under the soft rubber roll.

These and other time and effort saving features of the Maytag add to the health, beauty and leisure of every owner.

Say Merry Christmas with a Maytag. You will then be expressing the ancient Yule-Tide wish in a manner that will be appreciated and pleasantly remembered for many years to come.

If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

Community Christmas Program Will Continue All Week at Cathedral.

$175,000 OFFER FOR PROPERTY OF COLUMBIAN CLUB

Knights of Columbus Open Negotiations for Purchase of Corner, Reliable Source Reports.

WESTWOOD COUNTRY CLUB GROUNDS SOLD

Syndicate Buys 94-Acre Glendale Tract for $300,000—Downtown Deals Near.

By Berry Moore.

The week in realty was featured by offers for prominent sites in the residential and business sections of the city, sought for big new structures.

These included notably an offer of $175,000 for the property of the Columbian Club at Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, made by the Knights of Columbus, according to a reliable source. The site has a frontage on Lindell of 187 feet with a depth on Vandeventer of 255 feet. Presumably the Knights seek the site with ambitious building plans.

The order formerly owned the northeast corner of Lindell boulevard and Sarah street, with a frontage on Lindell of 150 feet, and a depth on Sarah of 308 feet, which it sold in 1925 for $70,000. Even at that time the sum was considered a low valuation for this corner in view of the extraordinary depth on Sarah street. This site was purchased by the order for $31,000, with plans for a 10-story lodge, club and hotel structure. Plans included an auditorium with a seating capacity of 2000.

Swift Gain in Value.

While the re-sale of the Lindell and Sarah street site yielded the Knights a profit of $39,000, the property since has undergone a phenomenal increase in value with the upward course of prices on Lindell boulevard.

The present building of the Knights of Columbus at 3549 Olive street is inadequate. By virtue of its proximity to Grand boulevard, the property has a high valuation, as reflected in offers recently submitted for it on the part of both investors and speculators.

Many offers have been forthcoming for the Columbian Club property, which forms one of the most attractive corner sites of large area available on Lindell boulevard. As was told in the Post-Dispatch, the present building of the club was damaged by the tornado, Sept. 29, and since then the social functions of the organization have been held in Hotel Chase.

Offers for Lindell Corner.

Several attractive offers have been made recently for the southwest corner of Lindell boulevard and spring avenue, with a frontage of 170 feet on Lindell. This corner was purchased two years ago by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, with plans for improving it ultimately with a pretentious hotel structure with theater.

Sale of the Westwood Country Club grounds in Glendale between Webster Groves and Kirkwood to a syndicate headed by Walter L. Pfeffer at a consideration of $300,000, has been announced by Henry R. Weisels Inc. The tract comprises approximately 94 acres. The syndicate, composed of prominent St. Louis, Webster Groves and Kirkwood business men, will operate it as the Westborough Country Club, with complete golf and recreation facilities.

The building of the Westwood Country Club under construction on the Conway road, near the Ballas road, is scheduled for completion July 1. Henry R. Weisels, Inc., also assembled the site for the new club building.

Many offers were reported during the week for costly holdings in the downtown district, with negotiations pending which promise to result in purchases.

These included several attractive offers made for the Stewart holdings on the north side of Washington avenue, west of Thirteenth street. Bids of noteworthy interest were also reported for corners on Olive street.

TAKES LONG LEASE IN SHELL BUILDING

The General Chemical Co. has acquired a long lease of extensive quarters on the sixth floor of the Shell Building, which the company will occupy as its St. Louis sales offices. The lease was negotiated through the Mercantile Trust Co., which has the management of the building.

Many large concerns have established headquarters in this building, which was completed only two years ago, and whose location at the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust, is one of the most prominent in the city.

BUILDING FOR 11 MONTHS GREATER THAN IN 1926

Building and engineering contracts let in St. Louis during the past month amounted to $4,484,200, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. The above figure was 61 per cent under the total for October of this year and was 29 per cent less than the total for November of last year.

New construction started in St. Louis since the first of this year has reached a total of $72,320,200, an increase of 19 per cent over the amount reported in the corresponding period of last year and a gain of 11 per cent over the total for the year 1926.

STIX-BAER RELAY STATION TO HAVE 6-STORY ADDITION

Plans of New Warehouse Provide for Increasing Height to 10 Stories Later.

COMPLETION IS EXPECTED BY MAY

Construction Contracts Already Let for Building With 79-Foot Frontage on Laclede Avenue.

Plans were announced yesterday for a new warehouse addition to the Stix, Baer & Fuller relay station, on the south side of Laclede avenue west of Spring avenue.

The new warehouse addition, to be built to a height of six stories with the intention of adding four more stories later, will have a 79-foot frontage on Laclede avenue by a depth of 182 feet and 100,000 square feet floor space. The present relay station has a frontage of 218 feet and a depth of 182 feet, so that the combined frontage will be 297 feet. The ground was leased from the Grand-Leader Realty Co.

The new addition, it is announced, is only one item in a program of building and expansion of Stix, Baer & Fuller, which will involve an expenditure of several millions. The contract for the new building has been let to the Boaz-Kiel Construction Co., and completion by May 15 next is expected. Mauran, Russell & Crowell are the architects.

By means of the enlarged warehouse, it is planned to relieve the main downtown store, and to provide a greatly increased area of selling space there.

Early in the present year, a new millinery department was added to the store. Next, rooms were provided for the display of home furnishings and interior decorations. The new infants' wear department, another of the year's improvements, is described as "a department store within a store."

Elevator service has been increased, and escalators extended to the fifth floor. In the downstairs store a modern cafeteria has been installed. Additional space for the shoe department is next on the program.

OLIVE LOT NEAR JEFFERSON, OLD LUCAS HOLDING, SOLD

A noteworthy sale of the week was that through Cornet & Zeibig of 88 feet by 69 feet on the south side of Olive street, 94 feet east of Jefferson avenue. Lucas, trustees for the estate of Florence D. Lucas. This sale, involving a larger amount of frontage on Olive street than has been reported for some time, was purchased by the Maxine Realty Co. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Cornet & Zeibig also report the sale of 23 feet on the south side of Pine street in City Block 922. This property is improved with a 10-room residence known as 2316 Pine street and was sold for the estate of Florence D. Lucas, George Clayes and John D. LEASES TOP FLOOR IN AMBASSADOR BUILDING

Laclede-Christy Fire Products Co. Takes Larger Quarters as Business Expands.

The Laclede-Christy Fire Clay Products Co. will remove today to larger quarters on the top floor of the Ambassador Building at Seventh and Locust streets. A long term lease of the space was negotiated through Isaac T. Cook & Co.

The concern, which is one of the foremost in the manufacture of clay products in the United States, has had its general offices on the sixteenth floor of the Railway Exchange Building for the last 10 years. Expansion, however, has made necessary larger quarters.

John L. Green, president, W. J. Westphalen, vice president and general manager, John H. McKelvey, vice president in charge of sales, and J. M. Baggot, secretary, comprise the officers of the company, which is a pioneer industry of St. Louis.

Founded in 1844.

Laclede-Christy dates back to 1944, it being a consolidation of two of the largest fire clay products plants in the Middle West. The Laclede Fire Brick Manufacturing Co., which was founded in that year, and the Christy Fire Clay Co., which had its inception in 1857, merged in the name of the Laclede-Christy Clay Products Co. in 1907. The Beaver Valley Pot Co., located at Rochester, Pa., and devoted to the production of glass melting pots, was added to their interests in 1917 as the Laclede-Christy Co. of Pennsylvania.

These three plants cover an area of 250 acres and the St. Louis plants have a capacity of 50,000,000 fire brick a year and 45,000 tons of special hand-molded tile. Their mines have an output of nearly 2,000,000 tons of fire clay, and they also produce some 60,000 tons of specially prepared and washed pot clays. A part of their plant is devoted to the production of sewer pipe and vitrified products and the capacity per year of this material is more than 30,000 tons.

The company maintains a ceramic laboratory at the plant for testing of fire brick, fire clay and developing new refractories and has a fellowship in the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburg.

Prospective Fairview Club Holds 90-Day Claim on Ballas Road Property.

The Fairview Country Club, which is being organized with Negro members, has taken an option on 49½ acres of land on the west side of Ballas road, St. Louis County, about half a mile north of Des Peres, which is on Manchester road, and about a mile and a half south of Clayton road. The price of the land is $34,750, Dr. W. H. A. Barrett, president of the club, announced. The option, which runs for 90 days, was taken about three weeks ago.

Dr. Barrett said that about 30 members had joined and about 15 more applications are pending. The initiation fee is $150 and dues $25 annually. Limit of membership is 350, but Dr. Barrett declared the organizers felt they could start the improvement of the site and carry on activities with about 175 members to start with. He was confident of the possibility of success next month in the membership campaign, which began two weeks ago. Many Negro professional men, he explained, will feel more sure of their ability to join after the holidays. It is proposed to build a nine-hole golf course.

NET LOSS OF GOLD PUT AT $79,000,000

Outflow of Metal Easily the Outstanding Development of the Time Affecting Finance, Says Review —Earmarkings Total of $152,000,000.

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES.

Total stock sales 1,603,200 shares.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Easily the outstanding development of the time affecting finance is the gold outflow begun in September, but which has been accelerated until now this country is losing metal at an unprecedented rate. On this reversal in the gold movement the attention of the whole financial world now is centered in an effort to understand how it will influence conditions. Until recently most students believed the United States was ahead on gold stocks for 1927 to date, since to Dec. 1 imports exceeded exports by $73,000,000. Losses through earmarkings not heretofore included in the published figures total $152,000,000, however, so the first 11 months of this year, instead of a gain, show a $79,000,000 loss in gold stock. This loss is not one to give in any sense alarm, but its injection into the foreground of discussion is natural. Up to September this year the predominant changes had been gains, but during that month, taking into account earmarkings as well as imports and exports, the net loss in gold stock was $20,000,000. In October $34,000,000. In November $94,000,000.

December Gold Exports $46,000,000

"A search of the records back to the civil war fails to reveal any month in which this country has lost so much gold as the $94,000,000 recorded for November. While the loss of $40,000,000 through earmarkings was partly responsible for the large total, the net exports for any month in history except of $54,000,000 in November represented the heaviest net outward movement for any month in history except two, June, 1919, and January, 1925. The December outflow proceeds at the same unprecedented pace. Up to late last night the net loss in gold stocks for the month to date had reached $46,000,000. Thanks to the Federal Reserve system which was careful to shield the credit structure against inflation at the time gold flowed in, the country is in position to stand an enormous loss of metal without any adverse effect on its credit position. It is even possible for the Federal Reserve banks by further purchases of Government securities to offset the tightening influences on the money market of the gold outflow.

More Gold Than Needed.

"That this country has more gold than it needs and that the world would benefit from a redistribution of metal everybody knows. That the Federal Reserve system, through its open market operations, doubtless will to an extent at least keep money cheap despite the loss of gold, most authorities believe. It is not a fear that this country will lose more gold than it can stand to lose or a fear that the Federal Reserve banks will not maintain a hand on the money situation that excites conjecture nowadays. The delicacy of the whole matter lies in how these gold losses it continued will affect the stock market. Even if money is kept low despite gold exports it does not follow that rates will keep as low as they have been. Certainly a long outward movement of gold and a brisk business revival in 1928 would introduce strong influences for dearer rates that the Federal Reserve system might not want to offset entirely.

Advantage of Moderate Increase.

"There are good reasons why a moderate increase in money rates might be found advantageous and chief among these is the stock market itself. The international advantages of the Federal Reserve System's easy money program now are widely recognized. But in reducing money rates here to strengthen world finances the system indirectly gave fresh life to a stock market already high. The ratio of Stock Exchange loans to the total market value of listed stocks has not become distorted, contrary to opinion, but the fact remains that the abnormal growth in member bank credit in the last few months represents entirely increases in member bank loans on stocks and bonds and in investments. No increase in commercial loans is shown by the member banks over the level of a year ago although the rise in total loans and investments from a year ago is roughly $1,500,000,000. While the volume of ineligible paper has risen more than that of paper eligible for rediscount, a condition to be watched, the member banks still have an abundance of credit on which to borrow from the central institutions.

COPPER SHARES FEATURE LARGE STOCK TRADE

Active Members of Group Reach Highest Levels in Years — Aggregate Stock Sales for Day Establish New Saturday Record.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Heavy accumulation of the copper shares lifted nearly all active members of that group to their highest prices in years in today's brief session of the market. Some irregularity developed in the general list as a result of heavy week-end profit-taking, but the line of least resistance was unmistakably upward, the average of 20 leading industrials again reaching a new record. Trading was conducted at a terrific pace, total sales for the two hours running about 1,603,200 shares, establishing a new Saturday record.

Despite the fears of a credit stringency aroused in some quarters by the heavy exports of gold from the United States in the last few weeks, operators for the rise expressed confidence that no immediate tightening of rates was in prospect, emphasizing the stability and ease of the call money market this week in the face of a heavy mid-month turn-over of funds and large withdrawals of currency in anticipation of holiday requirements. The improvement shown in the basic industries also was stressed as a "bull" factor.

Greene Cananea Feature.

Much of today's realizing probably was inspired by commission houses' advices, suggesting that the recent advance was too rapid and that the market was entitled to a breathing spell. This was particularly apparent in U. S. Steel common and General Motors, each of which ran up over 3 points yesterday, but closed today at net declines of 1⅜ and ⅝ respectively.

Greene Cananea was again the sensational feature in the copper group, soaring 7¼ points to a new high record of 133¾ or more than 100 points above the year's low, but easing to 10¼ on realizing. New peak prices for the year or longer, also were attained by Anaconda, Chile, Calumet & Arizona, Nevada and International Nickel.

An increase in Pennsylvania Crude prices started a heavy buying movement in the oil shares under the leadership of Sinclair, which advanced 2¾ points to 2

Mercantile stocks were in demand, new high being attained by Sears-Roebuck, Montgomery-Ward and Gotham Silk Hosiery. American Can improved its best price for the year, and sharp advances were scored by other specialties such as International Nickel, Porto Rican Tobacco "B" and Southern Dairy "A."

The aviation issues were under rather heavy pressure, Wright dropping back more than 4 points and Curtiss yielding about 2. Strength of New York traction featured the public utility group.

Sterling Off Slightly.

Except for a further slight recession in sterling exchange, cables on London being quoted around $4.88 3-6., there were no changes of importance in the foreign exchange market.

The weekly clearing house statement showed excess reserve of $18,281,560, n increase of $134,000 above the week before. Aggregate reserve was $631,675,000. The detailed statement of actual condition this day showed mixed changes. Loans, discounts and investments increased $18,267,000; cash in own vaults, $6,220,000, and reserve in the Federal Reserve Bank of member banks, $78,000. Net demand deposits dropped $591,000 and time deposits 14,388,000.

DEMAND FOR COPPER TAPERS OFF, STEADINESS IN STEEL

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The steel market entered the final weeks of the year with moderate activity in the way of deliveries against contracts, and as a rule steadiness to quotations. A large producer advanced steel sheets and met the higher selling levels recently established by some independent producers. Several mills reported an increased demand for certain qualities of steel owing to the fact that consumers were notified current prices would hold only until Jan. 1. An optimistic feeling prevailed regarding the new year, with estimates that bookings for the first quarter of many grades have been satisfactory. Pig iron was steady and unchanged.

Demand for copper has tapered off and it is thought that recent heavy buying covered the December-January requirements of most domestic consumers as well as foreign buyers. The November statistics showing increased stocks may have led consumers to delay further purchases for more distant needs. Offerings of small lots by second hands have been reported at concessions, but the larger producers have held steady at 14⅛ cents for electrolytic delivered the Connecticut valley.

The tin market was quiet and steady. Unusually large Straits shipments appeared to be discounted. London also was steady.

Lead remained steady. The demand was moderate. Stocks during November showed a further decline.

Zinc was slightly easier. A moderate increase in stocks was reported during November. Ore was unchanged.

Antimony was steady, with some improvement in demand for spot and early shipment late in the week.

Drygoods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Cotton goods markets were firmer today on a slightly higher basis following good sales for the last few days. There was a substantial movement in tire fabrics, goods for converting print cloths and some of the fancy fabrics. Finished goods were quiet. It is stated rayon production for the first quarter of 1928 bids fair to hold to capacity. Burlaps held fairly steady. Raw silk was substantially unchanged.

AVERAGE PRICE OF 20 INDUSTRIALS UP TO NEW TOP

Week's Buying Centers Largely in Specialties at First, but Soon Spreads to Seasoned Dividend-Paying Rails and Industrials.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Responding to the continued ease of credit conditions and the generally optimistic nature of the 1928 business forecasts now being published, stock prices swept forward in impressive fashion this week. Buying centered largely in the specialties at first, but soon spread to the seasoned dividend-paying rails and industrials, the average of 20 leading issues of the latter attaining a record high price for all time.

Sharing financial interest with the rise in stocks was the heavy export of gold during the week, including a shipment of $7,500,000 to England and scattering amounts to Sweden, India, Argentina and other countries. This efflux of gold aroused considerable discussion, because of its possible effect on the money market. There was no change in money rates during the week, call funds being in plentiful supply at 4 per cent, despite the enormous mid-month turnover of funds.

In the stock market, the buying of steel shares was influenced by reports of large inquiries for materials for early 1928 delivery and unconfirmed rumors of another stock split-up in U. S. Steel common. Recent foreign and domestic business in copper received attention. Oils showed a slightly better undertone on an increase in Pennsylvania crude prices and legislative action to restrict drilling permits and check the flow of overproduction.

U. S. Steel Price Higher.

There was little change in the status of current business, except for a quickening of retail sales incidental to the approach of the holiday season, but prospects brightened considerably for some of the basic industries. U. S. Steel common touched 150 for the first time in more than two months on reports of increasing orders for early 1928 delivery, with the railroads, equipment companies and automobile manufacturers mentioned as the largest buyers.

Anaconda sold at the highest price in five years, and nearly all other active members of that group touched their highest levels in a year or more. Greene Cananea recorded another sensational gain, selling nearly 100 points above the year's low.

Motors showed sporadic outbursts of strength, but rallies were held in check. General Motors common, which was believed to harbor a large short interest, was run up more than 3 points on Friday on a turnover of more than a quarter of a million shares.

Pools Bid Up Stocks.

Pools, encouraged by the ease of money rates and the first decrease in Federal Reserve brokers' loans in seven weeks, bid up a wide variety of specialties to record prices. The list included Abitibi Power, American Metals, Brunswick Terminal, City Stores B, Continental Insurance, Curtis Aeroplane, Erie Steam Shovel, Freeport Texas, General Cab, Gotham Silk Hosiery, International Business Machines, Liquid Carbonic, Montgomery-Ward, Philadelphia Co. and Universal Leaf.

Some uneasiness was aroused by a dramatic collapse in Porto Rican Tobacco "B," which dropped from 52⅞ to 30½ in a few days, and the violent drop in Wright Aeronautical from a high of 94¾ to 80.

In the rail group there was brisk buying of New Haven.

$160,000,000 IN NEW ISSUES DURING WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Irregularity cropped out again in the bond market today, principally due to realizing and the competition of about $160,000,000 new issues offered during the week. Money conditions were virtually unchanged and there was no indication of any material increase in the amount of listed bonds presented for sale, even though prices were only a shade under record high levels.

New issues forthcoming include $20,000,000 Associated Gas and Electric Co. 4½s and $10,500,000 Central Gas and Electric 5½s, both of which are expected to reach the market early next week.

Buyers again showed favor for industrial liens with convertible features. The copper issues were under heavy accumulation, but lacked the extreme buoyancy of some recent sessions. Liquid Carbonic 6s added a small fraction to their previous high and Dominion Iron and Steel 5s moved up about two points.

Rails, in the main, were again quiet. Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s standing out with a gain of more than a point. Erie 5s were a little firmer, but easing tendencies were noticed elsewhere.

The foreign group continued the quiet tenor which had characterized this group practically all week, with no price changes of any consequence.

Treasury issues and Fourth Liberty 4¼s were firm, the latter changing hands to the extent of more than $325,000. Other Liberty bonds were easy.

Offerings for Next Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., through Lehman Bros., on Monday will offer 275,000 shares of common stock, which will be the biggest public offering of common stock this year. Although the price has not yet been named, it is understood it will be slightly below the present market quotation of 142 for the old shares or around 71 for the new stock created yesterday. The offering follows the approval of a change in capitalization of the third biggest chain system in the United States. Kroger shareholders in Cincinnati yesterday voted to replace the present 600,000 shares of $10 par common with 1,200,000 of common of no par value through the exchange of two new for each old share outstanding. The directorate will be increased from nine to 11 members.

The Associated Electric plans an offering early next week of $20,000,000 of 26-year 4½ per cent bonds, thereby bringing the amount of public utility financing announced, and in some instances offered, in the last few days of more than $250,000,000. This rate of utility financing breaks all records—even exceeding the record of $8300 a minute established for utility flotations in the first 11 months of 1927.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $7,914,000; previous day sales $12,256,000; week ago, $7,141,000; year ago $7,638,000. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $3,224,084,000, compared with $2,926,642,000; same period year ago, and $3,330,625,000 same period two years ago.

Quotations on Liberty Bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar, that is, for instance, a sale printed $99.24 means $99 and twenty-four seconds of a dollar, and not $99.24.

GRAINS IRREGULAR ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 17.—Corn futures closed lower at the final session of week on local market influenced by talk to effect that next Government estimate may prove to be about same as in November. Wheat finished higher after an early lower range.

The official Argentine crop estimate showing larger production than some anticipated, being larger than 1926 or 1925, brought early selling. The market later was affected by private dispatch expressing view that the amount of wheat available for shipment from Argentine to other countries would be under the figure based on Government forecast. The action of Liverpool also was factor.

The firmness shown at Buenos Aires also influenced wheat prices. Corn, on the other hand, declined, the movement being credited to rumor that Iowa's corn yield will be 5,000,000 bushels over November estimate.

Wheat opened unchanged and corn a shade higher, but both grains subsequently sold down fractionally. Liverpool closed ⅜d higher on December and ¼d on March and May. Winnipeg early was ¼c to ⅝c lower.

The early setbacks were later recovered and wheat and corn both showed fractional net changes.

May hard wheat opened at $1.31 and May corn 93¾c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 54,600 bushels, compared with 78,400 a week ago and 51,800 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 21 through. The three Northwestern markets combined had 1455 cars of wheat, compared with 1891 a week ago and 447 a year ago, Minneapolis receiving 130 cars, Duluth 40 and Winnipeg 1455.

In the local cash grain market Saturday good soft wheat was scarce and demand very limited. Prices were steady. There was a small demand for cheap garlicky grades. Hard wheat was steady, mills taking the few cars of No. 2 hard offered on a basis of 1c over Chicago May price. Corn prices were steady to ½c lower, buying being scattered. Some firmness was shown in opening sales on demand mostly for selections, but in late day some white sold ½c under previous day's level. OPTIMISTIC YEAR END EXPECTED IN LONDON

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post in weekly financial review says:

"The naval program of the United States as announced has aroused no criticism here, simply because your and our general worldwide interests coincide rather than clash. The only effect noticed at all is a checking of economy which might otherwise have been launched. Nevertheless, it is believed that American taxpayers may themselves criticise if expenditures become too high.

"Meanwhile, America and England continue to do pacific work by giving financial aid for the recuperation of various countries, and these operations are regarded as contributions to the cause of peace.

"The year here looks as if it would end in the usual optimistic fashion. The technical position of the markets is good and securities have risen appreciably during the past 12 months. In the stock markets there is much talk of the impending gold outflow from you in January, which is expected to produce monetary ease here. Most quarters, however, anticipate no material change in money rates here before February, and we are now approaching the period when tax collections greatly affect market supplies and credits.

"The usual interest is being taken in Benjamin Strong's visit.

"While co-operation between central banks is approved as probably being necessary for economy in the use of gold and in dealing with the difficult post-war international condition, it is regarded as increasing the difficulty of intelligently discerning the actual financial position.

"Our continued rise in securities and absorption of new capital by investors, and particularly our large foreign loans excite considerable wonderment as to the apparent extent of our surplus savings and in the same connection the rise in sterling occasions similar surprise.

"At a recent big industrial meeting, like P. and O. Steamship, and the South Durham Iron and Steel, the chairman was only able to speak moderately and soberly of the outlook for British trade, which is believed to be rather better.

CORN TURNS LOWER IN LATE TRADE AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—With the Washington final crop report on corn due late Monday, the corn market today displayed much nervousness and finally underwent a sharp setback. Talk was current that contrary to recent somewhat general expectation, the November official forecast of 1927 corn production in the United States as a whole would be reduced but slightly, if at all.

Closing quotations on corn were weak, ⅝@¾c to 1⅛c net lower. Wheat finished firm at ⅛@¼c to 1c advance, oats a shade to ¼c off and provisions unchanged to 80c down.

Assertions that forthcoming Government corn crop figures would be virtually unchanged as compared with a month ago were based on a rumor that the expected yield in Iowa is 5,000,000 bushels over the November estimate. Thus the Iowa production this season would be about 400,000,000 bushels. According to an unofficial statement here this would suggest that hardly any change would be made at Washington in the November estimate of a total yield of 2,753,000,000 bushels of corn this season throughout the entire United States.

Inasmuch as in some quarters a reduction of at least 50,000,000 bushels was expected to be shown by the December official corn crop report from Washington as compared with November, bearish sentiment relative to corn prives developed rapidly today toward the last. Earlier, the corn market had an upward trend much of the time owing to scantiness of rural offerings and as a result of firmness of export corn bids at the Gulf of Mexico with sellers asking 1c a bushel over the price of Chicago May delivery.

Wheat prices here averaged lower early, the Argentine Government crop report indicating a yield larger than was looked for. Unofficial advices however, said the Argentine Government figures were too optimistic. Accordingly, firmness of Buenos Aires and Liverpool wheat quotations were reflected here as the day drew to an end.

Oats were governed mainly by the action of corn.

For the most part, provisions were dull and prices little changed.

According to the Argentine official crop report unfavorable weather during this season's wheat growth and fructification did not have the decisive effect upon the yield which was feared. Only certain regions suffered, a report says. On the other hand, the Liverpool market today showed steadiness in the face of the Argentine official statement and some dispatches from Liverpool said that shippers were resisting any decline in wheat values.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review today says:

"The heavy shipments of gold to London, Poland, South America and Sweden during the week had a repressive influence on further displays of strength influmany foreign exchanges. The demand for sterling fell off sharply after the rate for cables reached $4.88⅛ and toward the end of the week the cable rate fell to $4.88 3-16, making further exports to London not only unprofitable but unreasonable.

"It was generally assumed that the movement of gold to Europe was in the nature of forced transactions and that a return to normalcy would be marked by a cessation of the outflow of the yellow metal. Toward the end of the week there were few substantial inquiries for sterling and the market tone was described by dealers as easier, a condition that was clearly indicated by the decline when only few offerings were made.

"Continental exchange followed sterling closely, the advance in Swedish exchange to above 27 cents to the kroner being a basis for the unusual shipment of gold to that country. Dutch exchange, which had ranged around 40.46 for cables, dropped below 40.44 and Swiss also reacted. Belgium held firm at close to its high level.

"Although South American exchanges were looked on as justifying gold shipments, especially to Argentine, those rates also showed a receding tendency, Uruguay falling from 104.25 to 103.75.

"Brazil became strong in yesterday's trading, moving ⅛ of a cent to 12.07.

Japan was steadily bought during the week, advancing from 45.90 to 46.18 for cables.

"Canadian yielded to 9-64 discount."

COTTON CLOSES STEADY WITH SMALL CHANGES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Continuation of the recent buying movement caused rallies from an opening decline in the cotton market today, but there was considerable week-end realiing and prices reacted later. January sold up from 18.78c to 19.00c, a net advance of 11 points and a new high for the movement, but closed at 18.88, the general market closing steady, net 4 points higher to 1 point lower.

The opening was unchanged to 10 points lower, active months showing net losses of 8 to 11 points in the first few minutes under profit-taking by recent buyers together with local and Southern selling, probably promoted by the failure of Liverpool to fully meet yesterday's local advance. Offerings were readily absorbed by covering and trade buying, however, and the market firmed up during the forenoon, when the demand seemed to be encouraged by reports of a better demand for cotton goods. March advanced from 18.99c to 19.18c and May from 19.11c to 19.33c, net gains of about 9 to 13 points on active months and advances of about 100 to 110 points from the low levels last Tuesday. At these figures realizing increased and prices worked back to about yesterday's closing figures in the later trading.

The fact that week-end realizing was not heavier at the start, considering the extent of the recent advance, no doubt contributed to the mid-morning rally, as it was taken to indicate that the market's technical position had not been materially weakened by recent buying. Houses with Liverpool and London connections were credited with buying here in the early trading, but the demand from abroad tapered off later. The decline was accompanied by rumors that spot demand was less active, but nothing definite developed in that connection, and local brokers attributed most of the selling to realizing, although there was some selling of March and May, supposedly in the way of hedging.

Private cables said there had been covering, trade calling and continental buying in the Liverpool market, adding that fair cloth sales had been reported for India, and that the Shanghai auctions showed a better tone.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 170,000 bales against 192,000 last year.

HOGS SELL DOWN TO LOWEST SINCE 1924

Sharply lower prices were featured in beef steers, mixed yearlings and fat heifers the past week in a price narrowing process that inflicted the greatest losses on better qualitied kinds. Choice fleshed offerings of the above mentioned classes declined $1 to $1.50 and more, while the medium and good kinds were 25c to 75c off. Cows and bulls sold steady during the period and stockers and feeders 25c off. Receipts were not excessive in volume, running lighter than the previous week and the same period a year ago. In spite of the sharp price cuts, a new high for the year was recorded for steers, one load of yearling weights cashing at $18 for the Christmas trade. Odd head registered upward to $21. Several cars made as high as $17, but sales between this figure and the $13 column were few, most deals made in a range of $9.75 to $13.75, on native steers. The Western trade showed a temporary revival with better than 50 cars arriving for sale this week, bulk from Texas. Two cars of Oklahoma fed steers made $12.35, which was high for this class, a few other Westerns reaching $10.35 and majority of sales registering between $9.50 and $10. Several cars of Texas steers in quarantine sold from $8.10 to $8.75 late in the week. These prices were $1 to $1.25 lower as compared with the previous week. One load of choice fleshed mixed steer and heifer yearlings reached the $15 figure early this week, sharply declining prices featuring very few sales as high as $13 during subsequent sessions. Majority of the better kinds in this class went in a spread of $11 to $12.75, while the medium and plain assortments cleared in a spread of $7 to $10.50 largely. In addition to the drop that prices took, the demand was very slow, and toward the latter part of the week offerings were almost unsalable. Unevenness of the trade, too, made an accurate comparison of prices difficult. A right good demand was in effect on cows throughout the period and prices, with the exception of initial week's trade, held to a firm basis. Best beef cows made as high as $10.50, majority of best kinds going between $9 and $10, bulk of sales registering from $8.50 down to $6.50 for a plain beef cow. Cutter flesh sold chiefly between $5.75 and $6.25, low grades $5.50 and canners ranging $5.25 and down to $4.75 for a thin kind. Some common kinds sold as low as $4.65. Active inquiry for bulls overcame a weaker feeling that was in evidence in the week's opening session, and bolognas closed at $7.75 for top, full steady with the previous week. Most of the best bolognas cashed from $7 to $7.50, medium kinds around $6.50 to $7 and plainer varieties from $6 down. Beef and butcher bulls sold up to $9.50. The lightest movement of stocker and feeder steers featured in weeks was seen here the past week. Receipts were light and demand smaller than has usually been the case of late. Sales ranged from $6.90 to $9.25 and $9.50 largely, stock cows around $6 to $6.25 mostly and heifers from $6.25 to $6.75. All these were considered 25c lower, bulls on the other hand selling strong in a spread of $6.50 to $7.50. Although top veals closed considerably lower than the week's high time, sales still figured 25c above the previous week's close. Tops finished at $14.50, first cuts in a spread of $11.50 to $12.50 and next outs and heavies ranging from $6.50 to $11 largely. Southern canner yearlings closed at $5.25 to $5.60 largely, around 25c lower.

Lower Trend to Hogs.

Although prices rallied at times the past week of trading, the general hog market followed a lower trend. Buyers were bearish and draggy trading featured most of the early trades. Prices reached the lowest level of the current year, in fact, the lowest since the week ending July 19, 1924. However, subsequent advances sent prices up to an $8.65 top but declines in the week's closing trades put the top back to $8.55. Shippers had a moderate number of orders and with a good support from packers, with traders and city butchers taking a fair number, good clearances were noted. On the whole the market averaged around 25c to 35c under last Saturday's prices. Receipts fell short of last week at the local market but the 11 markets showed an increase in supplies. Quality locally was rather good throughout the week. Pigs and light lights were up and down, however, following a lower trend. They closed the period around 25c lower. Most light lights sold for the period at $7.75 to $8.25 with good pigs weighing 90 to 130 pounds at $7 to $7.75. Light pigs 50 to 80 pounds cashed mainly at $6.50 to $6.75. Roasters topped at $9. Packing sows followed a lower trade in conjunction with other classes and closed the week 10c to 15c off. Most sows sold for the period at $7.25 to $7.35 with top sows at $7.50, and sparingly. Most stags made $7 to $7.25, a few up to $7.50. Today's market ruled 5c to 10c higher in a fairly active trade. Best butchers made $8.45 and $8.50 with top at $8.55. Light hogs sold at $8.25 to $8.40.

Fat Lambs Decline.

Due to sharply increased receipts at the eleven markets and that the biggest part of the local supply arrived on one day, fat lambs which have been selling virtually at the same prices for several weeks, suffered sharp declines the past week. Packers were bearish at the start of the week and the first two days saw prices slump 50c to 75c. The market then held to a steady level for two days although buyers tried to keep the swing downward. Friday, although the supply was far from heavy it was a case of practically no demand and the market dragged through the day at a 25c decline on fat lambs. Bulk of native lambs cashed for the period at $13 to $13.25, as to $13.50 to $13.75 and up to $14, in some cases last week. Fed lambs bulked at $13.25 with a few up to $13.50, as to $13.75 and $14 frequently the previous week. At the close of the period the best price obtainable was $13, for either fed lambs or natives. As compared with a week ago lambs are generally 50 to 75c off with extremes $1 lower. Yearlings suffered the same decline as lambs and although there was a dozen or more loads of good to choice 85 to 90 lb. averages the best price obtainable was $10.75, which claimed the bulk. There was practically no other wethers on sale. Aged sheep, as has been the case in several weeks, were in light supply and prices maintained a steady hold. Best ewes brought $6 although there were no choice lambs on sale. Weighty kinds not up in quality either, sold at $5 to $5.50. Culls cashed mainly at $1.50 to $4. Quotations: Slaughter Stock: Fed Western or natives—Good to choice lambs $12.75 to $13.25, medium to good $12 to $12.75; plain to medium $11 to $12, cull and common $9 ot $10.50. Good to choice yearling wethers $10.25 to $10.75, medium to good $9.75 to $10.25 plain to medium $9 to $9.75 cull and common $8.50 to $9. Good to choice aged Western wethers $8 to $9, good fat Southern kinds $7 to $8, thin to fair kinds $4 to $6.50. Good to choice mutton ewes $5.50 to $6.50, medium to good $5 to $5.50, plain to medium $4.50 to $5, choppers and bucks $3 to $4, canners $1.50 to $3. Fat goats $2 to $3.50, fair to good kids $4 to $7, thin to fair kids $1.50 to $3.

Horses and Mules.

During the week just closed the number of buyers for mules here was probably the largest of the season and a good trade was experienced on all except some of the common outclassed kinds. Good haired and fat mules sold higher while prices in the majority of cases on other kinds were about steady. Good blocky mules found a good demand from buyers from Southwestern territory. The horse trade was scattered and light receipts further contributed toward quietness in this class. Not enough stock was exchanged to justify any change in existing quotations.

Native Mule Quotations—Draft mules, 16 to 17 hands, $175@250; mine mules, 15 to 16.2 hands, $125@160; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair, 16 to 16.2 hands, $140@165; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair, 15 to 15.2 hands, $110@135; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair, 14.2 to 15 hands, $85@100; cotton mules, mares, rough-haired, 15 to 15.2 hands, $65@90; cotton mules, mares, rough-haired 14.2 to 15 hands, $45@65; horse mules $15@20 per head less than above quotations; farm mules, broke, good bone, 15.3 to 16.2 hands, $90@125; medium farm mules, $80@90; farm mules, thin, half broke, 15.2 to 16 hands, $50@75; small, common mules, $15@40.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The raw sugar market continued firm today, prices advancing 1-32 of a cent to the basis of 4.65c for Cuban, duty paid. Sales were 24,000 bags of Cuban for December shipment and 21,000 bags of Phillipines, for early January arrival, at the quoted prices.

Not much activity developed in raw sugar futures. Aside from a little liquidation of the January position, prices held steady on covering and trade buying, evidently due to the continued strength in the spot market. Final prices were net unchanged to 2 points lower, with approximate sales 16,750 tons. December closed 2.81c; January, 2.83c; March, 2.86c; May, 2.93c; July, 3.01c; September, 3.09c; December, 1928, 3.15c.

The refined sugar market was unchanged at 5.60c to 5.70c for fine granulated, with moderate inquiry.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows excess reserve of $18,281,560. This is an increase in reserve of $186,010 compared with the week before when excess reserve of $18,095,550 was reported.

7 NICARAGUANS KILLED IN 3 ENCOUNTERS WITH MARINES

No American Casualties When Attack Is Made on Band at Corrales.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 17.—Col. Mason Gulick, commander of the United States marines here, said today three encounters between marines and national guardsmen and irregulars has occurred in the last few days.

Seven or more irregulars were killed and a large number wounded. Six irregulars were killed and three wounded when a combat patrol of marines and national guard attacked a band at Corrales, near Falso Point. There were no marine or national guard casualties in this or the other two skirmishes.

Several irregulars were wounded and perhaps some killed in an engagement near Telpaneca, between Pericon and El Portal, which took place just before darkness fell, preventing a check of casualties. Twelve machetes and several dynamite bombs were captured.

One rebel was killed and three were wounded when a rebel patrol attacked a party of marines and guardsmen between Santa Isabel and Santa Lucia. The remaining rebels fled to the mountains.

U. S. NAVY PLANS TAKEN BY LONDON AS A CHALLENGE

Times Emphasizes Alleged Unwillingness of America to Declare Purpose of Greater Fleet.

INTEDPRETATION OF SEA LAW INVOLVED

Chamberlain Says Washington Proposes to Assert Right to Trade With Belligerents at Will.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON
London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co.'s (The New York World and Post-Dispatch).

LONDON, Dec. 17.—In an editorial obviously inspired by the British Government, the Times today inferentially accepts President Coolidge's recommendation for more American cruisers as a challenge to Great Britain. The editorial adds, however, that it must not be met by a rival building program.

The greatest emphasis in the Times article is laid on the alleged unwillingness of the United States to announce the purpose for which a great navy is required.

(Washington has explained that our great and growing foreign trade all over the world, our lack of naval bases outside the country and our many ports all need the protection of a navy as big as England's.)

This allegation of America's unwillingness to explain has been the keynote of British Government propaganda during and since the Geneva conference. But the government believes it knows the answer.

Foreign Secretary Chamberlain in Geneva a week ago said the real Anglo-America conflict at the tri-power naval gathering was not based on technical details, but on a different conception of the right of blockade. He would not permit publication of this, but I saw the text of his declaration and his government's view of American policy, never voiced here, may be summarized as follows:

"The United States, with growing foreign investments and foreign trade, proposed to be able to enforce her right of trade with belligerents at will against any contrary conception of sea law. The fact that the United States joined Great Britain in imposing British doctrine on Holland and Scandinavia during the war, forbidding trade with those countries, may be ignored, as sea law fundamentally depends on power, and the United States proposed to acquire power to assert her will."

Such a statement, if officially made by the United States, would at least clear the issue and do good here by allaying sinister suspicions which are rapidly permeating the mass of the English public, due to the mystery fostered in the public mind here as to the motive for America's great Navy.

SENATE BILL SEEKS PENSIONS FOR ALL LATE WAR VETERANS

Brookhart Introduces Measure But Smoot Favors Payments Only to Disabled.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — The long expected move in Congress for pensions for World War Veterans and their dependants was initiated today by Senator Brookhart (Rep.) of Iowa.

A bill to place all holders of adjusted service certificates—the so-called soldier bonus—on the same pension status as veterans of the Spanish-American war was introduced by that Senator.

Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee, previously had begun an inquiry as to the cost of pensions for certain of the World War veterans and now is awaiting an estimate from the Pension Bureau.

The Utah Senator would limit pensions to the disabled veterans, paying them through that system in lieu of present methods, but Senator Brookhart would give all of the veterans pensions in addition to any other pensions, bounties or compensations any of them now receive.

The Brookhart bill was referred to the pensions committee.

BLACKMER GETS COURT ORDER

Absentee Oil Trial Witness Notified of $100,000 Forfeiture

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—H. M. Blackmer, missing witness in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial, has been served with an order of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia citing him to show cause why he should not be adjudged guilty of contempt and $100,000 of his property forfeited. He was served in Paris on Dec. 5.

Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining Co., summoned as a witness in the conspiracy trial in October, failed to appear. Government counsel, acting under the law sponsored by Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, prosecutor of the oil investigation, asked that he be cited to show cause why $100,000 of his property should not be seized.

FATE OF ENGLISH PRAYER BOOK IS HANDS OF BISHOPS

Newspapers Devote Many Columns to Conflict Caused by House of Commons Rejection.

HEADS OF CHURCH TO MEET TODAY

Analysis of Vote Shows Welsh, Scotch and Ulster Members Largely Responsible for Defeat.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The conflict precipitated by defeat of the new prayer bok in the House of Commons occupies many columns in the newspapers, but leaders of the nation's thought are for the most part kee,ing quiet, waiting for the result of the Bench of Bishops meeting tomorrow.

The general editorial opinion is that the Church of England is much weakened. Some newspapers predict it will inevitably split up and that church and state must drift apart.

The Daily Herald, Labor's organ, warns the nation that labor will not tolerate a great religious struggle to push social issues into the background. Labor will concentrate on betterment of the workers' conditions, leaving the old parties to revive the religious hatreds of the seventeenth century if they choose.

Urge Submission.

Examination of the division lists shows a majority of the English M. P.'s and a majority of the Church of England members voted for the prayer book. It was beaten by Nonconformists and by Welsh, Scotch and Ulster votes. Lady Londonderry demands that on these grounds the measure be resubmitted to the Commons at the next session.

The next phase of the controversy depends on the Bishops. They seem limited to three courses. They can declare the prayer book has a spiritual and moral sanction which the Commons vote does not impair, and order it used in the churches, a defiance to the state which would call for and almost demand disestablishment (severance of the relations between church and state.) This would, however, probably lead to disruption of the church from within.

The Bishops can ask for severance from the state so they can adopt the prayer book and enforce ecclesiastical discipline as they wish.

Probable Remedy.

The third and more probable course as offering delay is for churchmen to pass an ecclesiastical courts measure for dealing with heretical offenders and present it to Parliament for approval. Should the Commons accept this, the prayer book after much delay could again be altered and put through the various ecclesiastical bodies before again being submitted to Parliament.

The alterations, however, would have to deal with the difficulty that wrecked the book this time—how to reconcile differences on the doctrine of trans-substantiation which have aroused anti-Catholic feelings submerged for generations.

KIPLING CHASED OFF TRAIN

Author Tells Prince of Wales of Ride on Bumpers.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Rudyard Kipling once rode the bumpers on a freight train. The brakeman chased him energetically, but the budding author darted through empty boxcars and made his getaway.

The famous writer related his tramp experiences before the Prince of Wales, Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister, and 500 others at a Canada Club dinner here. Failure of a remittance he expected upon his first arrival at Vancouver caused the "extraordinary concatenation of circumstances," Mr. Kipling explained. Not knowing what else to do, young Kipling boarded the first freight train which came along, and he said, "I enjoyed my unauthorized ride very much indeed." Mr. Kipling went further. He said the freight train got sidetracked somewhere, much to his annoyance, "and I then had an insight into the great length of time trains of that kind could be kept at a standstill, and I marveled at the activity of the brakemen in their everlasting search for tramps."

SOLVENCY HEARING OF FINANCE FIRM SET FOR THURSDAY

Receiver Asked for Missouri Mortgage Security Corporation by Buyers of Stock

PETITION ALSO ASKS REMOVAL OF OFFICERS

Alleged to Have Disposed of $1,000,000 of Stocks and Bonds in Violation of Blue Sky Law.

A hearing on the suit filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday for a receiver for the Missouri Mortgage Security Corporation, alleging the company, which has offices in the Granite Building, to be insolvent, will be held by Judge Mulloy Thursday. Approximately $1,000,000 worth of bonds and stock were sold or contracted to be sold, mostly in St. Louis County, by the corporation, the suit alleges.

Defendants, besides the corporation, are: Dr. R. B. Denny, former County Coroner, president of the corporation; Paul Sacks, vice president; E. McD. Stevens, secretary and counsel; Guy L. Pollard, cashier of Clayton National Bank, treasurer, and J. H. Schaedler, president of the same bank, a former director. Their removal as directors and officers is asked in the suit; also an accounting by them of commissions and other compensation they received and restitution of about $200,000 alleged to have been paid them unlawfully from company assets for sale of its stock and bonds.

Dr. Denny Denies Charges.

In reply to the suit Dr. Denny said that the corparation was "perfectly solvent and making money." Failure to deliver one plaintiff's stock, he added, was because only part payment for it had been made. Stevens called the suit an effort to enable the plaintiffs to get their investments back.

John P. Kraemer and Otto Heintz, farmers near Creve Coeur, are the plaintiffs, represented by

SOLVENCY HEARING OF FINANCE FIRM SET FOR THURSDAY

Receiver Asked for Missouri Mortgage Security Corporation by Buyers of Stock

PETITION ALSO ASKS REMOVAL OF OFFICERS

Alleged to Have Disposed of $1,000,000 of Stocks and Bonds in Violation of Blue Sky Law.

A hearing on the suit filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday for a receiver for the Missouri Mortgage Security Corporation, alleging the company, which has offices in the Granite Building, to be insolvent, will be held by Judge Mulloy Thursday. Approximately $1,000,000 worth of bonds and stock were sold or contracted to be sold, mostly in St. Louis County, by the corporation, the suit alleges.

Defendants, besides the corporation, are: Dr. R. B. Denny, former County Coroner, president of the corporation; Paul Sacks, vice president; E. McD. Stevens, secretary and counsel; Guy L. Pollard, cashier of Clayton National Bank, treasurer, and J. H. Schaedler, president of the same bank, a former director. Their removal as directors and officers is asked in the suit; also an accounting by them of commissions and other compensation they received and restitution of about $200,000 alleged to have been paid them unlawfully from company assets for sale of its stock and bonds.

Dr. Denny Denies Charges.

In reply to the suit Dr. Denny said that the corparation was "perfectly solvent and making money." Failure to deliver one plaintiff's stock, he added, was because only part payment for it had been made. Stevens called the suit an effort to enable the plaintiffs to get their investments back.

John P. Kraemer and Otto Heintz, farmers near Creve Coeur, are the plaintiffs, represented by Attorneys Orla M. Hill and Jesse L. England. Kraemer, it is recited, bought $20,000 of the company's bonds and 100 shares of its class A, no par value stock, at $90 a share, paying $5450 on account for the latter, while Heintz bought $5000 of the bonds and paid $1462 on $5000 worth of class A stock.

It is alleged in the suit that in getting permission from the State Securities Division to issue this stock, the company withheld information about its prior sale of bonds in assessed violation of the blue sky law, and about the alleged fact of its insolvency and other details of its operations.

Contracts Called Fraudulent.

Purchasers of bonds shared in a distribution of what purported to be 25 per cent of the company's net earnings, in violation of the blue sky law, it is alleged, and members of an advisory but powerless "board of associate directors" shared in distribution of another 10 per cent of profits, in violation of the law, it is averred further.

Practically all of the 5000 shares of class A stock were sold, at $90 to $100 a share, and more than $300,000 collected on account for it, the suit asserts, but the company refused to issue the stock o make accounting to the buyers. Contracts for the stock sale are attacked in the suit as fraudulent and unlawful because of an arrangement as to dividends and because they were not authorized by the State Securities Division.

CHILDREN BUY BUST OF LINDBERGH AS GIFT

Bronze Sculpture From 50,000 Donors Accepted by Historical Society.

A bronze bust of Col. Lindbergh, the gift of 50,000 St. Louis school children, was formally presented to the Missouri Historical Society yesterday afternoon in Jefferson Memorial. Ben Weidle, president of the School Board, made the presentation. Breckinridge Jones, vice president of the society, received the bust.

Approximately 30,000 public school children and 20,000 children from parochial and private schools in the city and county contributed the money with which William F. Engelmann, Chicago sculptor, was commissioned to make the bust.

The sculptured portrait is lifesize. It is held to be an excellent likeness of Col. Lindbergh It was made from a study of several likenesses of the flyer, and after the artist had met and studied Lindbergh several times.

School children present at the ceremonies yesterday leaped to their feet at the conclusion of the program and gave three cheers, followed by a raucous "Lindbergh!"

Ben Weidle, calling Lindbergh the "lone eagle of the Atlantic," said of him: "He is linking this country in bonds of good will and fellowship with other nations of the world."

Breckinridge Jones, in accepting the bust, paid high tribute to the flyer. He said that men who had flown with Lindbergh were convinced that Lindbergh, perhaps alone of all flyers in the country, could have made the trans-Atlantic solo flight.

Jones said the time had come for the city to turn over the entire Jefferson Memorial building to the Missouri Historical Society. Exhibition of the Lindbergh collection, he said, showed clearly that the historical society was badly cramped and should have more space.

The society now has the east wing of the building. The west wing of the building, whose use is at the disposal of the city, is used mainly as a rehearsal room for the municipal opera orchestra from January to August.

8-STORY APARTMENT FOR CABANNE AND BELT

To Embody Best Traditions of Most Interesting Period in Architecture Here.

Excavation has begun for the construction of an eight-story apartment building to be called The Mark Twain, at the corner of Cabanne and Belt avenues, for V. H. Rhodes, contractor.

The building will contain 112 apartments of two, three and four rooms, the latter of which will be so designed that they may be converted, by the use of an adjoining room, into five-room apartments with two baths, and a garage large enough to house the cars of all occupants.

Many of the apartments will have balconies, made of the iron grill work preserved from old St. Louis houses. It has been Rhodes' idea that the building should fit into its setting on one of the old residence streets in the city and surrounded as it will be by ancient elms.

The first two stories will be of random Bedford limestone and the remainder in sand pressed brick with stone trim. The Boaz-Kiel Construction Co. will erect the super-structure.

The architect is Francis Avis, associated with Ralph Cole Hall and Victor Proetz.

PREVIOUS DISASTERS TO UNDERSEA BOATS

33 Lost on S-51; 22 on F-4; 42 on S-48, Under Water 8 Hours, Rescued.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Submersible fighting craft, while forming a comparatively small part of the world's great navies, have furnished some of the outstanding marine disasters of the last decade.

The last great submarine disaster was the loss of the S-51 off Block Island, R. I., when 33 men were killed in the sinking of the submarine in a collision with the steamer City of Rome, Sept. 25, 1925.

Other accidents to undersea craft follow:

American submarine O-5, in collision with a steamer at the Atlantic Ocean entrance to the Panama Canal in 1923; three men lost.

In 1915, at Honolulu, 22 officers and men were lost in the sinking of the submarine F-4.

42 Lived After 8 Hours Under Sea.

In December, 1922, 42 men were trapped eight hours under water when the S-43 went to the bottom with an open hatch. All were rescued. The accident happened on a trial cruise off Bridgeport, Conn.

The S-51, lost on the night of Sept. 25, 1925, had a hole torn in her port side aft of the bow that caused the vessel to fill and sink almost immediately. Many of the crew were trapped in their bunks, and those who were working the ship had no time to close the doors between the compartments. Only three men were saved of seven who made their way to the bridge. The submarine was commanded by Lieut. Rodney H. Dobson, who was swept from the bridge and drowned.

Capt. John H. Diehl of Medford, Mass., commander of the City of Rome, picked up the only three survivors, Alfred Geier, New Bedford, Mass.; Dewey Kile, Peoria, Miss., and Michael S. Lira, St. Louis.

After five days of examination of the sunken vessel by divers, all hope for the men inside the S-51 was abandoned. It was later learned that the submarine must have filled from stem to stern a few moments after the collision, drowning all on board. Ten bodies were recovered from the wreckage.

Capt. Diehl was tried in the Federal court at Boston on charges growing out of the disaster, but was acquitted. Last month suits against the Government aggregating $2,000,000 by relatives of the 33 men lost on the S-51 were dismissed in Brooklyn.

Other Accidents.

Jan. 30, 1925—The American S-48 grounded off Portsmouth, N. H., in a snowstorm, but was floated the next day, and during the same month the S-19 grounded for a short time off Cape Cod.

An explosion at the Brooklyn navy yard in 1916 caused four deaths and many injuries to members of the crew of the E-2.

The explosion of gas in the storage battery compartment of the U. S. submarine S-49 at New London, Conn., killed three men and injured nine others, April 4, 1926.

Foreign Disasters.

In August, 1923, a new unnamed Japanese undersea boat sank on its first trial trip at Kobe, with the largest recorded loss in submarine history, 85 men.

March 19, 1924, 49 lives were lost on the Japanese submarine No. 43 in collision with the Japanese battleship Tatsuta off Susebo.

Jan. 10, 1924, 43 officers and men of the British submarine L-24 were lost off Portland, England, in a collision with the British dreadnought Resolution.

In September, 1925, the Italian submarine Sebastiano Veniero was lost during maneuvers off Sicily, with 50 men aboard.

March 23, 1922, during war games off Gibraltar, a British submarine with 23 men aboard, was rammed and sunk by British destroyer.

In 1918 a British submarine sank in the English Channel.

Legion of Honor Costs Millions.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Every red ribbon of the Legion of Honor costs the French Government 500 francs or $20 a year. There are about 120,000 members of the order, so the expense runs above 60,000,000 francs. Every member pays for his insignia, but there are archives and records to be kept, a permanent governing body to be maintained and several schools to be operated for children of members. Pensions are attached to only a small proportion of the honors conferred for distinguished service. Each year there are fewer such awards.

Man Hurt in Rail Collision Dies.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Dec. 17.—John J. Zimmerman, 68-year-old bridge foreman of the Frisco Railroad, died in a hospital here late today from injuries suffered last night in a head-on collision of two railway motor cars near Morehouse, Mo.

URGES SENATE INQUIRY INTO PUBLIC UTILITIES

Senator Walsh of Montana Offers Resolution to Determine Extent of Lobbying.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana today introduced a resolution providing for an investigation of public utility corporations. This is the same proposition, with a few important changes, presented last February; it calls for a committee of five to make the inquiry, but has been amended to cover any propaganda or lobby that may be active in Washington.

The purpose of Senator Walsh is to "inquire into the growth of the capitalization of public utility corporations supplying either electrical energy in the form of power or light, or both, however produced, or gas, natural or artificial." He would pay special attention to corporations holding the stocks of such concerns, the methods of issuing and the price realized or value received for the various security issues.

Senator Walsh asked for the immediate consideration of his resolution, but Senator Moses (Rep.) of New Hampshire objected, and it went over, and will have to be taken up next week.

The movement to go into the affairs of the alleged "Power Trust" has been forming for some time. Senator Walsh has devoted much thought and study to it.

One of the aims of Walsh is to reveal the activities of Samuel Insull of Chicago and other large power development and public utility promoters.

Walsh said that on various occasions he had tried to revive the concern once generally felt toward the "concentration of capital through the consolidation of independent industrial units," and the elimination of competition.

"It is doubtful whether in the heyday of trust organization following the McKinley election the anti-trust law was more boldly defied or more generally and notoriously violated than in the past five years," said he.

The action of Senator Moses, in blocking the Walsh program, was taken as an indication that old guard leaders will oppose this proposal. A fight is expected over the resolution.

BOBBED-HAIRED WOMEN SLAIN BY CHINESE TROOPS

Clipped Locks Considered to Mark Them as Communists in Hankow and Canton.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 17—The work of expelling Communists is going on with utter ruthlessness in Canton and Hankow. Even women and girls are shot down indiscriminately if suspected of being Communists.

Bobbed hair is considered the mark of a woman Communist in China and at least 14 girls and women with bobbed hair have been shot by anti-red troops in Canton.

Nineteen Russians declared to be Communists have been executed in the streets in Canton as a warning to those who turned to Communism, advices from Hongkong say. Among those reported killed were Kirisheff and his wife. The latter was the secretary to Michael Borodin, Russian adviser to the former Nationalist Government.

Fifteen Soviet officials, including Consul General Plitesche, were deported from Hankow this morning and started for Shanghai aboard a Chinese steamer.

While ruthless methods are pursued in Canton and Hankow, the Nationalists in Shanghai have contented themselves with more moderate methods, merely requiring the registration of all Russians with the declaration whether they are "red" or "white." This course of action is followed despite the fact that it has been reported that had the Communist coup at Canton proved successful, it would have been followed by a similar coup in Shanghai.

Kovlovsky, Soviet Consul at Shanghai and his staff have made tentative preparations to leave Shanghai Dec. 21. The Soviet Consulate is under guard of British police and virtually no one is allowed to enter or leave without search.

THUMB-BOX EXHIBITION WILL INCLUDE 300 ART WORKS

Jury of Selection Approves Offerings of Nearly 100 Painters and Etchers.

Three hundred examples by nearly 100 artists comprise the Thirteenth Annual Thumb-box Exhibition of works by artists of St. Louis, as finally chosen by the jury of selection after two arduous sessions. Included are 158 paintings in oil, 83 water colors and pastels, 57 drawings and prints. The number presented for the consideration of the jury was much larger.

There also is a section for small sculpture with a number of examples, and a section for handicraft, including pottery, dyed and other fabrics, leather work, metal work, book bindings, and other examples of original design and workmanship in applied art. The installation is at the new galleries of the St. Louis Art League, 325 Locust street.

The present exhibit opens the new downtown headquarters of the Art League in the Moneta Building, Locust and Fourth streets, where plans are being developed for further practical service in the artistic advancement of St. Louis.

NAVAL PARLEY FAILURE CALLED BRITISH BLUNDER

Viscount Rothermere, English Publisher, Lays Chief Blame on Sir Austen Chamberlain.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Failure of the tri-partite naval conference called at Geneva last summer by President Coolidge is characterized as a deplorable British blunder by Viscount Rothermere in a cabled dispatch which will be published as the feature article in the Sunday Pictorial of London tomorrow. Viscount Rothermere, publisher of several English newspapers, who is now in New York, lays the principal blame upon Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary. The dispatch follows, in part:

By VISCOUNT ROTHERMERE.

Last summer, at the invitation of President Coolidge, the Japanese and ourselves met the Americans at Geneva to discuss the reduction of naval armaments. Of all the mistakes the present British Government has made, the greatest was to let that conference fail.

Blames Chamberlain.

It failed partly because the British delegates were wrongly chosen. But the actual responsibility rests upon Sir Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary. He seemed utterly unable to realize the all-embracing importance of the conference. It was his business to know that there was a large party of American opinion pressing upon the administration at Washington the necessity of enlarging the American navy so that it should at least equal the British navy.

The object set forth by Mr. Coolidge in summoning the conference was to ascertain whether it was possible to arrive at an arrangement for the further mutual limitation of naval armaments. . . .

The consequences of the failure of this conference were obvious and inevitable. As it was Sir Austen Chamberlain's business to foresee, it introduced an element of distrust into our dealings with the United States. It also left America no other course but to bring her navy at least to parity with that of Britain. . . .

Urges Naval Reduction.

We cannot put back the clock. The fatal blunder has been made and we must bear the consequencies, but first it is of the most urgent imperial interest that the new British Government, whose arrival cannot be long delayed, should issue a declaration of our naval policy.

In that declaration should be included an explicit repudiation of any scheme for measuring our strength in naval construction against the immensely superior resources of the United States. . . . The immediate future should see a sharp curtailment in British naval expenditure. What size of fleet the Americans choose to build is no concern of ours. We have not the money to emulate them, and, if we had, it would be most wanton waste to spend it on such useless ends.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

L. E. S.—Age limit for entrance in the U. S. Navy is 17 to 35 years. Recruiting station is room 315, Federal Bldg., Third and Olive sts.

K. S. D.—Write to the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., for entrance requirements of the College of Agriculture.

S. J.—Automobile license numbers with names of owners are on record at City Hall.

BILL.—The rare stamp catalogue of Stanley Gibbons Ltd., 491 Strand, London, W. C. 2, England, is a list of the valuable stamps of the world. If you are a philatelist you need it as a handbook but it may be seen in the reference room of the public library. Specimen copy of Gibbons Monthly Journal is mailed free from the above address on request. Through the journal you may get in touch with persons making collections. Also, see local telephone directory, classified section, under "stamps."

JERRY.—The only remedy for white ants, or termites, in wood, is complete insulation from the ground, of untreated woodwork of buildings. By untreated wood is meant such as was not impregnated with coal tar creosote by the cylinder pressure or open tank process. Fumigation or spraying is of no permanent value. Paint is a repellant, as it protects wood from moisture, however, the State Automobile License Supervisor reported that termites have actually eaten paint off the license plates stored in the capitol building at Jefferson City, where it was necessary at one time to exterminate these ants. They live in the ground and just maintain contact with it to obtain moisture necessary for their existence. When contact with earth moisture is cut off, the insects in the damaged wood will die, no matter how numerous. They will not die, however, if the wood is kept moist from any other source, such as water leakage. Examine foundation timbers to determine where they have contact with the ground and remove such contact. A contractor of ordinary intelligence can handle this work. One of the commonest sources of infestation is through wooden timbers or stringers laid in concrete while the latter is still soft or before it has been poured in. Other sources are through supports of coal bins extending through concrete and through the disintegrated lime mortar of brick walls.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

EX-HUSBAND.—Consult a lawyer regarding both your questions.

M. L. C. V.—You probably have ground for a suit against the loan company. Consult a lawyer.

TIRED.—You may have sufficient ground for a divorce. Consult a lawyer.

MRS. WORRIED MOTHER.—Take the matter up with the association. If you cannot get them to change the records consult a lawyer.

DAILY READER.—Under the new law such a company can make a loan up to $300 and charge three and one-half per cent per month interest.

A. Z.—The man should get a watchman's license if he is going to carry the pistol. The Sheriff's permit covered only the purchase of the pistol.

SAP.—The company has a right to make an extra charge if you are late in making payments on the automobile. It appears that 10 cents for a week's delay would be reasonable.

YOUR CONSTANT READER.—The company can take the car back and resell it, and if it resells for less than the balance you owe, they can sue you and can garnish 10 per cent of your wages, to collect the balance.

C. E. H.—You should pay a personal property tax for 1926 in the city, but not in the county. Go to the Assessor's Office at Clayton and explain that you did not move to the county until June 16, 1926, and that you are paying a personal property tax in the city.

A WIDOW.—You ought to get a note and possibly a second deed of trust on the house; or a chattel mortgage on the furniture. You are entitled to a six per cent interest on the loan. You can buy a blank form of note at any stationer's. No witnesses to it are necessary.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

G. W.—Oranges and orange juice as well as other fruits are wholesome and often of benefit in the condition you mention.

READER.—Authorities consulted do not know of the method of treating wrinkles which you ask about. For tracing an "ad," write the advertising department.

ANXIOUS—The cause of the condition must be determined by thorough examination and when found may be remedied by proper treatment.

BETTY.—The headache mentioned is generally due to some digestive disturbance, constipation, etc., and should be benefited by taking one or two tablets two or three times daily after meals of Caroid and Bile Salts. If you wish diet list, send stamped, addressed envelope repeating question.

HOPELESS.—Iodine is much used in treatment of the condition mentioned, and its effects increased with iron, such as "The Syrupus Ferri et Iodi" in one-half to one teaspoonful doses three times daily after meals. Such a case should always be under the personal care of a competent physician for best results.

DUMB BELL—The taking of teaspoonful doses of guiatonic in a wineglass of water three times daily after meals should prove helpful to you. Also apply hot packs to the joints for 15 or 20 minutes daily night and morning. After drying thoroughly, apply iodex ointment with gentle rubbing.

CARRIE.—The occurrence is probably due to an article of your diet other than fruit, although some are affected by simple foods which are wholesome for almost anyone else. It would be well to eliminate all acid from your diet for a while. Another frequent cause is sluggish liver action. In this case you should be benefited by taking caroid and bile salts, two at a dose, three times daily, after meals.

BIRTHDAY MEMORIAL FOR MAURICE V. CASSIDY JUNIOR.
We dedicate your twentieth birthday, December nineteenth, to loving memories of you, dear son and brother, to recall all the joy and happiness you brought to us during your short, sweet life.
PARENTS AND SISTER.

In memory of our dear mother:
Years of sacrifices, little of play,
Loving and giving, and smoothing the way;
Life is too short, mother, ever to pay;
Strong in adversity, ready to do,
Gentle, unselfish, a friend ever true,
Our proudest possession, dear mother, was you.
IRNA AND RAY KRACHT.

In loving memory of Orville J. McSpadden, who departed this life 3 years ago, Dec. 16, 1924:
Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us
Though you left us three years ago.
Sadly missed by Wife, Mother and Brother.

In loving memory of our dear son, husband, father and brother, Oscar H. Seufert, who departed this life nine years ago, Dec. 20, 1918.
From this world of grief and trouble,
To the land of peace and rest,
God has taken you dear Oscar
Where you found everlasting rest.
Sadly missed by PARENTS, WIFE, SON AND SISTERS.

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Virginia Marie Scheele, who departed this life four years ago, Dec. 16, 1923:

Her happy face to touch;
To hear her voice and see her smile,
That to us meant so much.
Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scheele and all who loved her.

In memory of Jul Joos who was called away; 21 years of age; Dec. 14.
Not dead to us who loved him
Not lost but gone before
He lives with us in memory
And will forevermore.
His daughters,
MRS. H. ROCKWELL.
MRS. E. UFFMAN.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR DEAR FATHER, JOSEPH J. WINKELMANN, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE ONE YEAR AGO, Dec. 18, 1926:
YOU ARE NOT FORGOTTEN, FATHER, DEAR,
NOR SHALL YOU EVER BE.
AS LONG AS LIFE AND MEMORY LAST,
WE SHALL REMEMBER THEE.
SADLY MISSED BY
WIFE AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ellen Tice who departed life Dec. 21, 1918.
Dear Mother you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us as you were before.
We do not forget you nor do we intend,
We think of you and will to the end.
A loving heart shall always
Linger around the grave where you are laid.
Missed by her children, grandchildren and all who loved her.

In sad and loving memory of our dear son and brother, George Jovanovich, who departed this life, 2 years ago, Dec. 17, 1925:
Wonderful son, brother and lad,
One who was better, God never made,
One in a million, that son was you,
Just in your judgment, always right, honest and liberal, always upright.
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew,
This darling son, dear brother, was you.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM. (c)

In loving memory of our darling mother, Elizabeth Jorcke, who departed this life Dec. 15, 1926.
Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome,
In the midst of our joys we are blue;
With smiles on our faces we've got heartaches,
Longing, dear mother, for you.
Our lips cannot tell how we loved you,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how we miss you,
In homes that are lonesome today.
Sadly missed by SONS, DAUGHTERS-IN-LAW AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear husband, and father, Mr. Charles Lorne, who departed this life 5 years ago Dec. 17, 1922.
Dearest father how we miss you,
Since from us you passed away,
We remember, all your kindness,
As we think of you today;
You are gone, but not forgotten,
In our memory you remain,
Until the coming hour,
When we shall meet again
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In sad but loving memory of our darling son, Norbert J. Kortkamp, who departed this life Dec. 18, 1923.
In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
In his silent, lonely grave.

Oh! so calmly did he leave us,
How we miss his smiling face,
He is gone but not forgotten
To that far off distant place.

For his soul so pure and holy
God did not permit to stay
He has won a place in Heaven
So dear Norbert was taken away.
Sadly missed by mother, father and all who loved him. (c)

In loving memory of our dear mother, Kate B. Meeks, who departed this last 13 years ago Dec. 17, 1914.
A wonderful mother, woman and aid, one who was better God never made; a wonderful worker so loyal and true, one in a million, that mother was you; just in your judgment, always right; honest and liberal, ever upright; loved by your friends and all whom you knew, our wonderful mother, that mother was you.

DR. JOHN S. KIMBROUGH DIES OF HEART AILMENT

Skin Specialist Was Native of Clinton, Mo.; Graduated From Washington U.

Dr. John S. Kimbrough, a skin specialist, died of heart disease at 4:30 p. m. yesterday in his home at 5251 Washington boulevard. He was 61 years old and unmarried.

Dr. Kimbrough came from Clinton, Mo., to enter Washington University, and after graduation from the medical school remained here to practice. After general surgical practice, he specialized in skin diseases and radium treatment. His office was in the Beaumont Medical Building, 3720 Washington.

Surviving are two brothers, Dr. Joseph B. and Dr. Henry S. Kimbrough, and two sisters, Misses Laura and Linne Kimbrough, all of St. Louis. Funeral services probably will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Former Rumanian Premier Ill.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 17.—The local press reports that former Premier Averescu is seriously ill. Foreign Minister Titulescu, who has been suffering from grip, also is said to have suffered a relapse, accompanied by fever.

$100,000,000 NOT TOO MUCH TO PAY TO MAKE U. S. DRY

So Declares Francis Scott McBride, Leader of Anti-Saloon League, on Visit to City.

SAYS PROHIBITION SAVES $6,500,000,000

Reports Federal Enforcement Never Before Has Been So Effective, Even in St. Louis.

Some observations on prohibition were given yesterday by Francis Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America ,on his arrival in St. Louis on a tour of the states to learn how prohibition is faring.

McBride has succeeded, temporarily at least, to the duties of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, legislative agent of the league.

In a formal statement and in conversation with reporters, McBride made the following points:

The law is too lenient with violators of prohibition. The constitutional inhibitions—manufacture, sale, exportation, importation and transportation of liquor—should be bulwarked by the classification of violations as felonies. That means jail sentences.

As much as $100,000,000 a year is not too much to spend for enforcement of prohibition. Roger Babson is quoted that the annual saving through the banishment of liquor is $6,500,000,000.

Gov. Smith and Senator Reed cannot fool the prohibition forces with statements that they are for enforcement of the law. Gov. Smith has tried to make New York the happy hunting ground of the bootlegger and Senator Reed always has opposed prohibition.

Plan to Keep Congress Dry.

The present program of the Anti-Saloon League is to keep Congress dry, get added legislative action for better enforcement and get enough money for enforcement.

Prohibition is making steady, strong, irresistible strides toward its goal. Federal enforcement never before has been so effective.

Beer making and wine making in the home eventually will disappear because the sentiment of patriotic citizens will frown upon it.

Chicago today is a better city and has less drunkenness than the most exemplary and well-regulated city of saloons in the pre-prohibition days. That goes for St. Louis, too. A recent report of a sojourner here who went out upon the streets here nightly declared that in three weeks he did not encounter a drunken person in the downtown.

There must be no wet President of the United States, because the President is the chief law enforcement officer controlling by appointment the machinery of enforcement even up to the Supreme Court of the United States.

McBride before his appointment to be general superintendent two years ago was superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois.

Upshaw to Answer Butler.

A reply to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's indictment of prohibition, delivered last Wednesday night at the Odeon, is to be made by former Congressman William D. Upshaw of Atlanta, Ga., this afternoon in union meetings at two churches. Upshaw will conclude a month's tour of Missouri, under auspices of the Anti-Saloon League, with addresses at 2:45 p. m. at Third Baptist Church and at 7:30 p. m. at Kingshighway Christian Church.

MORROW CONFIRMED BY SENATE

Only Few Votes Cast Against Him —Stimson Also Approved.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—With only a few votes in opposition, the Senate today confirmed the nomination of Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey as Ambassador to Mexico.

Henry L. Stimson of New York was confirmed by the Senate as Governor-General of the Philippines.

During nearly an hour's discussion behind closed doors, Senators Reed of Missouri and LaFollette of Wisconsin, were said to have expressed their views in opposition to confirmation of Morrow. The Senate also approved appointments of Robert E. Olds of New York as under-secretary of state: Nelson Johnson of Oklahoma as assistant Secretary of State; Noble B. Judah of Illinois as Ambassador to Cuba, and Walter F. Brown of Ohio, as assistant Secretary of Commerce.

NOV. 11 AS HOLIDAY FAILS

Mayfield Introduces Measure in Senate for Armistice Day.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—An effort to have Armistice day declared a legal holiday failed today in the Senate.

When Senator Mayfield, (Dem.), of Texas, asked that Nov. 11 be added to the list of National holidays, Senator Borah, (Rep.), Idaho, wanted to know how many legal holidays now are on the calendar. Mayfield said he could not answer but insisted that American Legion posts throughout the country favored passage of his resolution. After Borah had remarked that he knew of a Nation which had fallen from a first class to a fourth class power after it had created 93 legal holidays, Senator Curtis, the Republican leader, suggested the resolution be sent to a committee. This was done over Mayfield's protest that such action meant its end.

Norris Resolution Approved.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Norris resolution to end the biennial "short sessions of Congress by moving up the meeting dates of each new Congress from December to the January following general elections was approved again today by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The resolution, which proposes an amendment to the Constitution, has been before Congress for a number of years and previously has been approved by the Senate only to die in the House.

JOSEPH SANDERSON'S PHOTO

Published by Mistake on Pictorial Page of Thursday's Post-Dispatch.

Last Thursday on the pictorial page, the Post-Dispatch published a protograph of Joseph Sanderson of 4360 Chouteau avenue, St. Louis middle weight wrestler, and erroneously identified it as that of Frank Podszuck Jr., who was shot by his wife in a lawyer's office in the Boatmen's Bank Building while they were discussing plans for divorce.

The error was due to a mistake in the file records of a commercial photographer, and the Post-Dispatch gladly makes this correction in justice to Mr. Sanderson.

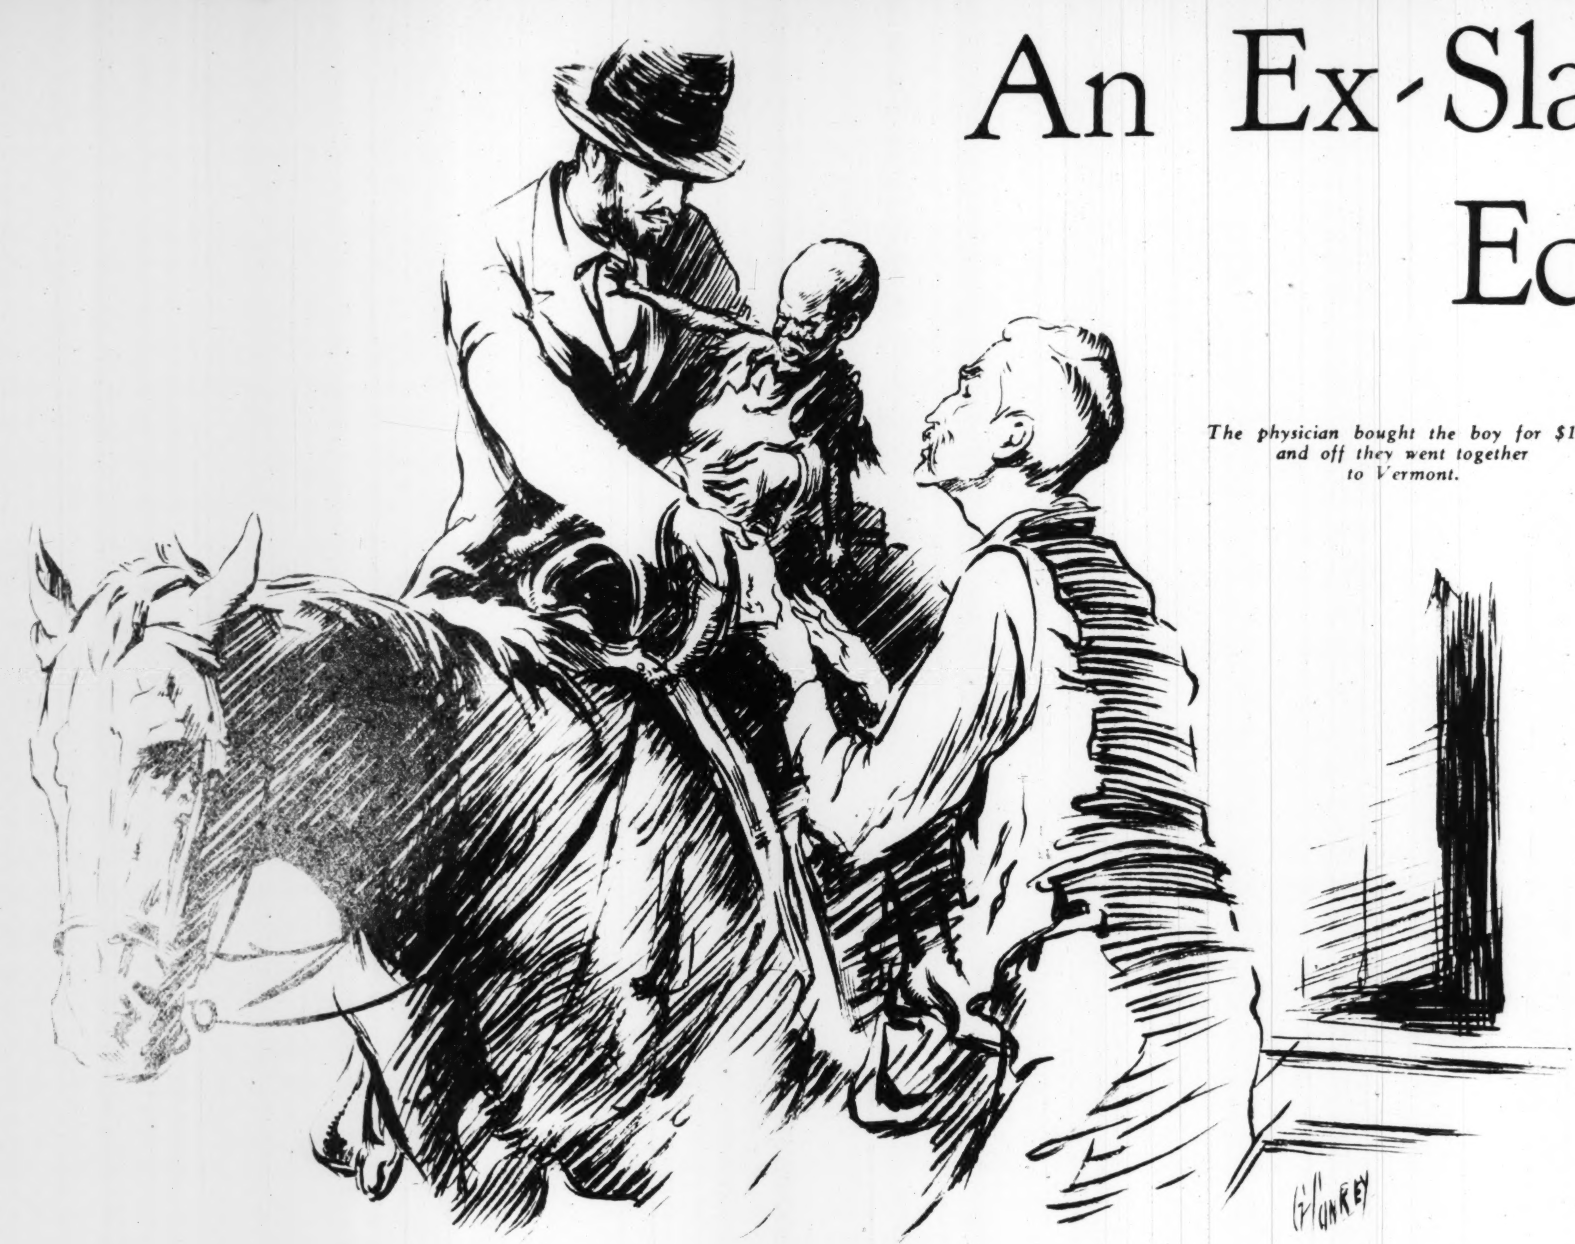
An Ex-Slave's Earnings Educate His Race

"George Washington" Died Before the Civil War Ended But a $26,000 Fund Carries Out His Ideals.



The physician bought the boy for $100 and off they went together to Vermont.

OTTERVILLE, Ill.

SEVERAL gentlemen of Jersey County will meet in a few days, now, in Jerseyville. They are the trustees of a certain fund and it will be their business to determine how they are going to invest $5000 belonging to that fund, $5000 that will come their way by the routine recalling of five of their $1000 Government bonds. They'll probably invest the money in first mortgages on Jersey County farm land. That's what they do with most of their funds.

In the year 1834 the personal property of a young man named Lincoln was about to be sold by the Sheriff to satisfy a judgment, and a boy of 12 called Ulysses Grant was doing the chores on his father's farm. But in the same twelvemonth a physician, a Dr. Silas Hamilton—he was 30 years ahead of history—breathed his last, and the eyes of a Negro boy were wet with tears.

Dr. Hamilton was born in Tinmouth in Vermont, in 1775, so he lived 59 years, the most of which were years of high idealism and a corresponding amount of disappointment. He was opposed to slavery, and in 1820 he formulated a theory the practice of which he believed would go far toward making life less exacting for the Negroes of the South; he would purchase a plantation in the slave states and there, by the example of his kind treatment of his slaves, cause the neighboring planters, who would note his success, to use their serfs in the same friendly manner. He hoped this exemplary conduct would result in a widespread betterment of conditions, and it is probable, dreaming his dreams, he saw the South a realm of perfect understanding and camaraderie between the white man and his servants on some day not too far away.

In pursuance of this theory he purchased a plantation in Mississippi in the year 1820, stocked it with slaves, and began the congenial business of humanity as the cotton pods blossomed on their bushes. He made occasional journeys to his old home in Vermont, and there being no railroads or other particularly inviting modes of travel, he made his trips on horseback.

ON one of these journeys to his native State, as he was about to cross the Potomac going out of Virginia, he heard the loud cries of a child. The physician continued on his way, but as he jogged along the child's frenzy pursued him, the signs of distress gave no indication of subsiding, and Dr. Hamilton wheeled his horse about and trotted up the road to the plantation house from whence came the depressing disturbance.

The physician discovered that the wailing youngster was a small black boy, and there was good cause for the lad's distress. For the boy's master supplied this information: The mother had been sold to a trader, she had been taken off farther south, and the child had grieved and cried ever since; nothing the master could do would quiet him, and as the little fellow showed no sign of forgetting his plight, it seemed extremely probable he would cry himself to his death.

The result was that the physician bought the boy for $100 and off they went together to Vermont. The boy's name was George and then, or later, he took the surname of Washington, but just how that came about is one of those conflicting stories which make history so excitingly untrustworthy. One version has it that the plantation owner's name was Washington, another, that George, on reaching a more mature age, took Washington for his name, believing the first President to be a worthy man.

Hamilton, once the small George was his, told him that before long he would be starting south again and perhaps they would find his mother. As they rode on to Vermont the boy became reconciled; the physician's visit to his home over, they began their journey south, and though they never found George's mother, they got back to the doctor's amiable Mississippi plantation.

BUT by 1830 the excellent physician had enough. Ten years had brought no millenium to the Southland; the only plantation run in the manner approved by the physician was his own, and as he did not hold with slavery and had only become a master to act as a criterion, he rode up the Mississippi to Illinois and purchased a section of land on the Otter Creek prairie—now in Jersey County—and decided to make it his new home.

He then returned to Mississippi, sold his properties and with his 28 slaves started for the North. When he got them to Cincinnati he told them from thenceforth they were free men and women, put up a bond for each of 25 of them as surety against their becoming public charges, and took George and a man and his wife along with him to the new home in Illinois.

George by this time had reached the enquiring age of 8, and he exhibited encouraging signs of a more than average intelligence. The worthy Hamilton, despite the unresponsiveness of the South to his amenities, was not yet bereft of ideals, and noting George's abilities, he decided to educate the boy properly and then ship him off to Liberia to act as a missionary to his race. His hopes were never realized for four years later, in 1834, Hamilton died at Otterville. Jersey County had lost its first physician, and young George Washington had lost another parent.

As the boy sobbed out his sorrow, they read in his master's will that, "Believing in the very great importance of primary schools, and desiring that my friends and relations in this neighborhood should receive the benefit of them, I give and bequeath $4000 for the establishment of a primary school. . . ."

They built the "Stone Schoolhouse"; it was the first free school in Illinois.

After Dr. Hamilton's death, George was taken into the family of one Gilbert Douglas, whose wife was a sister of the physician. The boy already had been taught the rudiments of reading and writing by his former master, and when the school established by Hamilton's money was completed, George was entered along with the rest of the children of the neighborhood.

THE fame of this first Illinois free school stretched to the boundaries of the State and poured beyond them. The building was of stone and two stories high; there were two schoolrooms on the first floor, and the second story served as church, Sunday school and hall for the gatherings of the district's residents. A free school in the Middle West was a thing to wonder at, and it is related that emigrants from the East, making their way into the young State, asked for the road that led to the "Stone Schoolhouse." It seems that the American urge for schooling—if not always for education—had already begun.

George continued at the school until he had finished its course, living all the while with Douglas. The early indications of the boy's intelligence, noted by his now dead benefactor, were borne out; young George showed unmistakable signs of worthiness.

When he was 22, Douglas gave him $100, a gray horse and a suit of clothes, and with these dignities young George Washington set out to make his way in the world. He did not travel far, in fact he did not travel any farther than a neighboring farm. He began work as a farmhand; before long he had purchased his first small piece of property. Land was cheap in those days and George was industrious and frugal; the combination worked well together, and as the young man made and saved his money he transferred it into property.

The older George grew the more firmly he planted himself in the regard of Otterville and its environs. He became increasingly well stocked in farm lands; his mental attainments were admired and his humanity appreciated. He must have been graced with an unusual personality. The man was truly a leader in the community.

HE was a church member and an enthusiastic one, and he always was active in the church work of the district. His activity was not limited to enthusiasms; he turned to with his capable hands. George was janitor of the church and Sunday school, and not content with firing the stove and sweeping the floors, he often furnished the fuel which kept the Otterville parishioners warm and so aided them in concentrating on thoughts other than worldly. He was an excellent singer, therefore he led the singing. And his versatility extended to an assistant superintendency in the Sunday school, and the teaching of one of its classes. A Jersey County historian tells in his book, "The writer was for a considerable time a pupil in his Sunday school class, and can say that he never sat under a teacher better versed in the Bible, more conscientious in teaching, or who possessed more implicitly the confidence and respect of his pupils."

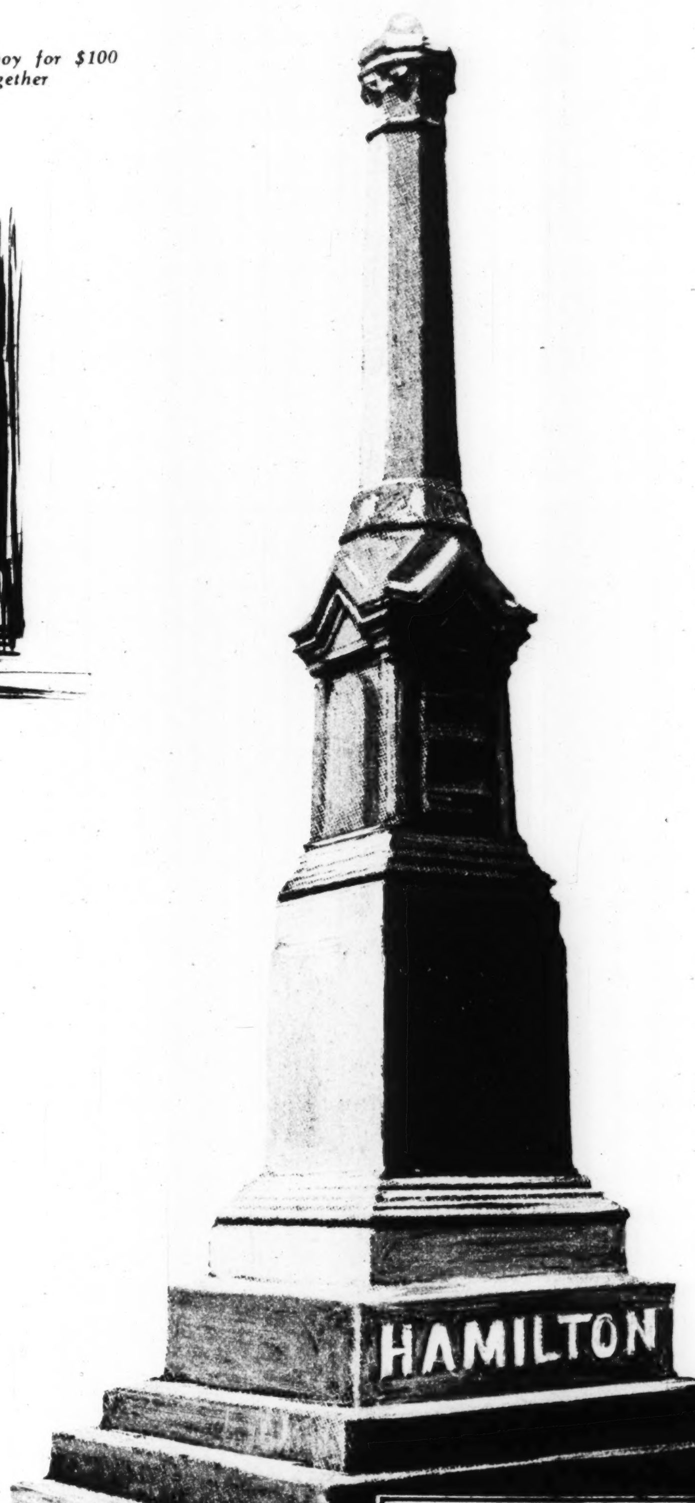
George became a sort of necessary adjunct to the community. If someone were sick, then George seemed to hear about it among the first. His procedure was immediately to hitch up his team and drive off to the woods. There he cut firewood, and that task accomplished, he took it to the ailing one. If food were needed, George furnished that, too.

When a death fell upon the neighborhood, George, quite regardless of weather, took up his spade and dug the grave. He asked no fee, nor did he ever expect one.

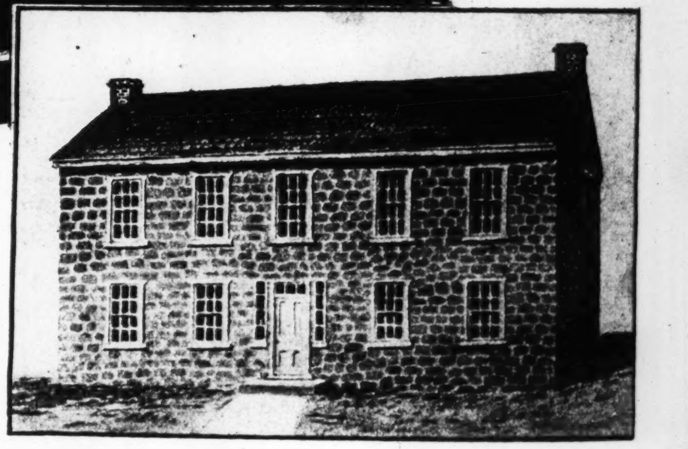
But he never let his utilitarian jobs preoccupy him. When the debating society met, there was George, and he saw service as the society's vice president. It was not unusual, in the absence of the president, for the Negro to preside at the debates.

But life for George was not a perpetual bed of white men's roses. He had some unpleasant experiences, but he seems to have been a good philosopher; they didn't seem to bother him.

On one occasion, when still a young man living on the Douglas farm, one of Douglas' horses was stolen, and men were sent in different directions to search for the stolen animal. George's territory was Calhoun County, and Calhoun County in those days was not particularly fond of Negroes.



The monument raised by George Washington to Dr. Silas Hamilton, his benefactor.



The "Stone Schoolhouse"—the first free school in Illinois. It was established by Dr. Silas Hamilton.

SITUATED on the edge of the State, just across the Mississippi from the slave-holding State of Missouri, this county was something of a feeder to the slave traders of the South. A Negro man or woman, fugitive slave or not, once he fell into the not overly gentle hands of the citizens of Calhoun, was extremely likely to start on a long journey to the land of cotton. If he could be smuggled across the river his days of freedom were over.

Now a young man like George was worth a good $2000 in the southern portion of the United States. When George entered the dominions of Calhoun in search of Douglas' stolen horse, he was picked up as a "runaway"—the charge was merely a legal nicety—and lodged in the jail at Gilead, Calhoun's capital.

The jail was a long affair, the only entry to which was a hole in the roof. A merchant of Gilead, hearing a "runaway" was lodged in the county jail, found time to crawl up the ladder and peer down the hole. To his surprise he discovered the man was George, whom he knew, and a little later, due to the merchant's offices, George crawled out of the hole and resumed the business of being a free man. Calhoun County lost George as a visitor forever after.

But in 1864, a year after Abraham Lincoln—by this time he had gotten out of the clutches of the Sheriff—had issued his Emancipation Proclamation, George fell ill. He knew the end was near, and he made a nuncupative will, which, in less legal phraseology is, of course, an oral will, and then died. He was buried in a cemetery in Otterville beside the graves of Dr. Hamilton and Gilbert Douglas.

When the will was established it read:

"That George Washington (a colored man), of the County of Jersey and State of Illinois, did on or about the fourteenth day of April, A. D., 1864, and during his last illness publish and declare in our presence the following as his last will and testament:

"First. That his funeral expenses and all just debts be paid in full.

"Second. That after the payment of such funeral expenses and debts, it was his will that all his goods and chattels, both personal and real estate, be sold and converted into money to be disposed of as follows: First—That $1500.00 be appropriated to the construction of a suitable monument for the tomb of Doctor Silas Hamilton, his former master, to be erected near the Stone School-house. And that the residue, or whatever may be left of the said estate, not otherwise appropriated, shall be appropriated to the education of colored persons, or Americans of African descent."

GEORGE'S properties were sold and an administrator of the estate was appointed. Curiously, for some 15 years nothing was done with the money, but in 1879 a man teaching in Dr. Hamilton's old schoolhouse decided it was high time for action. He was studying for the bar at the time, and on his admittance went to work on the fund. It was found the money amounted to $9000, and, as George had directed, $1500 was expended for a monument to Dr. Hamilton.

It was placed about 300 feet from the Stone Schoolhouse—a new school stands there today—and one may read on the shaft:

Erected by George Washington
Born in Virginia a Slave
Died at Otterville, Ill.,
April 15, 1864
A Christian Freeman.

And on the base block:

To the memory of
Dr. Silas Hamilton,
His Former Master.
Born in Tinmouth, Vt.,
May 19, 1775.
Died at Otterville, Ill.,
Nov. 19, 1834.
Having in his lifetime given freedom to twenty-eight slaves.
At his death bequeathed four thousand dollars for the erection and endowment of the Hamilton Primary School.

In heavy block letters at the bottom is: HAMILTON.

THE Circuit Court of Jersey County appointed a board of trustees to handle the money left by George for the education of Negroes. It was decided that candidates for the scholarships would be chosen by competitive examination; the first examinations were held in 1884, and two Negro boys of Jerseyville were sent to college.

George Washington's fund has been sending Negro men and women to college ever since. Sometimes they are granted all the money necessary for their course, sometimes only the balance necessary for them to make their way. The fund is open to any Negro man or woman in Illinois, and the trustees find their graduates have met with much success. When a prospective student is granted a scholarship, he agrees that, if he ever can, he will reimburse George's fund.

And the various groups of trustees have so ably succored the $7500 George Washington left them that now their capital has increased to about $26,000, and today four young Negroes are in college because, back in the days before '65, a man who had been taken from bondage peered out into the future as he died.

When Riches Came to the Noble Lord's American Nieces

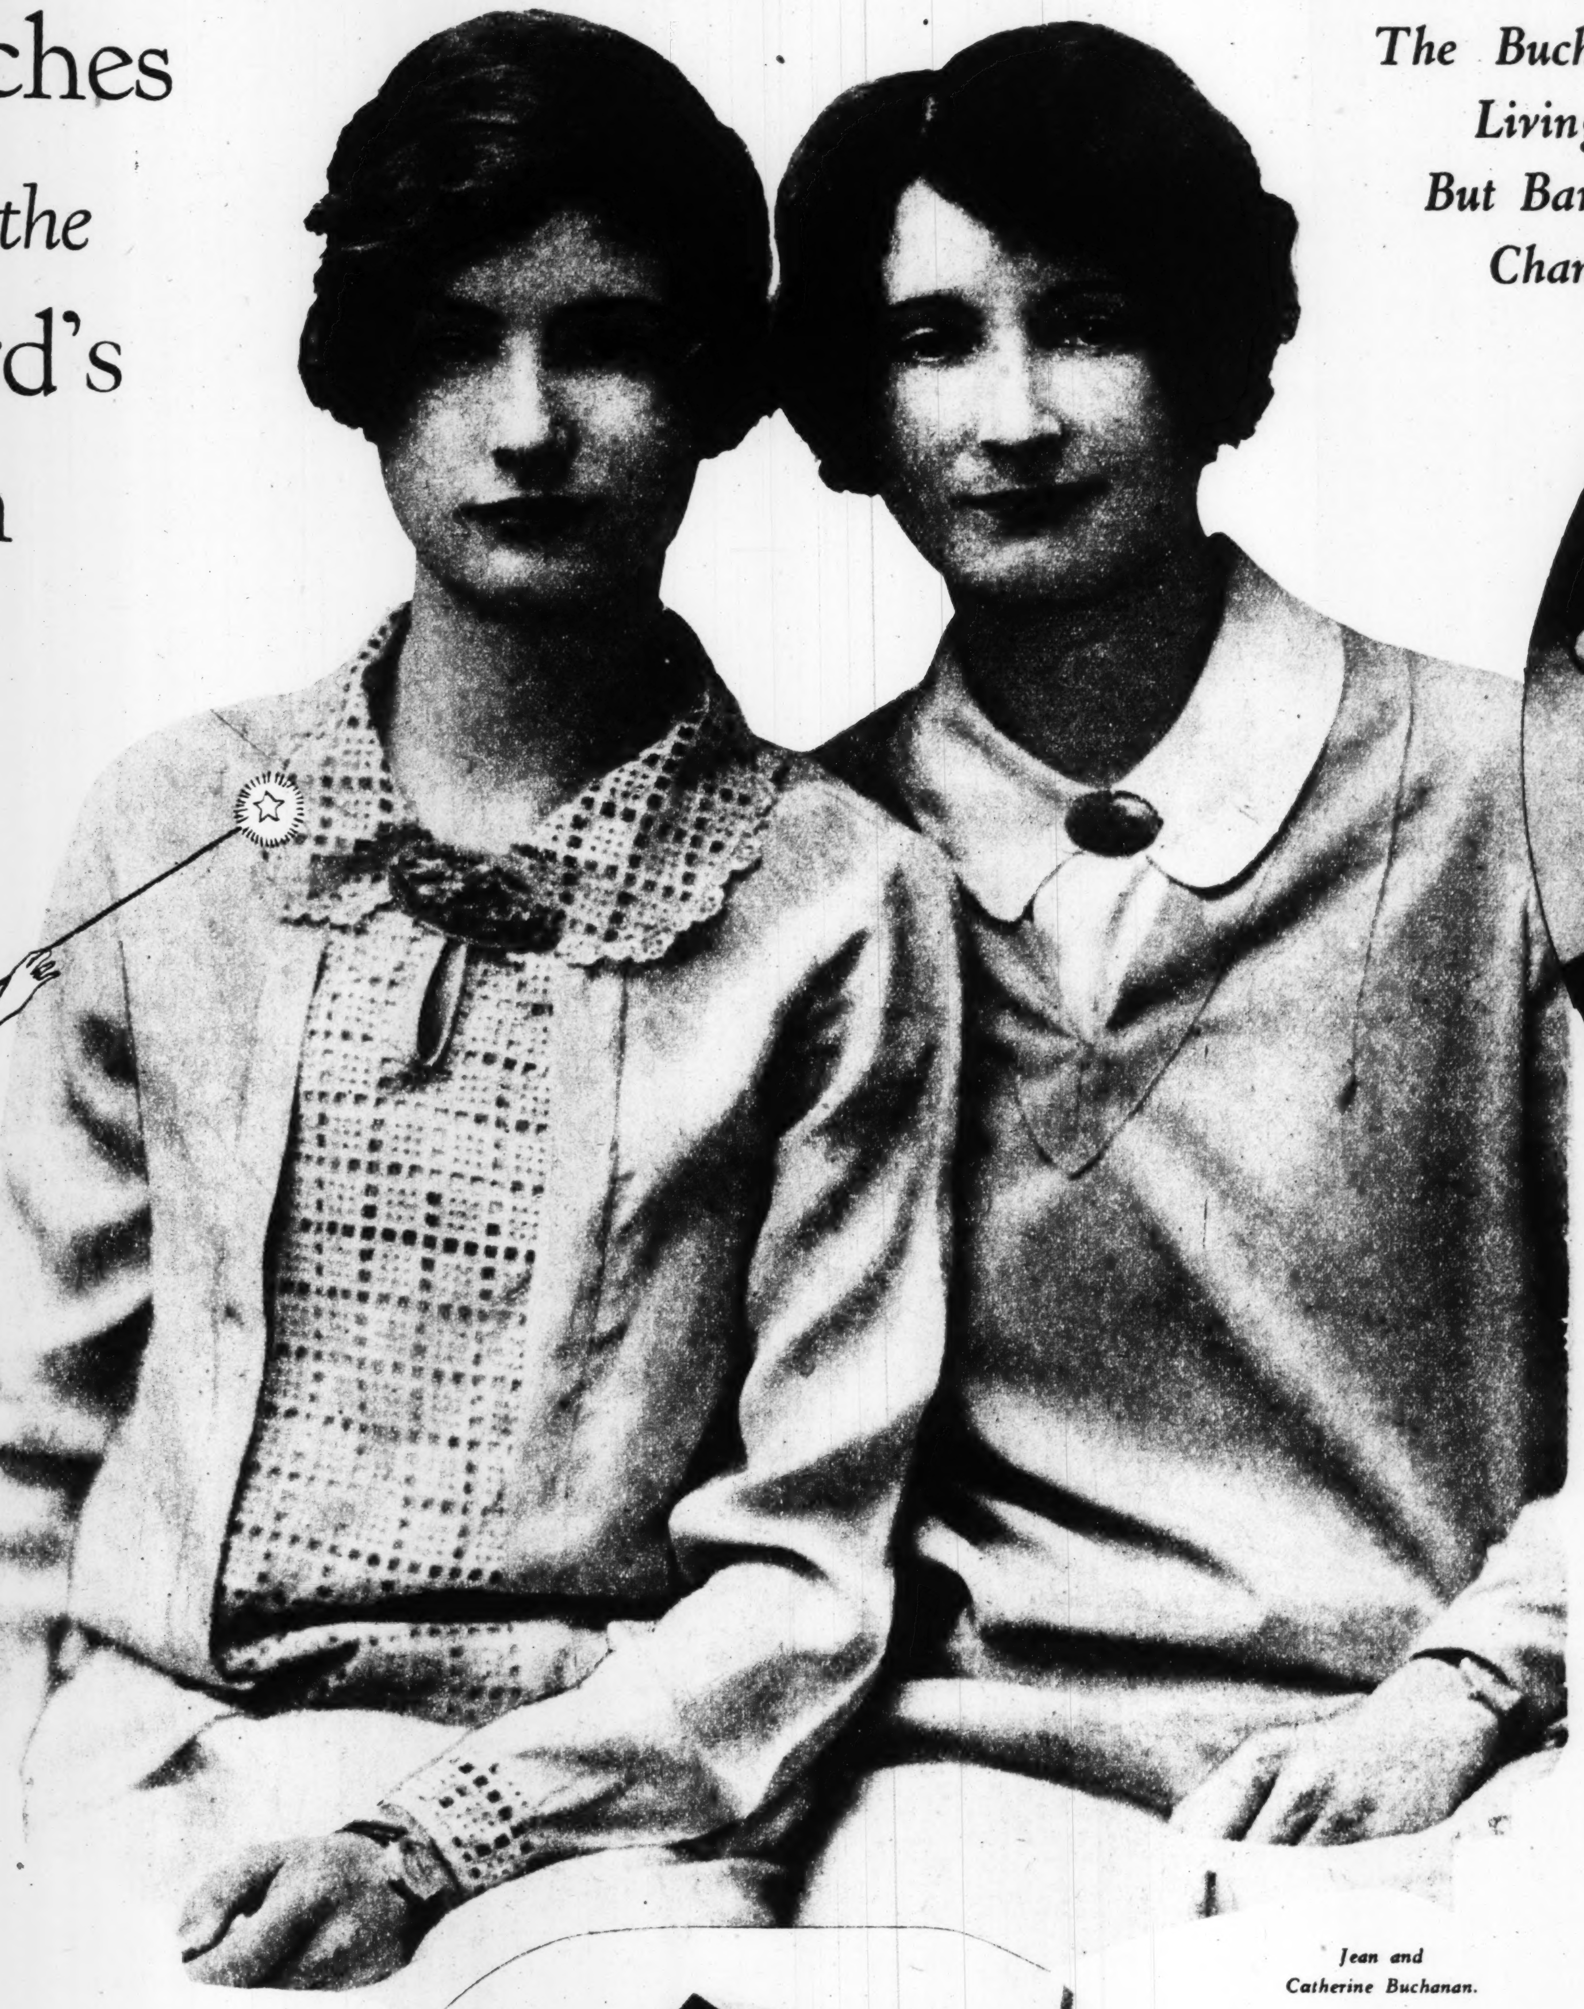
The Buchanan Sisters Were Living in Penury—But Baron Woolavington Changed All That.



Jean and Catherine Buchanan.

Lord Woolavington.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

JANESVILLE, Wisconsin.

ONCE upon a time, last spring, to be exact, two sisters named Catherine and Jean Buchanan lived here in Janesville. Catherine, who was 20, worked as a stenographer so that Jean, who was 17, might go to high school, since their father was dead and their mother and three other children had little more than enough to keep the household going in a thrifty, frugal way in a small cottage down a side street.

In London lived Baron Woolavington, a very rich man, with town houses and country estates, racing stables and limousines, all made in the distilling of a very famous brand of whisky. Chairman of several great companies and twice winner of the Derby, he is one of the distinguished figures of England.

With the swift magic of a fairy tale these three persons were brought together not long ago and as if by the waving of a sorcerer's wand Baron Woolavington was disclosed as great-uncle to Jean and Catherine and worked a transformation in the lives of the Buchanan family that still seems almost magical.

The girls' father, James Buchanan, at his death four years ago, had left his family very little. He was the son of William Buchanan, who had come to Janesville from Glasgow as a young man, one of those sons of good family sent to America to seek a fortune and more often than not supported by checks from home.

WILLIAM got work with a fellow Scotsman, a dealer in horses, married and had, in addition to James, another son whom he called Alexander, and who inherited his father's red hair and a thrifty temperament that enabled him to become a successful Wisconsin farmer.

For James, who had married a wife of Irish descent, there was obscure death in comparative poverty. And the family he left seemed destined to continue in that same obscure penury.

But Baron Woolavington, it so happens, is also a Buchanan, having started life as James, a brother to William, who had come to America in search of a fortune. He had risen to wealth and power and had become Baron Woolavington. He began to wonder about his brother's family in America and he decided one day to find out what their exact status was. The Buchanans had, of course, known of his existence, but only vaguely. They had no conception of his wealth or power, nor were they aware of his title. It never occurred to them that this connection, which had almost been forgotten, would ever mean anything to them.

Tracing down the children of his dead brother, he discovered that Alexander was a prosperous farmer, that James was dead and his family left with very little money. And then he proceeded to act in the very best fairy-godfather-great-uncle tradition.

He sent for Catherine and Jean to come to England, including in the check for their steamship passage a generous allowance for new wardrobes. In London he conspired with his wife and only daughter to make their visit one exciting surprise after another. And just before they sailed for home this amazing great-uncle told them he had arranged to have a trust fund of $150,000 placed in the name of the Buchanan family.

Jean and Catherine came back to Janesville the other day.

Back home again in the small, plain house from which Mrs. Buchanan refuses to move, it all seems a little like a dream.

But after all it is a dream come true, for everywhere about the house are souvenirs of the fairy voyage, gifts from Baron Woolavington. There's a beautiful leather bag, brought by Lord Woolavington from Egypt, for Mrs. Buchanan, who still manages her brood like the proverbial Irish mother; wrist watches for the two small boys, a special message of love to 12-year-old Don, who has been a cripple since babyhood; a pearl bar pin for Catherine; a wrist watch for Jean, who celebrated her birthday in her uncle's gorgeous mansion; an honest-to-goodness Scotch kilt suit for little Mary Hay, made by a London tailor, for Uncle James says that an American tailor wouldn't get his idea of the Highland suit—the Buchanan plaid makes the main part of the suit, while a hand-knit sweater serves as the waist; an engraving of Uncle James' most recent portrait, done by the noted portrait painter, Sir J. J. Shannon—this for Uncle "Sandy" (Alexander) Buchanan.

THERE on the mantel, as regal as one of the Queen's ladies in waiting, is a portrait of Catherine McDonald-Buchanan and her two small children. Mrs. McDonald is the only daughter of Lord Woolavington, and for this reason, although she is the wife of Captain McDonald, keeps her maiden name.

The Buchanan home in Janesville, Wisconsin.

On the top of a pile of books is an issue of an ultrafashionable English magazine, containing an article on Lavington Park, with cuts showing the beauty spots on the 4000-acre estate. One displays the approach to the castle, with its formidable iron gates, tended by two veteran gatekeepers; another the Bishop's walk, for Lavington was at one time the estate of Bishop Wilberforce, who later became Cardinal Manning; several pictures of the stables; a lovely drawing of the quaint old church, with its graveyard, which contains the grave of Cardinal Manning's wife, who was the daughter of John Sargent, designer of many of the beauty spots of the estate.

Here's the enthusiastic story that Jean, who, with her auburn hair, favors the Buchanan side of the family, tells of their adventure:

"After Uncle James sent us money to buy clothes with, we left Janesville the day after Labor Day, and sailed September 9 from New York City on the President Harding. The man who communicated with Uncle James' solicitor sent flowers to our stateroom before we sailed. That made us feel that we were starting out with good wishes. The trip over was so exciting because we had never traveled before. Catherine wasn't a bit seasick, but I was.

"We were glad when we landed in Plymouth, England, but were rather impatient when we found that we could not get a train to London for two hours. Our uncle's stepdaughter, Miss Kathleen Bardolph, met us at the station. We stepped into our uncle's beautiful limousine, decorated with the Buchanan coat of arms and driven by a uniformed chauffeur and a liveried footman. For several days we stayed at the Hotel Washington, which is in Mayfair, a block from our uncle's London house. Uncle James was quite ill, so we did not see him when we first got there.

"Miss Bardolph took us to historical places in and near London—the Tower of London, the Parliament houses, Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, Windsor Castle, Hampton Court, the museums and Kew Gardens. The change of guards at Buckingham Palace and the Queen's doll house impressed me most. Tiny pianos and victrolas play in the doll house. We went to many of the theaters and saw several American players. During the day we shopped in the stores, charging our purchases to our uncle. Before going down to Lavington Park we bought some dinner dresses, several sports suits, hats and shoes. We had a hard time getting accustomed to the way the English girls wear their hats so far over their eyes.

Steve Donohue mounted on Lord Woolavington's Derby winner, Captain Cuttle.

"Uncle James' estate is 80 miles out of London. We motored down there and were awed with the splendor of the estate, which we rode beside for a long ways before we came to the main entrance. The house, which is five stories high, has so many rooms that we didn't attempt to count them. Although our uncle has remodeled the house since he purchased the estate in 1900, much of it is in its original condition. Every room has a fireplace and many paintings. One portrait, of which our uncle is very fond, is that of his mother, our great-grandmother, who was Catherine McLean Buchanan. Our Catherine and Uncle James' daughter are named after her.

"Uncle James was still ill, so that we did not see him except at meals. All of the meals were served with great formality, servants standing back of the chairs. The English use the knife in eating more than we do, and in eating a pudding use both a spoon and a fork.

"In the evening after dinner we visited, and our uncle's family told interesting stories about their travels. Uncle James is very interested in the way we do things in America. He wanted to know about industrial conditions, and what crops Uncle 'Sandy' raised on his farm in Rock County. He was interested in getting our viewpoint on the World War, especially the American and British relations.

"Every day (we were at Lavington Park for two weeks) we inspected the estate. The stables were wonderful, for our uncle takes better care of his horses than some people do of their children. Three grooms were in charge of each horse. One brought the horse out, one unblanketed the animal and another showed him off.

"The vast gardens are like those in a city park and the rustic walks, with statues, fountains and seats, are like settings in the movies. The castle is ivy-covered, terraced lawns leading up to the mansion, which has three towers across the front.

"When we said good-by to our uncle he was sad, because he probably thought that it would be the last time he would ever see us. We sailed for home on the President Harding and came back to Janesville as soon as we could get out of New York."

WITH all of the glamor of the trip, the girls, at least Jean, were homesick. Back home, days have been spent in telling of their trip. Relatives and friends have flocked to their house to hear all about it, anxious to learn if lords and ladies are real human beings.

Now that the excitement has died down, life goes on much as it did before. Jean has returned to the Janesville High School—she's to be graduated in February—and Catherine is just staying at home, having given up her position as stenographer.

Nothing has been changed in the house, because Mrs. Buchanan again displays her Celtic tendencies—she is sentimental. She wants things just as they were when her "pal," Jimmy, was alive. When friends congratulate her upon the good fortune, she answers all of them by saying: "I'd rather have my old pal back." The three smaller children have continued their studies at St. Patrick's Parochial School.

The Little Flower is Don's chosen saint. She must have heard his fervent prayers, for recently he has been able to play football and take part in school activities, fulfilling his cherished dream to be "like other boys."

But though things in the Buchanan home are much as they were before Jean and Catherine went away, there are plans for the future which could never have been except for that memorable visit. For one thing, Jean plans not only to finish high school but to go to college as well. Catherine, too, may resume the school career interrupted when she began working to enable Jean to stay in school.

And there are plans for Christmas, too, which probably will be one of the happiest in the memory of the Buchanan children, even though they already have had what is equivalent to Christmas and all the other holidays rolled into one, with Baron Woolavington in the jovial role of Santa Claus.

A Federal Prison for Women—without Bars

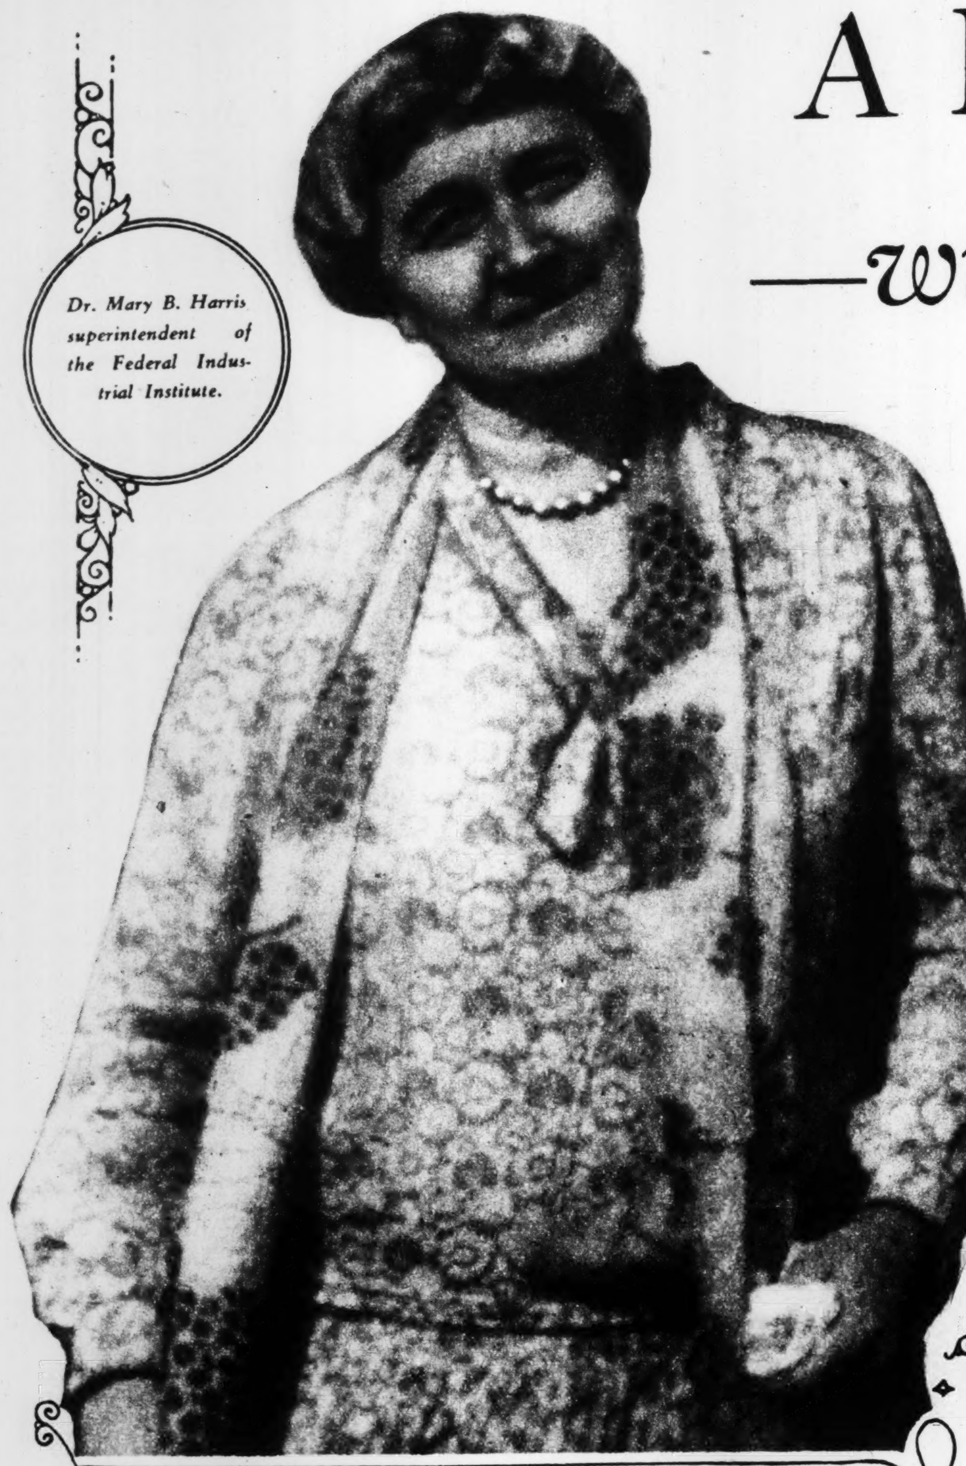
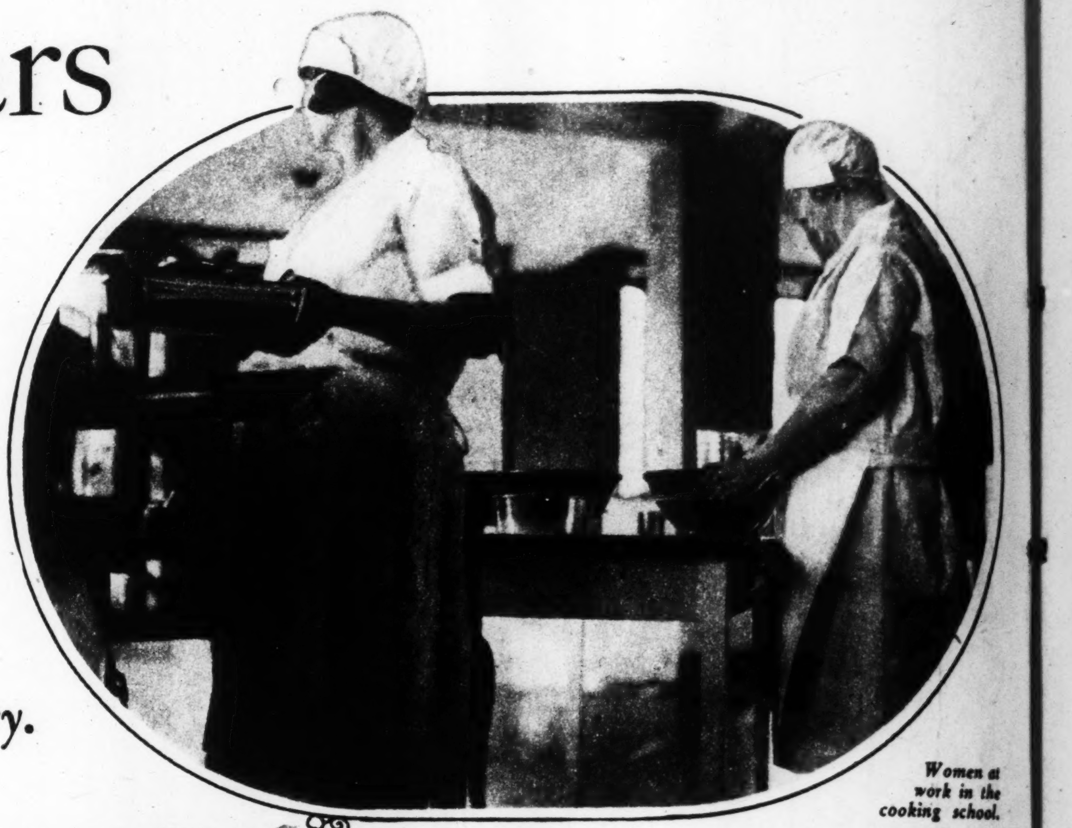
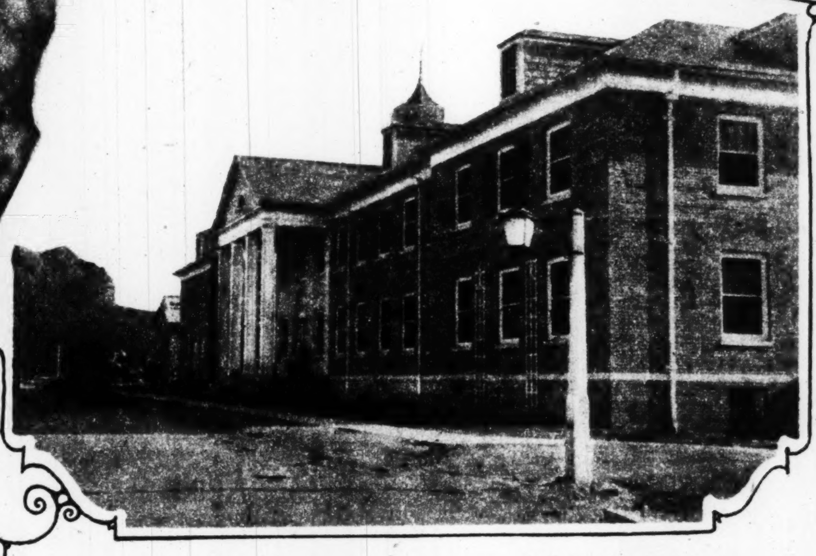
"Industrial Institute" Recently Established at Alderson, West Virginia, Unique in Criminal History.



Dr. Mary B. Harris superintendent of the Federal Industrial Institute.



Women at work in the cooking school.



Receiving building where the women are studied by the psychologist.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

ALDERSON, W. Va.

IN wooded country near this little West Virginia town there rises a group of new buildings that stand as a tribute to the faith of the women of America in the members of their own sex.

These buildings form the first units of the "Federal Industrial Institute"—a prison without bars or walls, an institution unique in criminal history.

It is even a little unfair to speak of it as an institution, for the women who are responsible for its inception desired to remove in so far as possible all the stigma which attaches to a penal institution.

There are cottages instead of cells in this prison and the wire fence which runs around the extensive grounds surrounding the group of buildings was put there chiefly to exclude intruders. There are no guards. They are not necessary, the directors of the Institute will tell you.

For many years it had been the custom of the Federal Government to "farm out" all its women prisoners to State and county institutions near where the crime for which they were sentenced was committed. These women who had violated the prohibition law, had peddled narcotics, become involved under the Mann act or otherwise violated Federal statutes were put in State and county jails and kept there until their sentences expired, the Federal Government paying a fixed sum for their maintenance.

Under this system they were thrown with hardened criminals of all classes. They swapped experiences and exchanged notes on the various methods of their respective crafts, criminal or otherwise, as they waited for the dreary tedium of one year, five years, or 10 years to end, confined, for the most part, in narrow cells. Often the conditions under which they were forced to live were very bad, for it was obviously impossible for the Government to supervise all these prisons.

WOMEN, when they began to take part in civic affairs, observed all this and they found the system very bad. As early as 1908, when Mrs. J. Ellen Foster was inspector for the Department of Justice, prominent social workers protested to her. Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the legislative department of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, led the move on behalf of the women Federal prisoners. The agitation continued over a long period of years.

In May, 1923, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, meeting at Atlanta, Georgia, adopted a resolution favoring an industrial institution for these women and in the following September a conference was called by Miss Julia K. Jaffray of the federation.

Twenty-one national organizations, including such diverse groups as the Daughters of the American Revolution, the National Congress of Parent-Teachers' Associations, the American Home Economics Association and the National Committees of the Democratic and Republican parties sent delegates to the meetings. They concluded by adopting a resolution calling for an institution which would house 700 women, with a woman for its superintendent, to be located near Washington.

CONGRESS finally granted money, a site near Alderson was chosen and in July this year the first buildings were completed and the first tenants brought to this new farm.

For it is really a farm, a large farm with gardens and livestock and a great household of women. And it is dedicated to the belief of those who are responsible for its existence: That women can be trained most successfully in the pursuits which they have always followed, housekeeping, sewing, the care of gardens and livestock—the creating of a home with all that implies. One of its principal aims, as outlined by Congress in granting an appropriation, is to "enable the inmates on release to obtain self-supporting employment."

The present director of the Institute is Mary B. Harris, a precise, gentle-mannered woman who at one time taught Latin in a Baltimore high school. Under her appointment by Attorney-General Sargent she is now a teacher of the craft of home-making.

Dr. Harris—she received a Ph.D. degree for a study of certain phases of Sanskrit—established her record as a social worker in New Jersey where she was responsible for certain noteworthy reforms. She came to Alderson to direct a highly trained staff of co-workers.

Her "school" consists of 32 buildings, located on 500 acres of rolling land in the Allegheny Mountains. They are red structures, trimmed in white and green, amply lighted by large windows and architecturally pleasing. But they will, as Dr. Harris points out, be much more attractive and blend more readily with their environment when vines, which already have been planted, spread over the walls. Flowers and shrubbery will give the prison the appearance of a country estate.

The cottages in which the women live are in reality apartment houses, each one having a central kitchen, dining room and reception parlor. The women's individual rooms are neatly furnished with bureau and bed. Each room has a large window. And there is not a single bar at any window in the entire place.

SO completely equipped are the kitchens in these cottages that they might well represent the dream of many a law-abiding housewife. The women eat at round tables seating four to six. There are tablecloths and napkins, dishes of pleasing pattern and flowers in the center of the table, affording the most striking contrast to the ordinary prison dining hall. The reception rooms are comfortably furnished with chintz-covered chairs and cushioned davenports, a fireplace and a phonograph.

The note of mechanical perfection is carried out throughout the entire institution. In the sewing department there are electric cutting machines—replacing old-fashioned scissors—which clip 300 cloths at the same time. The equipment throughout from the dairy barns to the laundry is electrical.

The fundamental policy behind this remarkable prison is a very old one. It is—find the woman. Dr. Harris and her assistants believe that beneath the cause—whatever it may have been—that has led the prison inmates into conflict with Federal statutes is the fundamental woman, the home-maker. And it is this they are seeking, often beneath hard, brazen exteriors and an apparent indifference that amounts almost to contempt for what the Institute is seeking to do.

"A large number of these women are here today because of destroyed homes," Dr. Harris says. "Our records show this. In some cases the home was broken up after marriage. But there are other cases where the old home of the parents gave way before the modern craze for gadding and entertainment, so we frequently deal with girls who have never known what it is to cook and sew, plan and work, for a home of their own.

"Very often the woman has been pulled away from her natural setting of the home into the lawless life of her husband or lover. These women have been placed in the crowded prisons of the country and, in their idleness, have associated with still more vicious women. We propose to keep them busy here. So we teach them those things for which they are most naturally fitted and which they can find useful to them in earning a livelihood after they have been turned back into society.

"These women have been deprived of their liberty. However fine this institution may seem to them, it can never compare in their minds with the privilege of being free. Depriving them of their liberty is punishment enough."

How well these women respond to this new type of educational reformation is mutely testified to by the display of embroidered table covers, sewing bags, window curtains and other handiwork in the projecting bay windows of the sewing room. These things are made by the women during their spare time after work hours, on Saturday afternoons and in the evenings.

"One of the girls from Kentucky remained awake all night after her first day in class," Miss Laura Lehman, head of the sewing department, said. "She had made a mistake which ruined a garment and she was afraid she would be painfully punished for what she had done. The next day I explained to her how she could avoid the mistake in the future and she was dumbfounded."

Each new inmate undergoes a most minute sociological and psychological study before she is assigned to a place in one of the departments of the Institute. She is first entered in a receiving ward of the classifying building that looks outwardly like an academic hall of a college or university.

The women who are brought to the Institute directly after trial and conviction are retained in quarantine for two weeks under the care of a nurse. If they come from another institution where the quarantine has already been carried out, they are at once interviewed and examined by the Institute psychologist, who notes moods, mental capacity and general conduct.

WHEN the facts have been gathered, they are brought up at the semiweekly meeting of the Classification Committee. The doctor reads the medical report. The psychologist reports on mental conditions and abilities. The background of the woman's social life is read as well as her record as a prisoner elsewhere. Tendencies likely to appear in the future, as based on these reports, are discussed.

Guided by this mass af evidence, the committee arrives at its recommendations. If the medical report indicates the prisoner is physically unfit for work, treatment is prescribed. If the woman is not strong she is assigned to the sewing department where she need do no work on her feet. If she is fully able to share in the industrial program of the Institute she is assigned to the task which the committee believes best suits her ability.

The Institute is of, for, and by the women, Dr. Harris insists. Their dresses, aprons, work caps and coats, the curtains that hang in the cottage reception parlors, the covers which decorate the furniture and the tablecloths on which the meals are served are all made by the women in the sewing classes.

Women operate the prison laundry. Those who enter the Institute with the ability to cook prepare the meals in the cottage kitchens. Those who cannot cook are taught how to do so at the cooking school.

Women assigned to farm duty milk the cows, tend the pigs and even work in the fields, cultivating the corn and wheat that is grown on the Institute acres.

Many women who bottled a liquid prohibited by a troublesome constitutional amendment now labor at the task of canning corn, tomatoes and other vegetables and fruits for table use. Many others who peddled drugs now scatter feed for the chickens and gather in the eggs.

One group works in the hothouse, caring for the plants, a type of work that Dr. Harris has introduced because she believes it will be a popular industry for women in the future.

No specialization is permitted. The case of each woman is brought up for review by the Classification Committee at least once every three months and many times more often. In certain cases the existing program is ordered continued but in most cases a change is recommended to vary the training and increase the abilities of the women.

BUT always the home-making instinct is stressed. The cottages are not merely dormitories. They are places in which the women are made to feel they must take pride. They polish the floors. They arrange the furniture, sew the covers for the chairs and couches and design the curtains at the windows.

Even in this model prison there are some resemblances to older methods. There is a "disciplinary house" for women who prove to be unmanageable or who will not fit into the environment. But it is of very small dimensions and it has not yet had an occupant. In the "disciplinary house" women will be denied the privileges of the well-behaved and their surroundings will be very much simpler than in the cottages.

Summing up their conclusions as a result of their experience thus far, the staff of the Institute have this to say:

"Most offenders are extreme individualists who have gone their way thoughtless of the cost to the group as a whole. They are heedless and self-seeking. To counteract this, there must be some form of participation in the government of the institution.

"Nothing but responsibility can develop a sense of responsibility. The women will have their councils, supervised and guided by their teachers and matrons; boards of health, directed by the doctor and nurses; fire companies; and organizations of various kinds for community improvement as their needs demand.

"They will learn the necessity of team play and co-operative living in this small artificial community and, we trust, carry the lessons back to the larger society when they return."

So, to their other duties, the inmates of this unique prison will add those of governing it, at least in so far as practical affairs within the prison are concerned.

The number of women here is being steadily increased as prisoners are brought from all parts of the country. By next June the capacity of 500 will have been reached, it is expected, and at that time, too, all construction, for which Congress appropriated $2,500,000, will be completed.

The Play
And St

Edgar B. Davis.

NEW YORK.

AFTER having run for 56 weeks at a total loss of about $750,000, the play known as "The Ladder," which is on view at the Lyric Theater, will hereafter be open to the public free of charge. Announcement to this effect was recently made by Edgar B. Davis, the producer of the play, and resulted in giving the actors a full house to play before for the first time in the play's history.

For there has never been such a show as "The Ladder" and never such a producer as Edgar B. Davis in the eccentric annals of American show business. It was a play everybody talked about and nobody went to see. It never made a nickel—not even for a day. Yet Mr. Davis, the producer, has apparently never lost faith in it as a significant piece of dramatic literature and, so far as present indications go, may keep it running for the rest of his life.

All of Broadway's hard-boiled traditions have been flouted by this play and the veteran showmen of the town—though they appear amused—are really resentful and annoyed. For any one of them would know exactly what to do with $750,000, or a tenth part of it, and feels the agony that every true New Yorker feels when he sees a lot of money going to waste on somebody else.

Meanwhile, Mr. Davis pays the piper out of a plentiful till and says nothing. He will not talk for publication, now, for he is tired of being joshed about his play. But at one time he let it be known that if he chose to spend a tenth part of his income, even on an admitted folly, it was practically nobody's business.

The strange history of "The Ladder" entered its New York phase in November, 1926, when it was first exposed to the public in the newly built Mansfield Theater. So far as anybody knew at the time it was just another play being produced in the ordinary course of events by somebody who hoped to make money out of it. If anyone had suspected it of being an altruistic enterprise, this suspicion would have been dispelled by the fact that the official sponsor of the piece was Brock Pemberton. Mr. Pemberton, like most producers of plays, is not in the business for his health.

THE opening performance of the play revealed that its author was J. Frank Davis, a man unknown to Broadway, and that its main theme was concerned with the subject of reincarnation.

The Play That Lost $750,000 And Still Kept Going

How "The Ladder," Backed by Edgar B. Davis, an Oil Magnate, Became the Biggest Flop in Show Business.

AFTER having run for 56 weeks at a total loss of about $750,000, the play known as "The Ladder," which is on view at the Lyric Theater, will hereafter be open to the public free of charge. Announcement to this effect was recently made by Edgar B. Davis, the producer of the play, and resulted in giving the actors a full house to play before for the first time in the play's history.

For there has never been such a show as "The Ladder" and never such a producer as Edgar B. Davis in the eccentric annals of American show business. It was a play everybody talked about and nobody went to see. It never made a nickel—not even for a day. Yet Mr. Davis, the producer, has apparently never lost faith in it as a significant piece of dramatic literature and, so far as present indications go, may keep it running for the rest of his life.

All of Broadway's hard-boiled traditions have been flouted by this play and the veteran showmen of the town—though they appear amused—are really resentful and annoyed. For any one of them would know exactly what to do with $750,000, or a tenth part of it, and feels the agony that every true New Yorker feels when he sees a lot of money going to waste on somebody else.

Meanwhile, Mr. Davis pays the piper out of a plentiful till and says nothing. He will not talk for publication, now, for he is tired of being joshed about his play. But at one time he let it be known that if he chose to spend a tenth part of his income, even on an admitted folly, it was practically nobody's business.

The strange history of "The Ladder" entered its New York phase in November, 1926, when it was first exposed to the public in the newly built Mansfield Theater. So far as anybody knew at the time it was just another play being produced in the ordinary course of events by somebody who hoped to make money out of it. If anyone had suspected it of being an altruistic enterprise, this suspicion would have been dispelled by the fact that the official sponsor of the piece was Brock Pemberton. Mr. Pemberton, like most producers of plays, is not in the business for his health.

THE opening performance of the play revealed that its author was J. Frank Davis, a man unknown to Broadway, and that its main theme was concerned with the subject of reincarnation.

The leading woman, faced with a choice between two men who represented sacred and profane love, went off into one of those convenient stage trances during which all of her past incarnations paraded before her in solemn pageantry. In the first act she was a medieval lady who had been having trouble with a cruel spouse. In the second she was the mistress of an equerry at the court of Charles the Second, and in the third was a member of an aristocratic family in early New York. As a result of her adventures in all these stages of her spiritual development her twentieth century choice became crystal clear. So when she came out of her trance she fell into the arms of the pure but slightly impoverished lover and handed the fleshly one his dismissal.

The New York critics were mildly facetious in their reviews and gave the piece a mortality of about 10 days. At the end of 10 weeks it was still running and the wise ones began to smell around for an angel.

MEANWHILE, an extraordinary campaign of publicity had been started. Various dignitaries were invited to attend performances of the play and give their opinions of it. These opinions, highly laudatory in most cases, were published in paid advertisements. A little later, cash prizes were offered for the best essays on the subject matter of the play. The first prize was won by a press agent who never saw the play and looked up the word "reincarnation" in an encyclopedia.

Efforts were also made to get educational institutions interested by offering blocks of seats to students.

None of these devices had any perceptible effect on the attendance. Week in and week out the actors recited their lines to virtually empty benches.

Finally, in about the third month of the play's already singular run, Brock Pemberton stepped out as producer. His place was taken by The United Actors' Association, which proved to be nothing more than a business pseudonym for the person of Edgar B. Davis, a financier and oil operator from Texas. At about the same time something of the nature of Mr. Davis' connection with "The Ladder" began to be known.

It was at first said that Mr. Davis was so convinced of the truth of reincarnation that he had put the play on as religious propaganda. This explanation was so fanciful that the wise boys in the Roaring Forties refused to credit it. And, in fact, that was only part of the story. The complete explanation—which had to be assembled from many second-hand sources, for both Mr. Davis, the producer, and Mr. Davis, the author, have been conspicuously silent—revealed a mixture of motives. But any one of them would have been so novel to Broadway as to make both the play and the producer a simon pure nonesuch on that street of many lights.

When Edgar B. Davis was a boy growing up in Brockton, Massachusetts, he had a friend named J. Frank Davis, who was no relation despite the similar names. Frank Davis became a reporter on a Boston paper. In 1909, after Admiral Peary had discovered the North Pole, Davis was sent up into the Arctic to meet the explorer. While there he fell on the ice and seriously injured his spine. Forced to discontinue active newspaper work, he went West for his health, finally settling in San Antonio, Texas, where he started writing short stories, with fair success.

EDGAR DAVIS went into business and became a successful executive in a shoe company. He resigned his position to take a trip around the world. During this trip he stopped at Sumatra. Becoming interested in the rubber industry, he worked out a new system for marketing rubber products, which he sold for a million dollars.

With this capital he began prospecting in the Texas oil fields. The lands he bought were unpromising, in the view of men who were supposed to know about such things, and they advised Mr. Davis against putting too much money into them. He disregarded their advice, sunk his entire capital into the operation, and on a day when it looked as if he would have nothing left but a lot of scrap—struck oil.

These were the Magnolia oil fields, near Luling, Texas, which he afterward sold for $12,000,000. Mr. Davis is now going after deep oil.

Having made this considerable fortune, Mr. Davis was free to indulge a naturally kindly nature and genuine desire to be of some lasting benefit to humanity. He established a $1,000,000 foundation for orphans and other needy persons in Brockton, and a similar foundation in Luling.

YET he was not the ordinary philanthropist. According to those who have been close to him, he has always felt that he was an agent of destiny and that when the natural order of events seemed to lead him in a certain direction he should follow unquestioningly. Such a conviction, they say, explains why he is so persistent in any project he takes up, even when it promises to turn out badly

Mr. Davis also seems to have speculated considerably on the subject of reincarnation, for, according to persons acquainted with circumstances under which J. Frank Davis wrote "The Ladder," the idea of the play originally came from Edgar Davis.

According to this account, the two Davises met, after having seen nothing of each other for many years, on the streets of San Antonio. Edgar Davis, learning that his boyhood friend was a semi-invalid, immediately wanted to do something about helping him.

"Why don't you write a play and make a lot of money?" he suggested.

Frank Davis replied that he couldn't afford to take off the necessary time from his regular work.

"I will finance you," said Edgar Davis.

"But I have no theme for a play," protested Frank Davis.

"I will furnish you with an idea," said the oil millionaire.

And such was the genesis of "The Ladder."

When the play was finished and the question of its production came up, Edgar Davis immediately thought of another old friend, Brock Pemberton, whom he had also known in Brockton, and who was now a play producer in New York. He undoubtedly thought there was a fortune in the play, and he wanted Pemberton to share part of it.

But while Pemberton became the nominal producer, Broadway found out in the course of time that he had not considered the play worth the risk of his own money, though as a good showman he knew that any play might be made into a success if it could be kept on the boards long enough and changed often enough.

Keeping the play going was no trick at all. Edgar Davis' money did that. But when it came to the business of altering the text, changing the stage business and generally clawing the piece into the shape that would hit the public taste, Mr. Pemberton was not successful for the reason that Mr. Davis refused to let the play be touched. This being the case, Mr. Pemberton ultimately concluded that "The Ladder" was beyond his help.

"THE LADDER" ran all winter to an average of 30 persons a performance and started in on the summer. There had been several changes in the cast, but it was pretty much the same show that opened in November. When the weather got warm Mr. Davis decided that six days a week was too much of a strain for the actors, so he proposed that the Saturday performances be eliminated.

The actors agreed and also accepted the implication of a salary cut. Mr. Davis assured them, however, that their salaries would be the same for the five days as for six. And when the play was forced to leave the Mansfield Theater and go to the Waldorf, the unprecedented Mr. Davis gave all the help connected with the theater, down to the last scrubwoman, a cash bonus. He did the same at the Waldorf when the play moved to the Lyric, where it is now showing to free admissions.

When the fall season started, Mr. Davis decided that the play should have a new production. His friends, the author, J. Frank Davis, and even some of the actors advised against it, telling him that he should abandon an enterprise that had become the joke of the show business. Nevertheless, Mr. Davis had the author come on to New York from Texas, and, with the aid of Murdock Pemberton, the publicity agent of the show, and Edgar Stehli, one of the actors, "The Ladder" was rewritten.

Robert Edmond Jones, one of the greatest scenic designers in the world, was commissioned to do new sets. Margaret Anglin was employed as director and Carol McComas was installed as the new leading woman. This cost $50,000. The new "Ladder," however, fared no better than the old.

IN THE surging tide of Forty-second street the Lyric Theater was an island of solitude. One could wander into the lobby any evening around 8:30 and see nobody but the man in the box office and the ticket taker.

Then came the announcement that the play would be thrown open to the public free of charge. Since there are any number of people in New York who will take anything that's free, the first few performances following this announcement were played to packed houses. Whether the play will be continued through the winter on this basis is a matter of conjecture. Even if it is there are those who believe that the only way it can be made a complete success is for the management to furnish a taxicab with each pair of seats.

One or two men around New York who claim to understand the nature of the unusual Mr. Davis declare that he still believes the play may be turned into a success. This belief apparently arises out of the fact that several times in the past—notably in his oil and rubber ventures—he was connected with projects that went badly at the beginning and then, when all hope seemed lost, turned out to be assets. These diagnosticians also declare that there is a good deal of New England stubbornness in Mr. Davis' attitude. These, together with his unwillingness to tamper with what he considers are the designs of fate and his natural altruism, may possibly be the means whereby the "greatest flop in show business" may stay on Broadway as long as "Abie's Irish Rose."

Sells Matches on the Scene of Her Former Triumphs

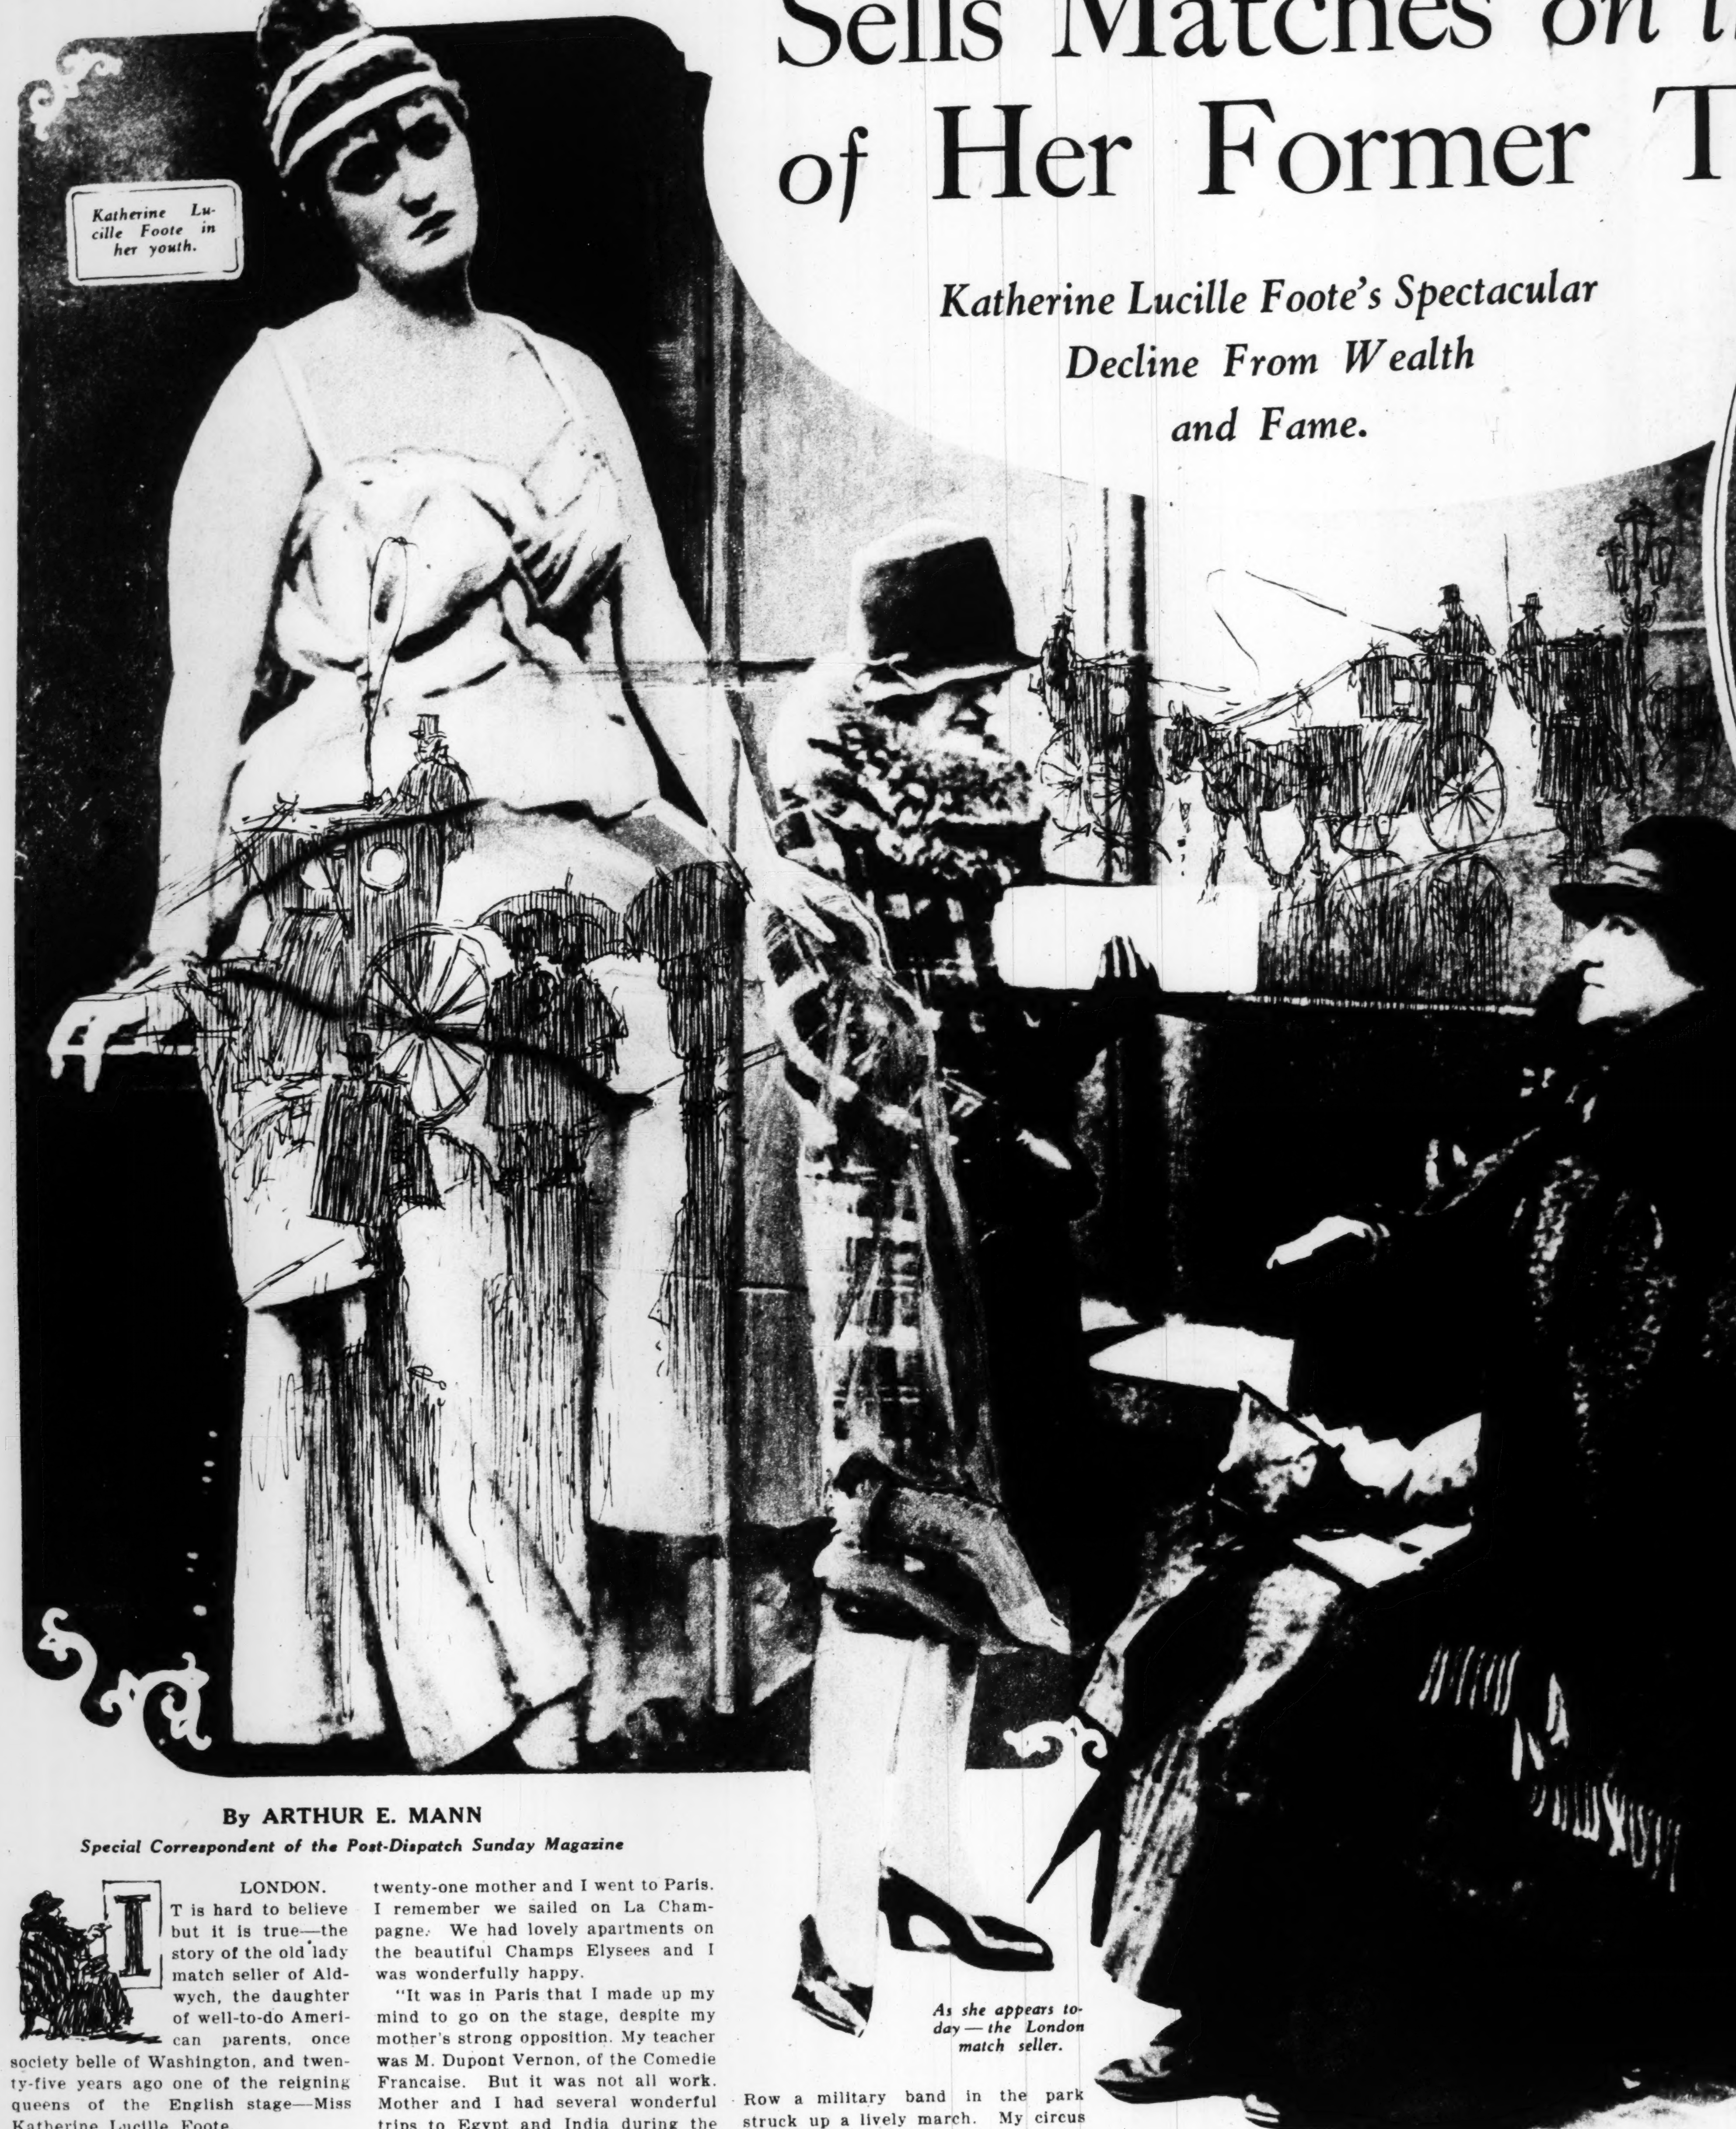
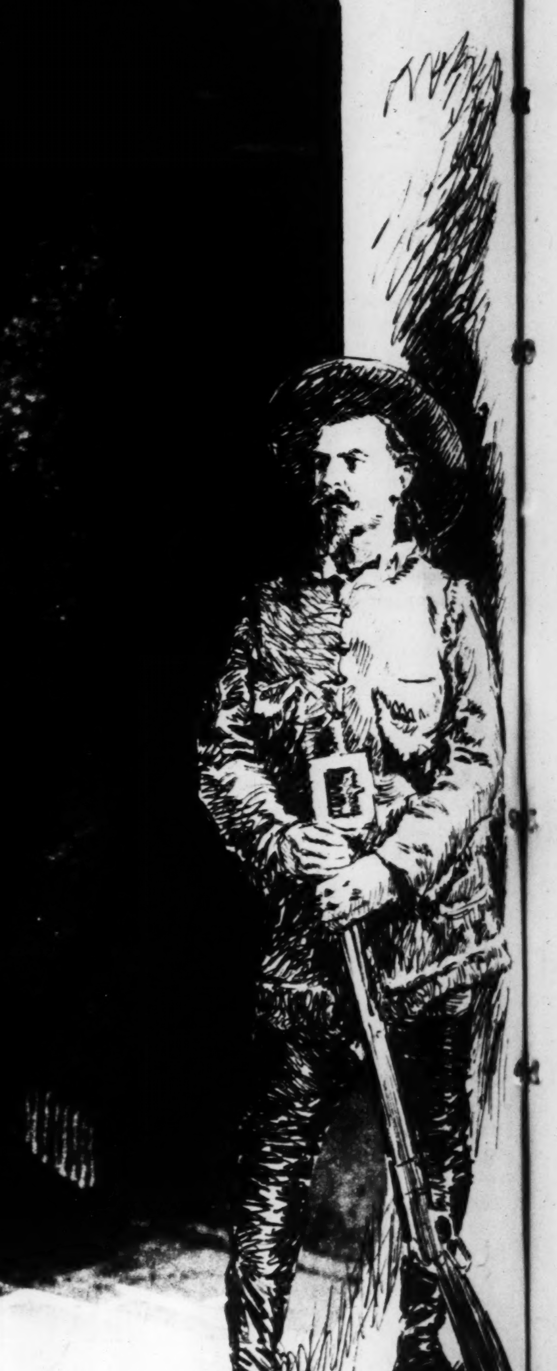
Katherine Lucille Foote's Spectacular Decline From Wealth and Fame.



Katherine Lucille Foote in her youth.

As she appears today — the London match seller.

Wilson Barrett.



Buffalo Bill.

By ARTHUR E. MANN

LONDON.

IT is hard to believe but it is true—the story of the old lady match seller of Aldwych, the daughter of well-to-do American parents, once society belle of Washington, and twenty-five years ago one of the reigning queens of the English stage—Miss Katherine Lucille Foote.

I found her at her "pitch" by the old Morning Post building, just off the crowded Strand, and opposite the new Gaiety Theater on the site of the old Gaiety made famous by that master of musical burlesque, George Edwardes, in whose companies she toured Great Britain, Ireland and Australia.

It was a biting cold and windy day. There she sat shrouded like a mummy in layer on layer of weather-beaten, time-worn garments, out of which her still handsome face peered resolutely at passers-by. There she sat on her camp-stool, offering her matches (two cents a box and as much more as charity would give) to hurrying London as she has done for five years.

We bundled her into a taxi, took her to the office, installed her before a good open fire to thaw out and she told something of her story, which ranged from luxury to the gutter. Just before she began I lit her cigarette with a vest-pocket lighter.

"OH, SIR," she said, without any touch of humor, "you shouldn't use one of those." It was the true touch of a match seller.

"My father," she began, "who was a Colonel in the Civil War, lost a leg at Gettysburg. He served under Major-General Daniel E. Sickles. Every year, after the war, the General used to hold a reunion at his house, No. 23 Fifth Avenue, an event to which my father always looked forward with pleasurable anticipation.

"I spent my childhood and girlhood in Washington. When I was about twenty-one mother and I went to Paris. I remember we sailed on La Champagne. We had lovely apartments on the beautiful Champs Elysees and I was wonderfully happy.

"It was in Paris that I made up my mind to go on the stage, despite my mother's strong opposition. My teacher was M. Dupont Vernon, of the Comedie Francaise. But it was not all work. Mother and I had several wonderful trips to Egypt and India during the winters. Many is the time that I danced at the American Embassy there (it was only a Legation in those days) when Mr. Whitelaw Reid was Minister.

"I WENT to London and succeeded in getting a very small part as the maid in the late George R. Sims' famous old melodrama, 'The Lights o' London.' After the London run was over we toured through England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

"It proved a good start for me. I rose rapidly and reached the point where I starred for three years with Wilson Barrett. In fact, I always feel proud when I recall that he wrote 'The Girl from Omaha' specially for me. My fiance, in the play, was supposed to be an American with the name of Gilead Hiram Washington B. Scoops. Every time I referred to him I ran through his full name and it never failed to get a laugh from the house.

"I forgot to tell you when I was speaking of my father and my early days that he was a great friend of Colonel Cody—Buffalo Bill. I wasn't very old when I first met him, and it was he who taught me to ride. When I was only five years old he put me on one of his show horses one day and said: 'Now, girl, if you've got grit stick to him.' I did, and from then on we were great friends.

"My funniest riding experience happened in Hyde Park here. Wolff's old German circus was in London, and one day Wolff let me have one of his prize trick horses for a canter. As I was riding in dignified fashion along Rotten Row a military band in the park struck up a lively march. My circus horse immediately reared up on his hind legs and began an extra performance of his regular circus dance. Hundreds of people crowded the edges of the bridle path to watch my involuntary exhibition.

"My first husband I met in Sydney when I was touring Australia with George Edwardes' old Gaiety company. He was Captain Frank M. Perry. I was introduced to him, as I recall, by the then American Consul at Sydney, Andrew Murray. My husband died about a year and a half later.

"My second husband was S. E. C. Newton, a nephew of the Newton who was once Lord Mayor of London. After my return to London from Australia I got a part in a piece called 'Club Baby.'

"Toward the end of a provincial run we played in Hull, and there I met my next husband. He was a handsome young fellow, son of a wealthy father, C. B. Newton, a well-known ship owner. We became engaged while I was still playing in Hull, and we fixed it up with the manager to give him a small part in a club scene with a few words to say. He made a good appearance on the stage, but he could never remember when to speak this piece, and I always had to edge over toward him and give him his cue.

"Some months after we were married I decided to make a trip to Washington to see my parents and to fulfill an attractive theatrical engagement in America. I was offered the part of co-star with Henry E. Dixey in 'Gayest Manhattan' and an engagement at the old Koster & Bial's.

"I had been in New York only a short while when my husband, who had not sailed with me, arrived by the next steamer, and a very short time later he shot himself in the Warwick Hotel, in Broadway. I was a widow, a bride and a widow again, all within a year.

"IT WAS a terrible blow, and money, or the lack of it, was the cause. In six months my husband (or rather, I should say we, for I had charge of the money and was as extravagant and as much to blame as he) ran through $25,000, which he had when we married. That will give you an idea of why I was where you found me. I almost forgot to say that I saw my brother, Judge Foote, during that tragic visit to New York."

That was the sad ending of Miss Foote's distant connection with the Lord Mayoralty of London but, brief as it was, it has considerable significance for this story—it was responsible for the revelation of her identity. The other day the annual Lord Mayor's parade and pageant wended its way down the Strand. To a spectator standing next to her "pitch" on the corner she said in a reminiscent tone, "I am interested in Lord Mayors—I married the nephew of one nearly thirty years ago. How time goes!"

That engagement in New York was Miss Foote's last stage appearance, though in after years she sometimes recited the poems of the Marquis de Louville in Queen's Hall. But to let her continue her story:

"After I returned to London I married for a third time. My last husband was Isidor Isabeau Maas, a prominent and successful business man.

"Isidor and I were married twenty years. Seven years ago he died of heart disease, after a long illness, leaving me $35,000. Two years later it was all gone, together with what I got from the sale of my jewelry, including some wonderful opals, which I had been collecting for years. It was all crazy extravagance. When my husband died I had two bank accounts; one at the London & County Bank, the other at Parr's. The managers were very kind to me and did their best to restrain my foolish spending. One day the manager of one of the banks sent for me and told me I had only $300 left.

"The news was a terrible shock to me, but it made no difference in the way I was living. When that little was gone I sold my jewelry and ran through that money, too.

"My jewels gone, there was nothing left to me to sell but matches. My husband and I had often dined and spent hundreds of pounds at the Holborn Restaurant. So I went to the manager there and got permission to take up my stand by the door. But things were too slow there during the holiday weeks and between meal times so I decided on a move and picked out my present 'pitch.' I went to the Bow Street Police Station and the Inspector told me he had no objection if I got permission from the Morning Post, which was granted.

"So there I am. What does my brother think about it? Well, all he knows about it is that I am in London."

There at the corner of Aldwych Miss Foote sits from eight or nine every morning until eight or nine every night, except Sundays. She makes three cents profit on a dozen boxes of matches.

It is a long time since Miss Foote has seen the inside of a theater. A couple of years ago a young woman with two orchestra seats for the Gaiety gave them to her a half hour before the play began, because a sudden call home prevented her using them. Miss Foote sold them to a regular customer of hers for $1.25. That is the nearest she has gotten to a show for five years. Every night she sees the people pouring in and out of the theater which stands on the site of her old triumphs and she contents herself with her dreams of the past.

The S

DEV

in a Pois

By COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER

As Told to Lowell Thomas

Part Four.

AS WE sailed neare and nearer that alluring coral shore, we saw flowers among the palms, flowers of all colors, and immense numbers of orchids. The hues of the flowers were reflected in the water over the white coral that deepened and turned green. Within the circular reef the lagoon seemed fully as deep as the sea outside, only at perfect peace and smooth like a mirror. It would have made a perfect anchorage for us, save that it had one entrance so narrow that only a small boat could pass through it.

A strong current ran through the opening. We cast our anchor on the coral and tethered our ship to it with a long cable. The pull of the current kept her far enough offshore and we saw, after a while, that she had dragged anchor. If the current were strong enough for that, why surely it would be strong enough to keep her from blowing ashore. Leaving several men aboard as a watch, we went on land for a glorious shore leave—sailors, officers, prisoners and all.

When we got inside the lagoon we found to our astonishment that it was a breeding place for turtles. There were hundreds of them in the water and on the shore, huge fellows weighing 200 or 300 pounds. The water was full of beautiful fish. I recognized the moray, a fish like the eel, which is a great delicacy. There were big lobsters without claws that promised to be the best of food. The atoll was alive with birds, hundreds of thousands of them, with nests and eggs everywhere.

Nor was the island without human inhabitants. We found three Kanakas, Polynesians who had been left there by a French firm to catch turtles. They were greatly frightened when they found that we were Germans. The French had told them frightful tales about the Boches. We, however, quickly made friends with them and when we made amicable overtures, they were only too glad to respond.

For days we lived a delightful poetic life, dining in a way that millionaires could not afford. We smoked quantities of fish and pork and stowed it away. We found fresh water on the island and refilled our tanks. We were rapidly getting ready to continue our cruise and work of havoc in Australian waters.

On the second of August we made ready to leave the ship for another day ashore. At 9:30 o'clock I noticed a strange bulge on the eastern rim of the sea. I called my officers' attention to it. At first we thought it a mirage. But it kept growing larger. It came toward us. Then we recognized it—a tidal wave such as is caused by submarine earthquake and volcanic disturbances. The danger was only too clear. We lay between the island and the wave.

"Cut the anchor cable. Clear the motor. All hands on deck."

WE DARED not raise sail, for then the wind would drive us on the reef. The motor didn't stir. The mechanics were working frantically. By this time the tidal wave was only a few hundred yards away. We were lost. To our frightened eyes it looked like a whole mountain range of water. It must have been 30 or 40 feet high. It came rushing with a roar that drowned out our voices.

A gigantic, violent hand seemed to grasp the ship. The wave swung her on high and threw her forward. It flung us crashing on the coral reef. Our masts and rigging went over, broken like match sticks. The SEA DEVIL Marooned in a Poisoned Paradise

As Told to Lowell Thomas

Part Four.

AS WE sailed nearer and nearer that alluring coral shore, we saw flowers among the palms, flowers of all colors, and immense numbers of orchids. The hues of the flowers were reflected in the water over the white coral that deepened and turned green. Within the circular reef the lagoon seemed fully as deep as the sea outside, only at perfect peace and smooth like a mirror. It would have made a perfect anchorage for us, save that it had one entrance so narrow that only a small boat could pass through it.

A strong current ran through the opening. We cast our anchor on the coral and tethered our ship to it with a long cable. The pull of the current kept her far enough offshore and we saw, after a while, that she had dragged anchor. If the current were strong enough for that, why surely it would be strong enough to keep her from blowing ashore. Leaving several men aboard as a watch, we went on land for a glorious shore leave—sailors, officers, prisoners and all.

When we got inside the lagoon we found to our astonishment that it was a breeding place for turtles. There were hundreds of them in the water and on the shore, huge fellows weighing 200 or 300 pounds. The water was full of beautiful fish. I recognized the moray, a fish like the eel, which is a great delicacy. There were big lobsters without claws that promised to be the best of food. The atoll was alive with birds, hundreds of thousands of them, with nests and eggs everywhere.

Nor was the island without human inhabitants. We found three Kanakas, Polynesians who had been left there by a French firm to catch turtles. They were greatly frightened when they found that we were Germans. The French had told them frightful tales about the Boches. We, however, quickly made friends with them and when we made amicable overtures, they were only too glad to respond.

For days we lived a delightful poetic life, dining in a way that millionaires could not afford. We smoked quantities of fish and pork and stowed it away. We found fresh water on the island and refilled our tanks. We were rapidly getting ready to continue our cruise and work of havoc in Australian waters.

On the second of August we made ready to leave the ship for another day ashore. At 9:30 o'clock I noticed a strange bulge on the eastern rim of the sea. I called my officers' attention to it. At first we thought it a mirage. But it kept growing larger. It came toward us. Then we recognized it—a tidal wave such as is caused by submarine earthquake and volcanic disturbances. The danger was only too clear. We lay between the island and the wave.

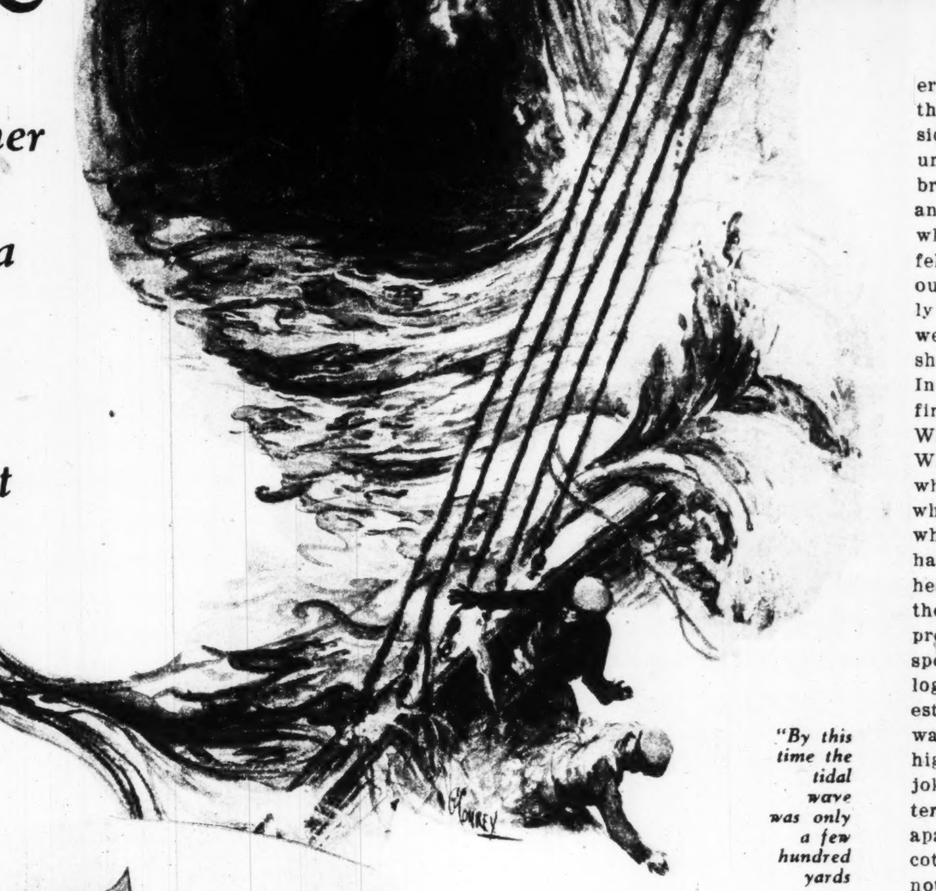
"Cut the anchor cable. Clear the motor. All hands on deck."

Count von Luckner.

WE DARED not raise sail, for then the wind would drive us on the reef. The motor didn't stir. The mechanics were working frantically. By this time the tidal wave was only a few hundred yards away. We were lost. To our frightened eyes it looked like a whole mountain range of water. It must have been 30 or 40 feet high. It came rushing with a roar that drowned out our voices.

A gigantic, violent hand seemed to grasp the ship. The wave swung her on high and threw her forward. It flung us crashing on the coral reef. Our masts and rigging went over, broken like match sticks. The shattering impact of the ship smashed the coral, and pieces flew in all directions like shrapnel from an exploding shell. The Seeadler had heeled over until her deck was almost perpendicular. The water swept over her deck, and the swirling eddies bombarded us with chunks of coral. I clung to an iron post near the lower rail. The rail saved me from the tons of shattered coral that were hurled up by the blow of the falling ship. In a moment the wave had ebbed away, leaving us high and dry. I arose, scarcely knowing whether I was alive or dead, and stood alone with one foot on my slanting deck and the other on the rail. My men and the prisoners had taken refuge in the bow, and had been sheltered by the rail, as I had been. Not a one was injured. For that at least we could be thankful. For that and not much else. The Seeadler was a total wreck. The jagged coral was rammed deep into our hull. We were castaways on this coral atoll in one of the loneliest and least-visited reaches of the South Pacific.

But Von Luckner and a Small Crew Put to Sea Again in a Small Boat and Suffer the Most Harrowing Misadventures.



"By this time the tidal wave was only a few hundred yards away. We were lost."

Part of the shipwrecked crew of the Seeadler and some of their prisoners.

THE last German colony! We founded it on this beautiful, isolated coral atoll in the middle of the Pacific. The Imperial German flag of war flew from the top of the tallest palm. I was the viceroy, by chance and not by desire, of course, and my sailors and our prisoners were my subjects. The only visiting nationals from elsewhere were the three Kanakas, the turtle catchers. "The White King of the Society Isle of Mopelia," my mate facetiously called me. One of the Yankee captains put it differently. He called me "the Sea Devil King of the South Seas." And he caustically described our lovely isle as "a poisoned paradise." Everybody was good-humored, despite our hard luck. We cleared a large space for our village and built huts out of timbers, sailcloth and palm leaves. Our prisoners, who were all Americans, helped us a great deal. They understood the art of pitching tents. They built a special town for themselves and gave the streets such names as Broadway, State street, Pennsylvania avenue and the Bowery. In time we contrived to arrange quite decent dwelling places. We had plenty of furnishings from the wrecked Seeadler. Of course, we also installed our wireless set ashore in order to keep in touch with passing ships and events happening out on this side of the world. Nor did we neglect to take ashore a heavy arsenal of arms and ammunition. We named the place Sea Eagle Town.

> IN this fourth installment Count von Luckner continues his story of the war-time cruise of the Sea Eagle, a Yankee clipper ship which was converted into an auxiliary cruiser, disguised, and sent out by the German naval command to prey on Allied shipping as previously told.
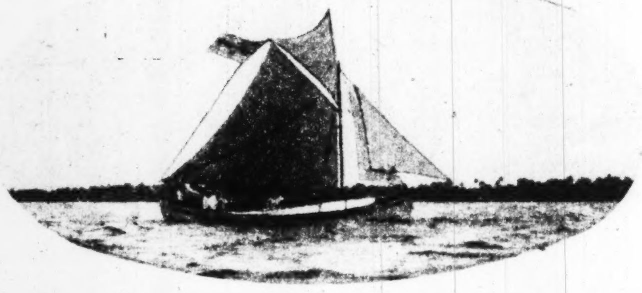
> Von Luckner's adventurous early life, how he ran away to sea as a boy, sailed several times around the world and returned to Germany to become a naval officer, is told in the first 12 chapters of the book as published by Doubleday, Page & Co.

THE wild pigs on the island provided us with both sport and food. They fed on cocoanuts, which is the best kind of fodder to make good pork. By way of vegetables, we had cocoanuts and bread made of cocoanut flour, which the Kanakas taught us to prepare, and hearts of palms.

My "subjects" somehow managed to get along on terms of general amity. Our American prisoners took no exception to my mandates handed on to them by Leudemann, my Prime Minister. The said that, since they had been treated so well aboard the Seeadler, they wanted no other command over our colony. The three Kanakas proved to be thoroughly good fellows and helped us in many ways.

But after about three weeks of this Garden-of-Eden existence, the monotony of it began to get on our nerves. We all grew impatient. Few sailors are keen about remaining cast away on a tropical isle for long, and especially on an atoll as small as Mopelia. We felt the itch to get out to sea again. I was particularly anxious to set something stirring. Before long the tropical sun and lazy life would sap my men's vitality, and all they would be good for would be to loll around.



In an open boat they sailed two thousand miles across the South Seas.

WE still had our lifeboats, and the hurricane season was not on. So why not put to sea in one of them? We devised rigging and sails for our best lifeboat, mast, jib boom, main boom, gaff, stays and back stays. She was not in any too good condition, and despite our labor she continued to leak a bit and needed constant bailing. We loaded her with provisions for half a dozen men over a long voyage. She was 18 feet in length and only about 14 inches above water amidship. Into this small space we stored water, hardtack, machine guns, rifles, hand grenades and pistols. The only luxuries we allowed ourselves were a few tins of pemmican, a side of bacon and an accordion. The music of the squealer was to be our solace during a cruise the length of which none could foretell. The great question was, could our tiny craft survive a storm? At any rate, she could sail, and that was something. We christened her the Kronprinzessin Cecile—without, however, painting her name on the stern.

I picked the men who seemed to be in the most vigorous health at the time—Mate Leudemann, Lieutenant Kircheiss, Engineer Krauss, Boatswain Parmien and Yeoman Erdmann. This left the colony on the atoll in the hands of Lieutenant Kling.

Our overloaded cockleshell with a crew of six was the smallest auxiliary cruiser in the war. For cruiser we were, and we were setting out to capture a ship, sail back to Mopelia, pick up our comrades there and continue our raid.

On a bright summer morning—August 23, 1917, to be exact—we sailed out of the lagoon, through the coral entrance, into the open sea. A brisk wind carried us westward with a swelling of our sails. The happy island receded. The last German colony and the wreck of the Seeadler slowly dropped out of sight over the rim of the horizon.

Navigation was difficult in so small a boat. It was impossible to spread the charts out properly, and with the slightest carelessness the wind might take our priceless navigation papers overboard. We had to use the sextant and other navigation instruments in a boat that often pitched so much we could scarcely stand.

It was cool at night, but not unpleasant so long as our clothes were dry. The weather was fair, but an occasional whale would come alongside and douse us with the spray of his spout. Then, in our damp clothing, we felt the chill of the night. The days were broiling hot, but even while taking advantage of what little shade we had, we grew heavy and torpid. We had, above all things, to be careful of our water supply. We never dared drink enough to quench our thirst completely, and were, in fact, continually thirsty.

By way of amusements we had readings aloud from the one book we had brought along, Fritz Reuter's comic story, "A Trip to Constantinople," and at night the squealer wheezed and blared.

After three days we sighted Aitu, the first island of the Cook group and a British possession. There was no ship in sight but we had to make port anyway to get fresh food, for we feared most of all scurvy and beriberi. The British resident was very suspicious but we succeeded in convincing him of our story. We said we were Americans of Dutch birth, who had made a bet of $25,000 at the Holland Club in San Francisco that we could sail from Honolulu in an open boat via the Cook Islands to Tahiti and back to Honolulu. However, since there seemed no immediate prospect of a ship putting into a port which we might capture, as we had planned, by overpowering the crew, we decided to push on to Aitutaki.

THE weather turned miserable. It rained every day, those drenching tropical downpours. The sea was heavily and continually washed into the boat. We were soaked to the skin and never got dry. At Aitutaki, after three days, there was again no ship in sight. The British resident there gave us an even colder reception. He suspected us at once of being Germans, and so did the natives. We finally confessed our nationality when there was nothing else to do, but rather than risk an uprising of the natives, who had become very menacing, he allowed us to depart.

But there at Aitutaki I had made the great mistake of our cruise. We should have captured that island. Three days later a schooner arrived. We could have taken it, rejoined our comrades and continued our raids. Instead, the resident told the officers the story of our visit. The schooner sailed the next day and in a little while met a steamer to which it transferred the news about us. The steamer in turn radioed a warning to the whole South Seas. So we were now in for a warm welcome.

We decided when we got well away from Rarotonga, another island at which we touched, that the Cook group was no place for us. At Aitu we had found no ship to capture. At Aitutaki no ship either, only a lot of trouble, including the misfortune of being recognized as Germans. And at Rarotonga we had nearly sailed into what we supposed to be an auxiliary cruiser in the dark.

WE HAD all along figured that we might have to go to the Fiji Islands, where a constant stream of sailing ships was always taking aboard copra for the munition factories in the United States. But we also were fully aware that sailing in a little open boat from the Cook Islands to the Fijis might easily be a perilous venture. The first half of the jaunt, or about 1000 miles, was over a vast open space of sea where there were no islands on which to find fresh food or on which to take refuge in case of need, and now the weather turned against us for a whole week.

For 10 days we sailed through a drenching downpour, the rainy season. The sea was choppy. The wind whipped the spray and the crest of waves over us in driving sheets. In our cockleshell things were afloat and it was bitter cold o' nights. When the sun occasionally shone, our drenched clothes would dry quickly and stiffen like boards of salt. They rubbed and scratched the skin off our bodies. When they got wet again, which they promptly did, the salt would soak into the raw flesh and inflame it. Our bodies felt as though they were on fire.

As the voyage grew longer, we had to be more and more sparing with our drinking water. The supply began to run low. We could no longer collect rain water in our sails. They were coated with salt. Our supply of fruit that we had picked up in the Cook Islands ran out now, and about all we had left was hardtack, not in itself a thirst-quenching kind of food. When the rains stopped and the blazing tropical sun beat down on us all day and we still had days to sail on and on, then the torments of the damned, the torments of thirst, smote us with a fiery agony. Our gums dried out and were like rough iron. We sucked our fingers and gnawed at our knuckles to bring a flow of saliva and refresh our burning mouths.

And then came the sailor's worst enemy, scurvy. Our diet of hardtack, lack of exercise and general hardships brought it on. Our knees swelled up so badly that we had to cut our trousers. The rocking of the boat knocked them together or against the wooden sides, and then the pain was almost unendurable. Our lips were black and broken. Our tongues were swollen and hard. Our gums became snow-white and seemed to recede. Our teeth felt as though they were sticking far out of our jaws. They hurt constantly and were loose and felt as if they were going to drop out. With these shaking teeth we ate our hardtack. In scurvy, the blood turns to water, first in the legs and then upward. When it reaches the heart you die. Where the blood is water the flesh is white, and you can see the line of the white creep slowly up. We wondered who would be the first—the first to have the line of white rise to the heart. My boys made marks to show the line clearly and mark its daily progress upward. It was a kind of sport. It was keeping a daily log, a log of death. Parmien was the youngest of us, but he seemed to be on his way to win the race. The line was higher on him than on the others. He joked about it. There was nothing terrible in it. We were all in a deep apathy. Our brains were like balls of cotton. Nothing mattered, certainly not death.

AND SO we continued on with but one instinct left in us, the sailor's instinct to navigate his craft. We were too far gone to reckon exactly where we were, and were only vague in our steering. All we knew was that we should steer to the west, where the island groups were.

You have read in many a sea story about the delight, the almost insane ecstasy, of castaways when adrift in open boats who are dying of hunger, thirst and disease, when, at last, a rescuing ship approaches or they see land. No matter how the writers describe it, even the greatest of writers, they can tell you only a tiny bit, only a grain of sand. So, I won't try to say how we felt when we saw a speck on the horizon and the speck grew bigger and turned into the familiar green of a tropical island. We headed straight toward a crude pier that stuck out into the water.

A crowd of a hundred natives, perhaps less, were gathered at the landing place watching our approach. They were ferocious-looking black warriors, and we decided against going ashore in our weakened condition. They proved friendly enough but we refused their invitations to partake of their hospitality, telling them we must hurry on to fight the British, and asked for fresh water and bananas. They brought great gourds full of water and bunches of bananas. We drew up to the dock and they handed these precious supplies down for us.

We had our fill of bananas and water, and, with shouts resounding from the shore, set sail again. This lucky spot was Niue, an outlying isle of the Fiji group. The sun blazed down upon us, but a fair wind carried us along briskly. The first day after leaving Niue we felt better. The second day we were on the road to high good health. It is amazing the curative effect of fresh fruit, especially bananas, when you are suffering from scurvy.

OUR cure was completed at the isle of Katafanga. It is quite a large isle and inhabited by more natives. But we hit upon a stretch of shore that seemed permanently deserted. At any rate, we remained there for five days and saw not a soul.

We were now getting near the larger islands of the Fiji group, where the sailing ships loaded with copra would be encountered. If we did not succeed in capturing a ship here, we never could hope to capture one.

We came to the main body of the Fijis and sailed into a large gulf surrounded by distant islands. It was night, and we decided to wait till morning to see how many ships were passing and what island they were bound for. We reefed our sails and threw out our sea anchor. We lay down for a decent night's sleep. We would need all our energies for the morrow.

A sudden shout. I awakened. It was just daybreak. Straight ahead was a wild white line of surf. It broke over a long, low coral reef, and

TALES OF REAL DOGS

Two Pairs of Dogs That Showed "Teamwork Heroism."

THESE are two stories, both true, and each concerning two dog heroes. I am grouping them as a variation on the usual theme of a single dog's exploits. Here is the first of the two:

Mrs. Ruby Pettis owned a ranch at Sherar Bridge, Oregon. One evening at dusk she was on her way home, driving a large and heavily laden wagon, drawn by two excitable horses. Alongside the heavy vehicle trotted her two pet dogs, who went with her everywhere.

The dogs were collies. Pup was somewhat elderly and sedate, in spite of her youthful name. Mrs. Pettis had owned her from puppyhood and had never changed the collie's original name of "Pup" for anything more appropriately mature. Pup was adoringly devoted to her owner and was a splendid herder as well as a pal.

The other dog was Pup's son, Jack, little more than a puppy, but already a skilled farm dog. He and Pup had been taught from the first that they must be workers, not parasites. Thus, in the course of their ranch duties, they had learned to think for themselves and not to be confused at whatever sudden happening might confront them.

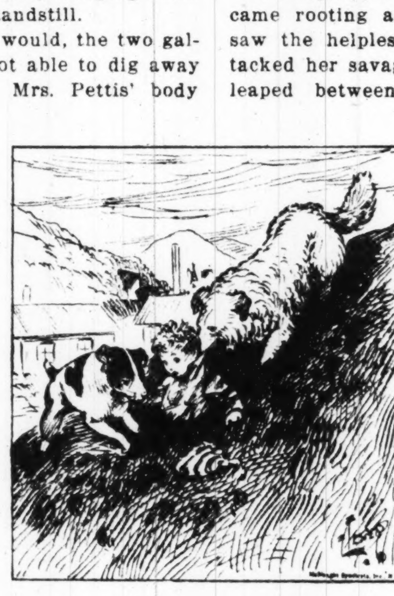
This was lucky for Mrs. Pettis. For the wagon rounded a sharp curve in the ill-constructed dirt road, and one of the horses shied violently at a rabbit which scuttled across the way. As a result, a wheel of the wagon struck hard at an angle against a big roadside stone.

The overloaded and ill-balanced vehicle lurched and then upset. So sudden was the catastrophe that Mrs. Pettis had not time to jump free or even to brace herself. Over went the wagon, and over went its driver. Mrs. Pettis was pinned underneath the many hundred pounds of load and of wagon body.

SHE could not move, so fast was she imprisoned under this avalanche of weight. By some miracle the load merely held her helpless against the soft earth of the road and did not crush her. She fell face forward, though, and the road dust almost smothered her, for she could not twist her head to either side to breathe more freely.

As the wagon crashed over, the scared horses bounded forward. In another instant, Mrs. Pettis must have been dragged to death in the vehicle's forward lurch. But the horses were checked at the very outset of their frightened jump. Pup and Jack had flashed to the plunging brutes' heads and had stopped them, bringing them to an immediate standstill.

But, try as they would, the two gallant collies were not able to dig away the weight from Mrs. Pettis' body or set her free. A sluicing rainstorm swept down on the unfortunate woman, turning the road dust to mud, which would have strangled her had not one of the dogs dug furiously with both paws into the miry roadbed and given her room to breathe. Then the other dog licked the caked mud from the woman's face.



His dogs came to his aid.

All night the faithful collies stood guard over the luckless woman, keeping the horses from taking a single forward step and always keeping the mud from suffocating her. It was a long and terrible vigil, but they were loyal and wise.

At daybreak a herd of wild hogs came rooting along the road. They saw the helpless Mrs. Pettis and attacked her savagely. The two collies leaped between their mistress and the assailants, and a pitched battle ensued.

A hog is a dangerous opponent at all times, and is often harder to handle, when he is angry, than an enraged bull. The collies were torn and bruised and badly knocked about during the scrimmage, before they were able to drive away the herd of ugly marauders. But at last they were victorious.

It was 11 o'clock in the morning before any human passerby chanced to come along that little-used road and bring rescuers. In the meantime she must assuredly have died if it had not been for the brains and the pluck of her two splendid collies.

As it was, she escaped with no lasting or serious injuries as the result of her 15 hours of imprisonment under the wagon. The tired collies were wild with delight as the neighbors began to drag away the load and the wagon from above their loved mistress. The situation had passed into the control of stronger and more capable helpers than themselves, but it was they that had warded off death from her.

HERE is the second of the two stories of canine teamwork, in the matter of heroism:

Charles Haas, a day laborer, was at work at the No. 5 colliery of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, near Scranton, Pennsylvania, last March, when two dogs came rushing up to him, barking and yelping. They seized him by the bottom of his overalls and sought to drag him along with them. Both the dogs were grimy with coal dust, or culm.

All honor to Haas! Instead of screeching "Mad dog!" or kicking at the two apparently insane animals, he consented to let himself be drawn along by them. He was enough of a dog man to understand from their actions that something was seriously amiss.

He followed them for some distance, until they had guided him to a pile of soft culm. There, to his astonishment, Haas saw the head of a child sticking out from the top of the culm pile.

All around the child were hundreds of paw marks. The culm had been trampled and dug into, proving the furious efforts the two dogs had made to extricate the little prisoner before it had occurred to them to run off in search of human assistance.

The child was Billy Joyce, 4-year-old son of a Scranton business man. With his two chum dogs, Billy had been taking a walk, when he had seen the pile of culm. He climbed it. As he got to the top, he began to sink into the treacherously soft material.

He could not struggle out. His dogs came to his aid. But as fast as they dug away part of the culm, more would slide into its place. When they tried to pull Billy out of the hole by his coat collar, their own feet sank so deep into the culm that they could get no purchase on the lift. They could just keep him above the surface.

For hours Billy had remained there, and he must certainly have been pulled down into the strangling substance by dint of his own exertions, if his dogs had not held his head above the culm.

Royal Pomp Is Still Good in Coburg

Ancient Thuringian Town, With Four Princely Houses in Its Midst, Ignores the Verdict of the War.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

BERLIN.

ROYALTY, with all its pomp and imperious social privilege, still flourishes untrammeled in the heart of republican Germany, in the storied old City of Coburg. It is as if the German people, though forced at last to give up monarchy by the extravagances of the last Kaiser and the economic necessity that grew out of the World War, still keep in their hearts the kindly, romantic side of kingship, the pageants and the crowns, the favors of august eyes sometimes won by poor but deserving followers, and all the connotative trappings that go with such good old phrases as "For God, for country and for King!"

By official edict Kings, Dukes and Princes have been stripped of all their royal prerogatives in Germany. The former princeling is no better before a court, on the street, or even in the castle than the laborer; he "rates" nothing more, as they say. All that is gone; the German people are freed forever from the burden of aristocracy—but if you went to Coburg——

YOU would find there a genuine ancient court atmosphere, unimpaired by the republicanization of Germany in general, and the Duchy of Coburg-Gotha in particular. You would see the colors of former reigning houses flying proudly over their medieval chateaux and magnificent palaces, the gates of which are guarded by armed and uniformed guardsmen, just as in the old days before the revolution. You would hear people—now citizens of a powerful republic—reverently talking about audiences granted by "His Royal Highness" or "His Royal Majesty," and you would see them taking off their hats when "Her Royal Highness" rode through the narrow streets of her former capital in her royal carriage. You would see them rising in the theater when one of the royal personages appears in the royal box; curtseying, bowing ceremoniously, according to the rules of court etiquette. You would see their whole life, their daily routine governed by the princely households.

For the City of Coburg and its some 24,000 inhabitants nothing has happened during the past 15 years—no war, no revolution, no downfall of the princely house of Coburg-Gotha, no change in the Constitution of their native land. And the romantic Thuringian city, a living anachronism in modern times, continues its daily life as a tiny monarchy within the borders of a great republic.

IN THIS earthly paradise for fallen dynasties there are at present four princely households, all of which have their share in the populace's unaltered adulation for royalties.

On a lofty peak of Coburg Castle, an imposing structure with medieval turrets and drawbridges, reigns the Duke Karl Eduard of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the sovereign of the Duchy of Coburg-Gotha before the revolution.

Below, in the heart of the city, on Theater Square, is the palace of the former Prince Regent of Hohenlohe-Langenburg, who still retains an army of uniformed lackeys, two aides-de-camp, a cabinet chief and a master of ceremonies.

A few blocks farther on begins the miniature empire of Ferdinand, ex-Czar of Bulgaria. His Majesty, always a lover of pomp and grandeur, has two palaces in the city, one, full of resplendent reception rooms and furnished with kingly luxury, in the so-called Hofgarten, and the other, a less imposing but still princely building, his "Petit Trianon," the so-called "Bulgarenschloesschen," behind the theater.

Not far from Ferdinand's miniature "Kingdom of Bulgaria" is the palace of the Russian Grand Duke Cyril, cousin of the late Czar and self-proclaimed Czar of all the Russias. Although for the time being he has no empire to govern, he has a genuinely imperial household, with chamberlains and ladies-in-waiting, court officials and uniformed guardsmen.

ALL these former sovereigns are actually rulers, reigning Princes and Kings in the City of Coburg, which regulates its everyday life according to the customs and habits of its four royal residents.

The central figure in this strange monarchistic life of the republican Coburg is the Duke Karl Eduard. The local newspapers, which before the revolution published a daily column headed "The Court," continue to give a precise account of the doings of the Duke and his family. You can read in this column items like these: "His Royal Highness rose today at 7 o'clock, rode in the park and then received a deputation representing the Maennerchor Club." . . . "Her Royal Highness Adelheid promised today that she would attend the ball of the Coburg Women's Club." . . . "The Duke granted the title Purveyor to His Royal Highness to the haberdashery firm of So and So." . . .

Despite the revolution and the republic, the Duke Karl Eduard has not given up his daily audiences in Coburg Castle. Petitioners of all kinds, deputations, prominent citizens and even city officials continue to appear before His Royal Highness the same as 10 years ago. The rule on such occasions is that civilians have to wear frock coats, while ex-officers must don uniforms and display all their decorations.

When "His Royal Highness" passes the people cheer and lift their hats as of yore.

Ferdinand, ex-Czar of Bulgaria.

The Duke is an ardent patron of the stage, and he always attends the more important performances. The right proscenium box, formerly the royal box, is still reserved for the exclusive use of the ducal family, and the audience rises when the Duke and the Duchess appear. He has previously called up the director of the theater, which is now supported from state funds, and the performance does not begin until the royal guests arrive. There have been times when the beginning of a show has been delayed for more than an hour, but the audience waits patiently for His Highness.

THE Duke and his family like to ride about the city in an automobile. Beside the chauffeur a lackey sits, holding in his hand a small green-and-gold flag. Special sirens sounding a four-note call are allowed in Coburg only to the Duke Karl Eduard. When the traffic policeman hears the sound of the royal automobile's siren he stops all other cars so that His Highness' car can shoot through the narrow streets at a rate of 40 miles per hour unmolested by the common traffic.

His Royal Highness and his family are also very fond of the movies. There is a special room in Coburg Castle supplied with a silver screen and projecting apparatus. On a certain day of the week one of the local theaters—purveyor to His Royal Highness—sends the manager and his operator to the castle to show the newest film. On such occasions the regular performance in the movie theater ends an hour earlier to enable the ducal family to enjoy the special showing exactly at 10 o'clock.

THREE or four times a week the ducal family condescends to attend balls in the city, and twice a year there is a court ball in Coburg Castle. On such occasions the most rigid forms of etiquette are observed. There is a regular "cercle," the master of ceremonies introducing the various personages in succession, according to their rank. The loyal subjects of Duke Karl Eduard watch jealously how long the Duke converses with their rivals. As for invitations to these court festivities, there is a regular battle among the burghers, every one besieging the royal major-domo. Debutantes must be presented at court before they can enter the field of social activities.

The ducal couple have five children—three sons and two daughters. The young Princes play an even greater role in the social life of the City of Coburg than the Prince of Wales does in that of London. The youngest of the three Princes, the 14-year-old Frederic, is studying at high school. Last June, when he took his examination, all the professors of the Coburg High School went to the castle, wearing their Prince Albert coats, and addressed their pupil as "Your Highness." The examination was carried on in this fashion: "Your Royal Highness be pleased to say how long the Thirty Years' War lasted?" And when His Highness gave the answer, "Thirty years," the professors congratulated the proud father.

WHEN a Coburger says "His Majesty," you know that he is alluding to Ferdinand, ex-Czar of Bulgaria. The burghers regard him as one of their own, he being a native of Coburg, who before the war visited their town almost every year under the name of "Count Kohary." "His Majesty" leads a somewhat more retiring life than the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, but his part in the city's daily life is none the less prominent. The burghers can catch sight of him every forenoon when he takes his daily walk in the Hofgarten. Three or four policemen follow him at a respectful distance, while two others clear the way before him. Though an old man, he is still "arbiter elegantiarum," and the younger set of Coburg laboriously imitate his style of dress. The well-dressed Coburger wears what His Majesty wears. Whenever a new pattern of gloves or neckties is received at the local men's furnishing shops, the "Purveyor to His Majesty the King of Bulgaria" is granted a special audience in the Bulgarenschloesschen, where he presents the new articles of fashion to his royal customer. When His Majesty condescends to select 12 different patterns, you can be sure that those same patterns will go high that season in Coburg.

His Majesty, too, is very fond of the theater. They say that he is an amateur stage director, and it happens very often that the manager of the local theater is bidden to the Hofgarten Palace. On such occasions His Majesty explains to the manager how this or that play should be staged and what players he would like to see during the coming season. You may be sure that his wish is an order to the loyal Coburger.

Though the local press refrains from indiscretions, it is invariably known when His Majesty is taking a hand in the direction of a new comedy. The play is assured of a tremendous success, because every Coburger considers it his duty to applaud furiously after every act which was set and directed according to the suggestions of the royal amateur.

In the street where the Bulgarenschloesschen stands there is no house No. 13. The house next to the one marked No. 11 bears the number 15. Coburgers say this is because His Majesty is very superstitious and hates to live in proximity to the unlucky number 13.

AS TO "Czar" Cyril and the Prince Regent of Hohenlohe-Langenburg, they have different fields of activity in the City of Coburg. The former is a great patron of all kinds of sport and is the high umpire of every sporting festival, while the latter—an elderly gentleman endowed with an extraordinary business acumen—is asked for advice in the affairs of various business associations. Thus it happens that there is no public affair in Coburg without the enlightened presence of at least one of the city's four Princes. The chairman of a league, club or business association always has occasion to address his words first to the royal personage who has honored the assemblage with his presence. Of course, representatives of the republican Government are sometimes also present, but in Coburg the Princes have the precedence.

During the summer the royalties of Coburg retire to their summer homes in the vicinity of the city. All four of them have castles there—two of them on the Callenberg, one in Rosenau and one in Mergentheim. "La saison morte" begins in Coburg when Duke Karl Eduard moves to Callenberg, and the regular season begins when King Ferdinand returns from Mergentheim.

THE city knows the exact hour of their return and the wide "Bahnhofstrasse" is lined with the loyal subjects giving rousing cheers for their royal masters. And while a few hundred miles north from Coburg the autumn season opens with the convocation of the Parliament of the republic, while they pass laws in Berlin in the name of the people, here, on this enchanted isle of royalties, life keeps its time-honored course. The burghers in Coburg wonder who will appear before His Royal Highness at the first audience in Coburg Castle; or when the first ball will be given at "the court"; or whether His Majesty will approve of the new tragedienne engaged for the city theater; or if His Highness Hohenlohe-Langenburg will accept the invitation to the banquet of the Chamber of Commerce; and whether it is indeed true that Czar Cyril has ordered new uniforms for his tall Russian guardsmen.

The SEA DEVIL

just behind it was a high cliff. We had run into a strong current during the night. Krauss had awakened just in time to see that it had carried us perilously near the reef. The wind was sweeping us toward the breakers.

"Raise sail," I shouted.

There wasn't the slightest hope of our moving against the wind and backing away from the reef. Slowly, slowly we were nearing it. The breakers roared like thunder. In a few moments we would be flung into that death trap of water and coral.

Pistol in hand, I shouted something to the effect that I didn't intend to be ground to death by the breakers on that jagged coral.

The others looked for their pistols. One could not find his. Between the pull of the current and the power of our sails we were drifting along the reef, edging toward it. The wind gave us an extra push. We were in the backwash, only a few yards away from the breakers. And still one man could not find his pistol. Instinctively, we all waited. And that was what saved our lives. Suddenly we saw the reef drop away, slanting back at a sharp angle, and a moment later we were drifting parallel to the coral. I sat looking at my boys' faces. When we got our pistols ready, their faces had set tense, as if cast from bronze. With the danger past, their faces held the same set expression. It was an hour before their old expressions came back again. Two of my fellows found patches of gray in their hair afterward. (Maybe they had been there for years, only to be discovered now!) Another's leg was absolutely blue in spots. In those frightful moments he had, without knowing it, grasped his thigh in a clutch like a drowning man. I tell you it was the hand of God that put the curve in that reef! When one of the boys, I don't know which, said in surprise, "We are clear!" I knew it was the hand of God.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolvent. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in one's self—is an acrid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

Care of Babies

This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet, for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. Not drugs, for he has not been dosed with opiates; he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensible mother ever made him taste castor oil. Yet his nerves are sound and his little bowels are strong, and when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—or likely to be—his mother has him all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes!

The secret of this complete freedom from the many ills and upsets so common to infants? Plain old-fashioned Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops and an approaching fever, colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in thin air. Castoria is purely vegetable; that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with children of any age—the youngest infant. And how they love the taste!

One word of warning; get the pure, real Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is the original. It is the kind doctors specify. And with every bottle comes a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" that is worth its weight in gold to any mother or prospective mother so remember; tell your druggist you wish Fletcher's Castoria.

THE MISSING HOUR

—BY—

E. Phillips Oppenheim

"MR. HENRY PITT," Peter Bragg read out, studying attentively the card his visitor had presented.

"My name," the newcomer acknowledged, dropping into the client's chair.

There was a brief silence. Mr Henry Pitt was a small, nervous man with watery eyes, insignificant features, an untidy red mustache, and a thin crop of hair of the same color. His physique was puny, his carriage unimpressive, and his apparel not only shabby but also ill-selected.

"What can we do for you, sir?" Peter Bragg inquired, with some asperity.

"They tell me that you undertake all sorts of commissions. Have you any one on your staff who could go so far as to commit a murder, and what would it cost me?" was the unexpected rejoinder.

"If your suggestion is seriously meant," Peter Bragg replied coldly, "it would probably cost you a term of imprisonment when I disclosed your proposition, as I certainly should do, in the proper quarters."

Peter's partner, the Hon. George Vincent Angus, strolled over from his chair. "I fancy," he observed, smiling sympathetically at this dismal-looking little visitor, "that Mr. Pitt is not literally in earnest."

"I don't suppose I am," the other admitted grudgingly. "Still, if, by any chance, anything were to happen to the person I have in mind, there'd be no mourning worn in my office."

"Have you any business of a definite nature to place before us?" Peter Bragg asked stiffly.

"I have," the little man replied, with unexpected spirit, "or I shouldn't have come. I have a partner—his name is Frederick Sinclair Hope. He doesn't hold as many shares as I do in the business, but he has a goodish few. He has been with me now for over three years."

"What is your business?"

"Produce-merchants. It's rather a line of our own. We deal chiefly in imports from East India."

"And what is your grievance against Mr. Hope?"

The visitor sighed.

"MY real grievance," he confided, "is that, ever since he came, we've been losing money. We don't seem to be able to make a deal, buying or selling, that goes right. That may not be his fault, of course. I ain't come here to grouse, anyway. There's something else I've got against him, and that's where I need your help. Would you believe me, Mr. Bragg—that man is driving me pretty well crazy through sheer common or garden curiosity?"

"Explain, if you please."

"Can you believe this? At five minutes to three every afternoon on every business day, he takes up his hat and leaves the office. At five minutes past four he returns. Not one day a week, mind, or one day now and then, but every mortal day upon the calendar, and this is the third year now that it's been going on. He's never volunteered a word of explanation as to where he was going or what he was going to do. He simply disappears."

"Have you ever asked him where he goes to?"

"Of course, I have. I've asked him a score of times. He only smiles or mutters something about a matter of private business."

"Have you formed any idea yourself as to what he does?"

"Something like a hundred and dismissed them all, one by one. He's not the sort of man to play cards or billiards in the middle of the day. He is either a toff, or thinks he is, and all his friends are up in the West End. What can a man do with one hour a day in the middle of the afternoon, five days a week, right in the heart of the city?"

"It seems a little inexplicable," Peter Bragg confessed.

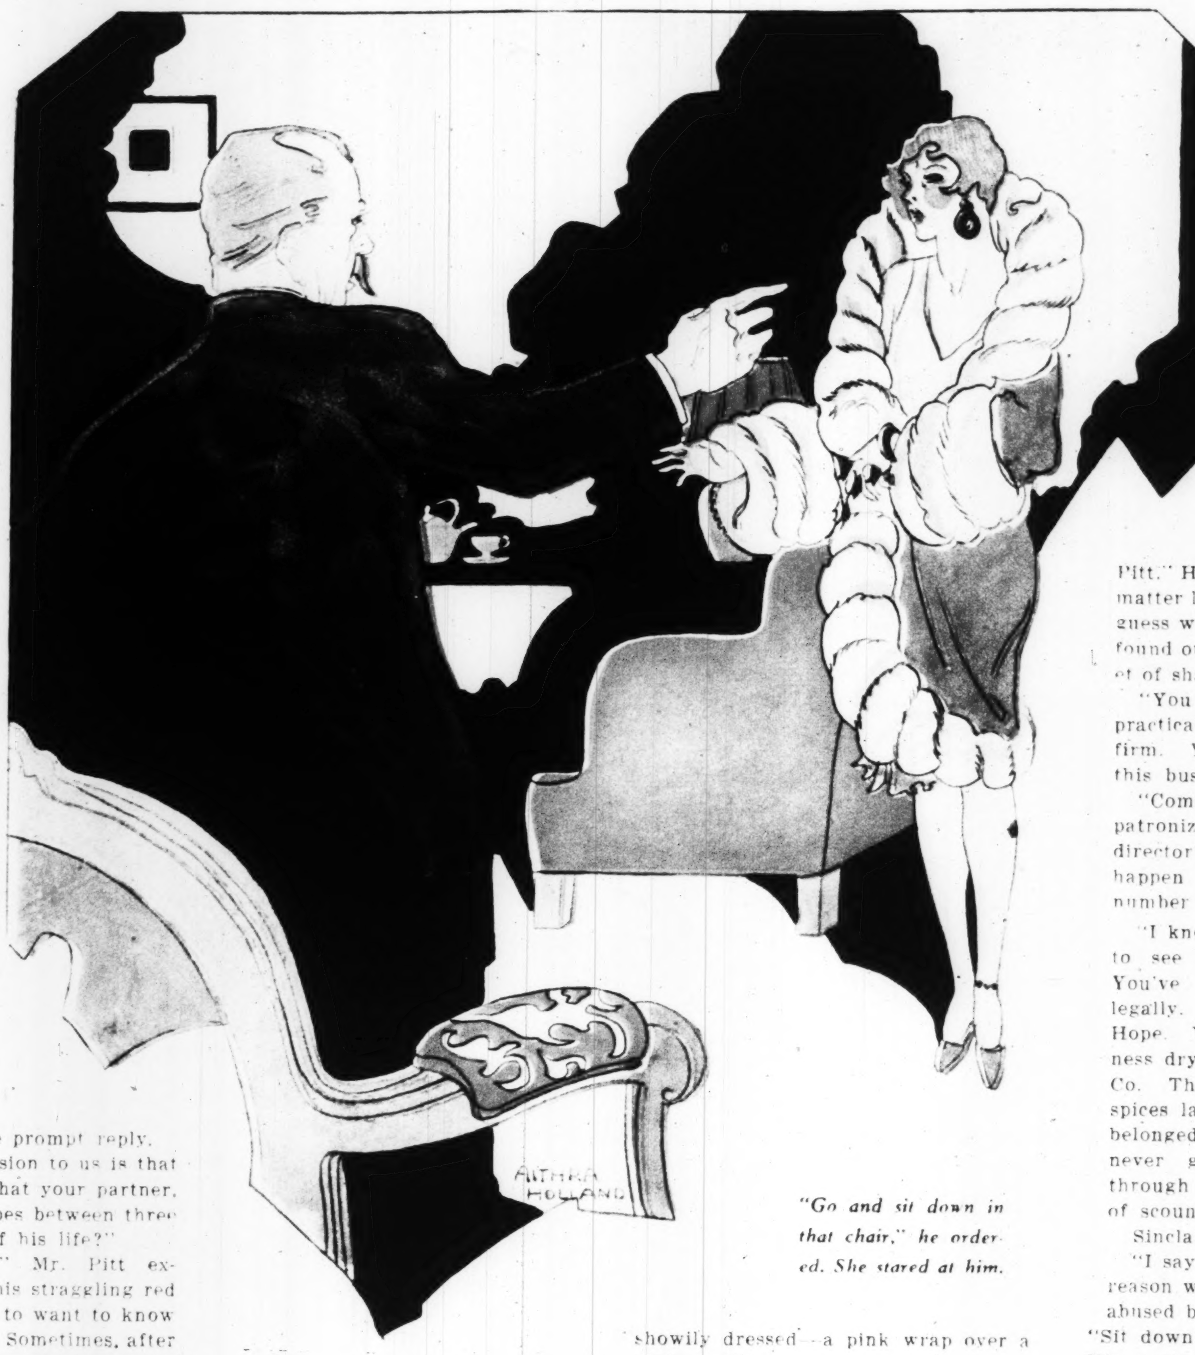
"It's right on my nerves. You're private detectives—well, find out for me what Frederick Sinclair Hope does between the hours of three and four, and name your fee."

"The commission appears to me to be one we would accept," Peter Bragg observed, after a moment's reflection. "I should like a few more particulars. How old is your partner?"

"He pretends to be a good deal younger, but I should think he's the same age as me—fifty-one."

"Has he any marked tastes?"

"I've never seen him in my life outside business hours," Mr. Pitt confided. "I live with my daughter out Kilburn way. Mr. Hope is a bachelor and has a flat somewhere in the West End. He ain't my sort. If ever I've seen him reading the newspapers when he's been through the markets it's the social bits he turns to, and he dresses every morning as if he was going to a wedding, instead of to sell coffee. He wears an eyeglass, too, and has the name of his club printed on his cards."



"Go and sit down in that chair," he ordered. She stared at him.

"Tell me the name of your firm and the address of your business premises," Peter Bragg invited.

"Pitt & Hope, Limited, 18 Grassmary Lane," was the prompt reply.

"And your commission to us is that you want to know what your partner, Mr. Sinclair Hope, does between three and four each day of his life?"

"Want to know!" Mr. Pitt exclaimed, tugging at his straggling red mustache. "I began to want to know after the first week. Sometimes, after the first year, I felt I couldn't stand it any longer. Now, in the third year, I'm going crazy about it."

Peter Bragg glanced through his notes. "I anticipate no difficulty in procuring for you the information you desire, Mr. Pitt," he announced. "I will drop you a line to your private address when I have information to offer you."

Mr. Pitt rose to his feet, with a little sigh of content.

"And may it be soon!" he exclaimed fervently, as he made his adieus.

Four days later Mr. Henry Pitt was ushered into the same room in the Bellevue Mansions at about the same hour in the morning and, after a brief greeting, was invited to take the same client's chair.

He sat there blinking rapidly, his nervous little eyes fixed upon Peter Bragg. He seemed out of breath.

"Well?" he exclaimed anxiously.

The latter consulted the report by his side.

"Your partner, Mr. Pitt," he announced, "spends the hour between three and four each day at the office of a business with which he is connected in Mason's Alley."

"A business? Mason's Alley?" Mr. Pitt gasped. "Why, that isn't fifty yards away from us."

"THE firm there, with which Mr. Hope is connected," Peter Bragg continued, "trades under the name of Tuke & Co., Limited. They appear to be produce brokers and bill discounters."

For a moment all the nervousness seemed to pass from the face of the little man in the chair. He stopped blinking and sat like a carven image.

"Tuke & Co.?" he repeated, in a low tone. "Did I hear you right, Mr Bragg? Tuke & Co.?"

"That is the name. They are not in a large way of business, but commercially their reputation is excellent. They have a capital of thirty thousand pounds, all paid up, the great majority of the shares being in the hands of your partner, who does not appear, however, to have any official position in the firm."

Mr. Pitt rose to his feet. He seemed to be short of breath again, and a new expression had found its way into his face.

"You must excuse me," he begged, "if I am a little upset. The information you have given me is startling."

Peter Bragg made no comment. Angus, however, hovering in the background, was intrigued.

"Why startling?" he inquired.

Mr. Pitt moistened his lips and resumed his seat.

"This firm of Tuke & Co.," he explained, "has, for a long time, been a mystery to us—to me, especially, and my cashier and our traveler. They have done their business, either buying or selling, always during the afternoon and in a manner that, if you follow me, has always been prejudicial to our transactions. The price of some of our smaller articles of produce is very much affected by any knowledge of impending purchases. I am beginning to understand what it all means. Tuke & Co.—or rather my blackguardly partner—has simply used his knowledge of our morning transactions, of such contracts as we have accepted or refused, to make profits for Tuke & Co. during the afternoon."

"But surely," Angus pointed out, "what he gains with Tuke & Co. he loses with you."

"He has only a third share in our business," Mr. Pitt explained bitterly—"less than that, as a matter of fact, as he sold some of his shares not long ago—but now I know he just about owns Tuke & Co. Furthermore, our credit has not been so good lately, and we have been obliged to seek financial accommodation outside. Some of our paper is discounted with Tuke & Co. They have made us pay through the nose for it, too, by George!"

Angus murmured a word of sympathy. There was something pathetic about the sight of the little man who was groping now for his hat.

"Our fee for the inquiries will be twenty-five guineas," Peter Bragg announced.

Mr. Pitt counted out the notes. Then he took up his hat.

"I am much obliged to you, gentlemen, I am sure," he said. "At any rate, you have solved the problem that has disturbed me for so long. I know now where Sinclair Hope spends the hour between three and four."

MR. HENRY PITT lived in a gloomy, smoke-stained house in one of the backwaters of Maida Vale.

The dining room in which he spent that evening was in itself an epitome of discomfort and untidiness. The carpet was threadbare and ill-swept, the furniture was old and shabby, without having become so gracefully. The fragments of an insufficient and ill-served menu, set out upon a crumpled cloth, remained upon a corner of the table.

Pitt, without alcohol, tobacco, book or newspaper, had spent three hours in a horsehair chair, with a great gap in its side, drawn up over a torn fragment of rug to a smoldering fire.

There was no indication in his face as to the direction in which his thoughts had been wandering. At midnight there was the sound of a key in the door. A moment or two later a girl swung into the room.

"Hullo, Dad!" she exclaimed. "You not gone to bed?"

He turned around and looked at her. She was a handsome girl of a type that seemed to have been evolved by the fashions of the day. She was showily dressed—a pink wrap over a pink frock.

"What a filthy room!" she complained. "Dad, can't you afford to do something about it—to move, or, at any rate, get a decent servant? Your dinner looks as if it was foul."

"It always is."

She laid a collection of jingling, showy baubles upon the table. The moment seemed to her to be auspicious for framing the thought that had been in her mind for some time.

"If you have really made up your mind that you won't or can't move out of this miserable house, Dad, or engage a decent servant, I shall share some rooms with Molly Fell. She has the offer of some in Baywater that aren't half bad."

Then Mr. Pitt spoke up for the first time. His daughter looked at him in amazement.

"Go and sit down in that chair," he ordered.

SHE stared at him. His finger was outstretched and his hand was not shaking. There had been a curious note of command in his tone. Slowly she obeyed him.

"How long have you known where Sinclair Hope spent that hour between three and four?" he demanded.

She recognized the fact that she was in for a disagreeable few minutes. After all, however, it was bound to come some time.

"Ever since I went to Mason's Alley, of course," she replied. "It was Mr. Hope who engaged me. He offered me a great deal more than you were able to pay, Dad, and shorter hours. The only condition he made was that I never mention to anyone the fact that he had an interest in the firm."

"He's interested in you, too, isn't he?"

She shrugged her shoulders.

"We are good friends."

"Now listen here, Bessie, I haven't done with you. I've ruin to face and Sinclair Hope to deal with, but, before I go down, I mean to know what he is to you."

He rose to his feet and came toward her. She was terrified, but defiant.

"I may marry him some day."

He seemed suddenly to have grown in size—the poor little insignificant being for whom her warmest feeling had been one of kindly contempt. His hands were gripping her shoulders. His face close to hers.

"Tell me the truth," he demanded, "about his plans to ruin my business. If you lie, I shall know, and I'll kill you. The truth!"

She hesitated for a single moment and lost her nerve. She obeyed.

The metamorphosis of Henry Pitt continued. He arrived at his office in Grassmary Lane two hours after his usual time on the following morning, glanced through the few letters placed before him, and sent a polite message requesting the favor of a visit from his partner. As soon as Hope was well in the room, Mr. Pitt locked the door.

"Sit down there in my chair," he directed, dragging another one to the opposite side of the desk.

"What do you mean?" Hope demanded, moving, however, a little closer to the chair in question.

"You'll find out when I've done with you," was the curt retort.

"Look here, Pitt," Hope said, "let's discuss this matter like reasonable men. I can guess what's up, of course. You've found out about my having a packet of shares in Tuke & Co."

"You are Tuke & Co. You practically started and own the firm. You've used the brains of this business on their behalf."

"Come, come!" Hope protested patronizingly. "I am not even a director of the firm. I simply happen to hold a considerable number of shares."

"I know all about it. I've been to see a lawyer this morning. You've kept on the safe side legally. You're a cunning dog, Hope. You've squeezed this business dry for the sake of Tuke & Co. That order for East Indian spices last week, for instance—it belonged to us. You saw that we never got it. You worked it through Tuke & Co. Pretty sort of scoundrel, aren't you?"

Sinclair Hope rose to his feet.

"I say," he protested, "I see no reason why I should sit here to be abused by you."

"Sit down!" thundered Mr. Pitt.

His partner stared at him, open mouthed. This little man, with fierceness bristling all over him, was unrecognizable. He sat down. Mr. Pitt calmly produced a document from his pocket and passed it across the table.

"You had better look it through," he suggested, "because you are going to sign it."

Mr. Sinclair Hope adjusted his monocle and took up the document. When he had finished reading he burst out laughing.

"Capital!" he exclaimed. "So we are to amalgamate. Tuke & Co. and Pitt & Hope shares to be pooled, profits accruing in the last two years to be divided—Capital, Pitt! What do I do with this effort at humor?"

"Sign it," was the brief response.

"And how did you learn of my activities, may I ask?"

"I forced the truth out of Bessie last night. What have you got to say for yourself? Any reason why you shouldn't sign?"

Sinclair Hope gave a very fair imitation of a yawn.

"Look here, Pitt," he begged, "let's come to an understanding. It seems to me you're trying to play the bully. The whole thing is farcical. I haven't the faintest intention of signing that precious document of yours. Get that into your head. Now, what about it?"

Mr. Pitt's hand dived into his pocket and he produced a brand-new, fully loaded, wicked-looking automatic pistol.

"This!" he replied.

"Take care, Pitt!" exclaimed Sinclair Hope. "What in blazes are you doing with a thing like that?"

"I WILL tell you," Pitt replied, and his tone, at last, had become quite calm. "You are no fool, Hope, when it comes to grasping a situation. Try to get this properly. It's important. I'm broken in business, and the only relative I have in the world—my daughter—has been disloyal to me because of you. What have I left to live for? Nothing. I'm not proposing to kill you in any fit of anger. I'm going to kill you coldly and deliberately, if you don't sign those papers. Do you believe me?"

Those weak little blue eyes were glittering with purpose. Sinclair Hope looked into them, and he did believe.

"Don't you know that, if you did that," he faltered, amazed at the weakness of his own voice, "you'd hang for it?"

"I shouldn't," Mr. Pitt replied indifferently, "because I should shoot myself afterward. You think I haven't the courage? I can assure you that I have. Are you going to sign?"

"Under compulsion," he muttered.

Henry Pitt leaned across the table.

"After all, Hope," he said, "you're a simple fellow. You think you're clever, but you're not—when a mug like me can read your thoughts. Your idea now is to sign those documents. You're then going to clear out and shelter yourself behind your lawyers. You will probably apply for a summons against me, and in court you will declare that you are in bodily fear of your life. They'll bind me over, or something, won't they? Look here. They couldn't keep me in prison," he pointed out. "You might get a week or a month longer to live, although I don't think it would be as much as that. You can't keep a policeman on either side of me. You can't wear a bullet-proof suit day and night. If you don't sign those papers, you'll go in fear of death every hour from dawn to darkness, because, as surely as we two sit here at this table, I swear that I shall kill you."

SINCLAIR HOPE felt, for a moment, at his collar. More than ever it was borne in upon him that this insignificant little man had become his master. He dipped a pen in the ink.

"Wait a moment," the other interrupted, rising to his feet. "I have brought a friend to witness this."

He crossed the room, unlocked the door, and signed to someone outside. George Angus entered, very debonair with a bunch of violets in his lapel.

"This is my friend Mr. Angus—my partner, Mr. Sinclair Hope," Pitt announced. "Mr. Angus will witness this document."

"Very glad to, indeed," Angus acquiesced. "Quite a pleasant way out of a difficult situation."

Sinclair Hope moistened his dry lips.

"May I ask, sir, whether you are aware of the nature of this pressure that has been placed upon me?"

"I know all about it," Angus admitted. "Mr. Pitt and I spent an hour or so together this morning."

"And you approve?"

"Entirely. The law's so infernally unfair," Angus went on, leaning back in his chair and hitching up one of his trouser legs.

Sinclair Hope swallowed hard, took up the pen, and scrawled his name across the bottom of the document. Angus followed suit.

"As a matter of form, Mr. Hope," he said, "I must ask you whether you have affixed your name to this document willingly and without compulsion?"

Sinclair Hope nodded.

"Yes, I am signing it of my own free will," he admitted.

There was the sound of a taxi stopping outside, swift footsteps in the outer office. The door was opened and closed.

Bessie, pale and breathless, advanced toward the desk. A look of relief shone in her face as she looked at the three men. Angus alone rose to his feet and bowed.

"I'M SORRY," she faltered. "I didn't mean to rush in like this. I was frightened."

"Frightened?" her father repeated.

"I saw you come out of that gunsmith's shop," she told him. "I went in, and they told me that you had bought a pistol there and some cartridges. I went to Mr. Hope's rooms—but you weren't there. I couldn't help it. I'd been everywhere I could think of. I had to find you."

Mr. Pitt produced his new acquisition from his pocket, gingerly extracted the cartridges, and handed it across to his daughter.

"You may keep it, if you like, my dear," he said, simply. "Hope and I have decided to settle our differences in another fashion."

Sinclair Hope, whose brain had been working rapidly during the last few minutes, rose to his feet. He had a new feeling, almost of admiration, for his partner, and, in the light of it, he was inclined to be ashamed of his own misdeeds. Bessie, too—it was for his sake she had been agitated, and she certainly was looking remarkably pretty.

"Your father has been very angry with me, Bessie," he said, "and not altogether without reason. We have now come to an understanding. While you are here, and before your father and this gentleman, I wish to ask you whether you will marry me. We have spoken of this before, but I think it is time we had an understanding."

She came happily to his side.

"You mean it?" she whispered.

"Of course, my dear," he replied.

Sinclair Hope extended his hand.

"No ill-feeling, eh, Pitt?" he begged. "You can afford to forget. You've won. We'll take that empty warehouse of Griffith's, across the way, and work this business for all it's worth. I've got very reliable information, and there's a lot of money coming our way in ginger during the next few months."

Henry Pitt had the largest soul that ever existed in a small man. He stretched out his hand and grasped his partner's.

Mr. Arthur Repp of 4128 W. A. Lee Ave. has the pleasant duty of "saying it with flowers" --but damp days sometimes dampen the pleasure. Here's how he got rid of a troublesome cough by "saying it with REM."

He "said it with REM"

--a bouquet from a florist's driver

"I had a cough" says Mr. Repp "that kept worrying me for a couple of weeks. I go out in all kinds of bad weather delivering flowers, so it's hard for me to get rid of a cough. I tried several cough syrups but I didn't get any results. Then I noticed some advertisements about REM, so I got a bottle at the Fair-Lee Pharmacy at Fair & Lee Sts. It certainly helped me wonderfully. It's the real stuff for coughs all right, and I've told numbers of people about it. And they thanked me afterwards for recommending it to them."

Though every bottle carries an honest-to-goodness guarantee, not one person in a hundred has ever wanted his money back on REM. Could anyone write a better advertisement for REM than that?

Insist on REM! Remember, its effectiveness is largely due to a special ingredient, not in ordinary cough syrups.

from the worry of burned toast"

Tested and Approved 2710 Good Housekeeping Institute Conducted by Good Housekeeping Magazine

The Toastmaster has been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, and has been awarded this seal of approval.

You don't have to watch the Toastmaster

You drop in a slice of bread . . . press a lever . . . and when it's "done to a turn" up pops the toast and the current shuts off

The new Toastmaster ends one of the most perplexing of all household problems—how to make toast without burning it. It does this automatically, without watching or turning the bread. Makes crisp, golden-brown slices every time.

All you have to do is: 1. Drop a slice of bread into the oven slot. 2. Press down the two levers. This lowers the bread into the oven, automatically turns on the current, and regulates the length of time the bread is to be toasted. 3. Pop! Up comes the toast when it's done to your individual liking, and the current is automatically turned off.

Both sides are toasted at the same time in an enclosed oven. Thus all the goodness and flavor of the bread are sealed in—and the toast is always piping hot when served. It takes only half the time to make toast this way as it does when each side is toasted singly.

Give Toastmasters for Christmas

Finished in flashing nickel, the Toastmaster makes an attractive piece for the server or dining table. Give at least one Toastmaster for Christmas. Your Electric Light Company, department store or electric dealer now has it. In case your dealer cannot supply you, simply send us your name and we will tell you where you can conveniently see the Toastmaster. Waters-Genter Company, 244 N. Second St., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The Health Builder Keeps You Fit

Do You Look as Tired as You Feel?

How tiring party-bridge can be. After an afternoon or evening of playing, you feel tired—look weary—show facial fatigue. This fatigue of the face that comes from laughing and living is the direct cause of lines and wrinkles.

This Cleansing Treatment will relieve facial fatigue

BY MADAME JEANNETTE DE CORDET

PERHAPS there's but a moment left between an afternoon of bridge and a dinner date . . . the bridge has left you tired, and for dinner you must be fresh.

A quick and gentle massage with Pompeian Night Cream—nothing will rest your tired face more—nothing will give back its fresh glow quicker.

A generous spread of the Cream on your face—then let your hands slip over your face according to the movements prescribed. Gently around the eyes, over your brow, and down to the temples—there let them rest for a moment. Stroke from your mouth and nose out over your cheeks—stroke up from your chin.

Leave a coating of cream on your face while you bathe. Just before you dress, wipe it away. Then how clean and gloriously youthful your skin feels—how rested and refreshed.

Pompeian Night Cream has a dual purpose. It is at once cleansing and nourishing. Because it is a rather heavy cream it needs to be gently worked into the pores. Because it is a nourishing cream it needs to be left on the face . . . a half hour, an hour, all night if you can. Pompeian Night Cream cleans the skin and relieves Facial Fatigue. This soothing away of all traces of weariness from your face each time you are tired—after a shopping expedition, a strenuous afternoon of sports, or a night of dancing—this gentle cleansing of your skin with Pompeian Night Cream means a fresh and youthful face in the years to come—no fagged lines to show that you have led a busy life, but a complexion that shows intelligent care.

DAY CREAM
a light foundation for powder

Pompeian Day Cream prepares your skin for a busy day. It is light and disappears instantly—yet it gives a smooth, cool, delicate finish. A little cream spread on your face the first thing in the morning makes powder dust on evenly and stay on. Then through the day you are relieved from embarrassing face shine—from frequent powdering. Pompeian Day Cream is also slightly astringent and enlivening to the skin.

PRICE does not determine the worth of a gift. The appreciation it receives and the pleasure it gives, are what count.

La Palinas are certain of appreciation, for they are the daily smoke of more men — particular men—than any other fine cigar made. And in each La Palina there is rolled a wealth of pleasure. So La Palina embodies in marked measure the two outstanding qualities of the ideal Christmas gift.

La Palina Cigars are packed in a tempting variety of handsome holiday packages, which can be obtained at all fine tobacco stands.

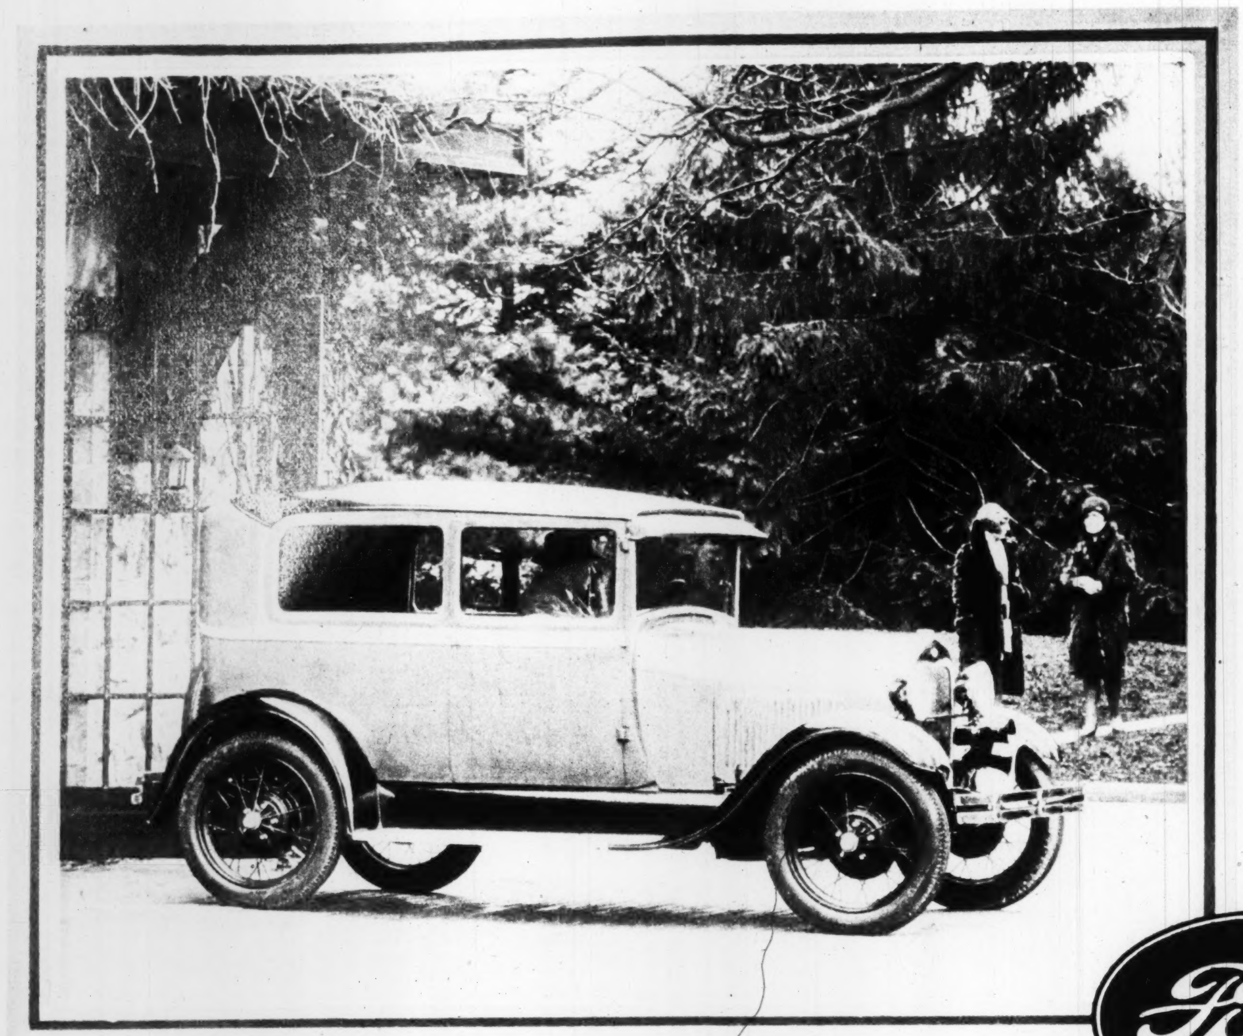
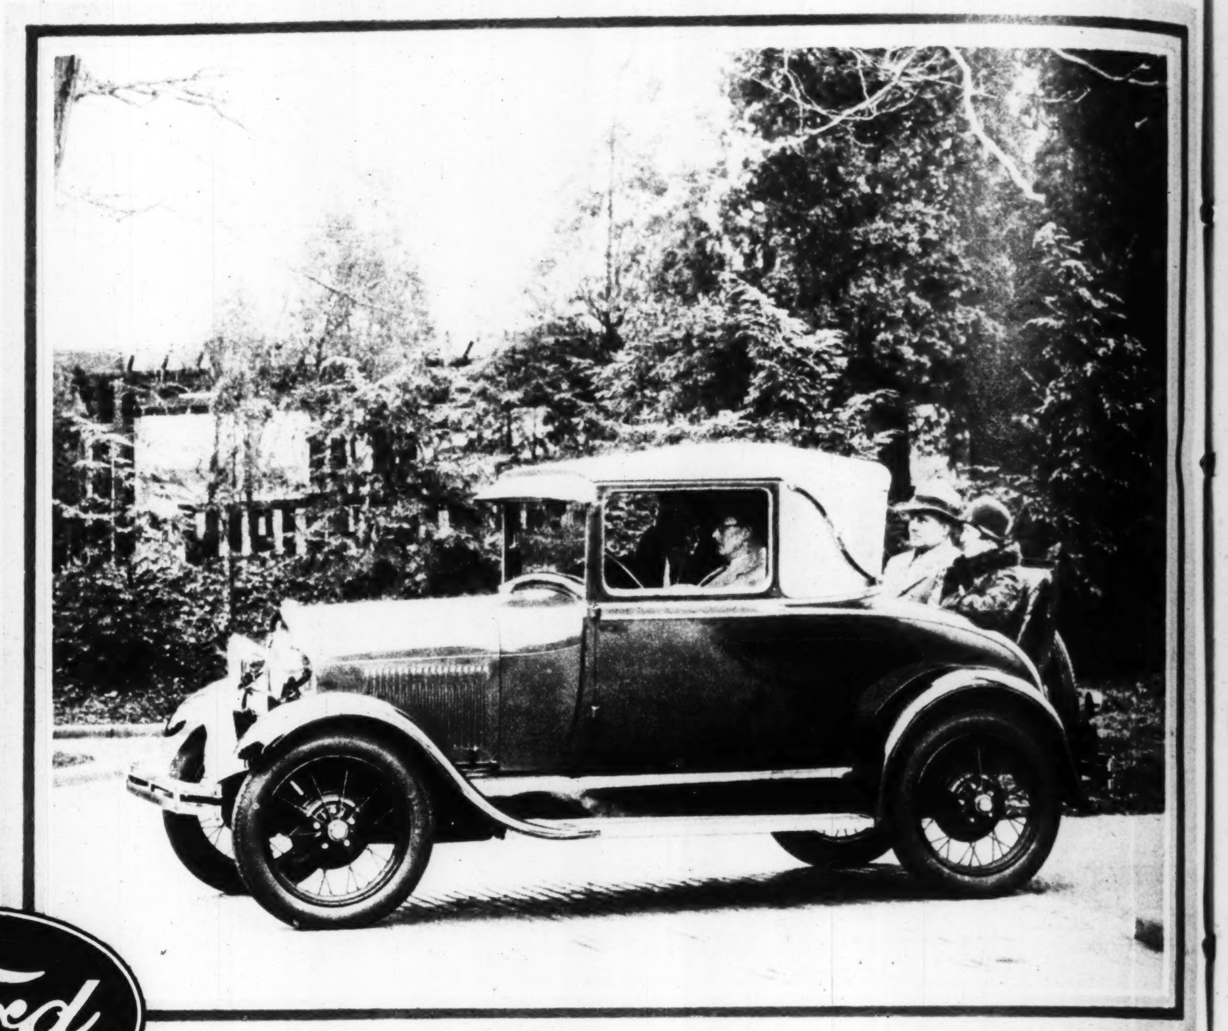
This photograph shows the low, graceful lines of the new Ford Tudor Sedan. Smart and fleet, yet sturdy and substantial. Generous seat space and ample leg room. Deep cushions. Rich upholstery. Full-nickeled hardware and all appointments in quiet good taste. Your choice of four colors.



This new Ford Sport Coupe combines town-car style with speed, comfort, safety, reliability, economy and low price. Richly appointed throughout. Finished in a variety of beautiful colors—an unusual feature in a low-price car. Standard equipment includes rumble seat, four-wheel brakes, hydraulic shock absorbers and shatter-proof safety glass.



Ford

More than a new automobile
More than a new model

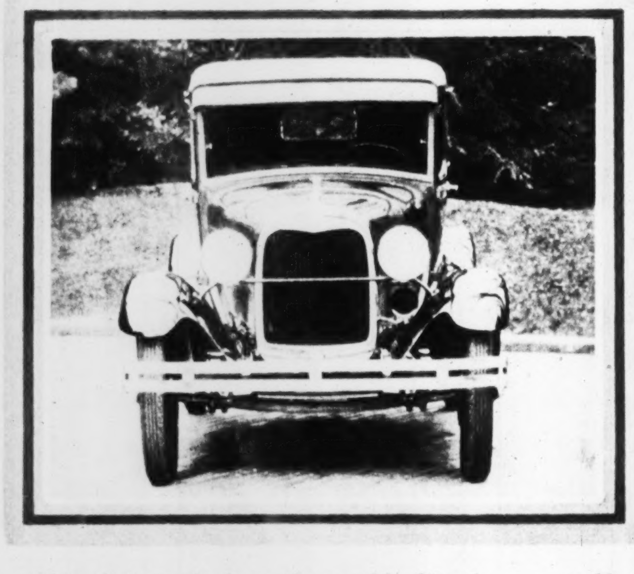
The new Ford is the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation

THE new Ford is more than a new automobile — more than just a new model. It is the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

It is important not only because of what it is, but because of the far-reaching effect it will have on the business and social life of the entire country.

Because of the new Ford, millions of people will be able to do more and better work — increase their earning capacity—and have more well-earned leisure to spend with their families and in the great out-of-doors.

Business of every kind will go forward at a swifter pace because of this new car. Thousands of miles of good roads will follow it wherever it goes.



This photograph shows the good-looking front ensemble of the new Ford. Simple, graceful, yet undeniably sturdy and capable. The wide radiator and headlights are full-nickeled. Full-crown fenders carry out the impression of fleetness.

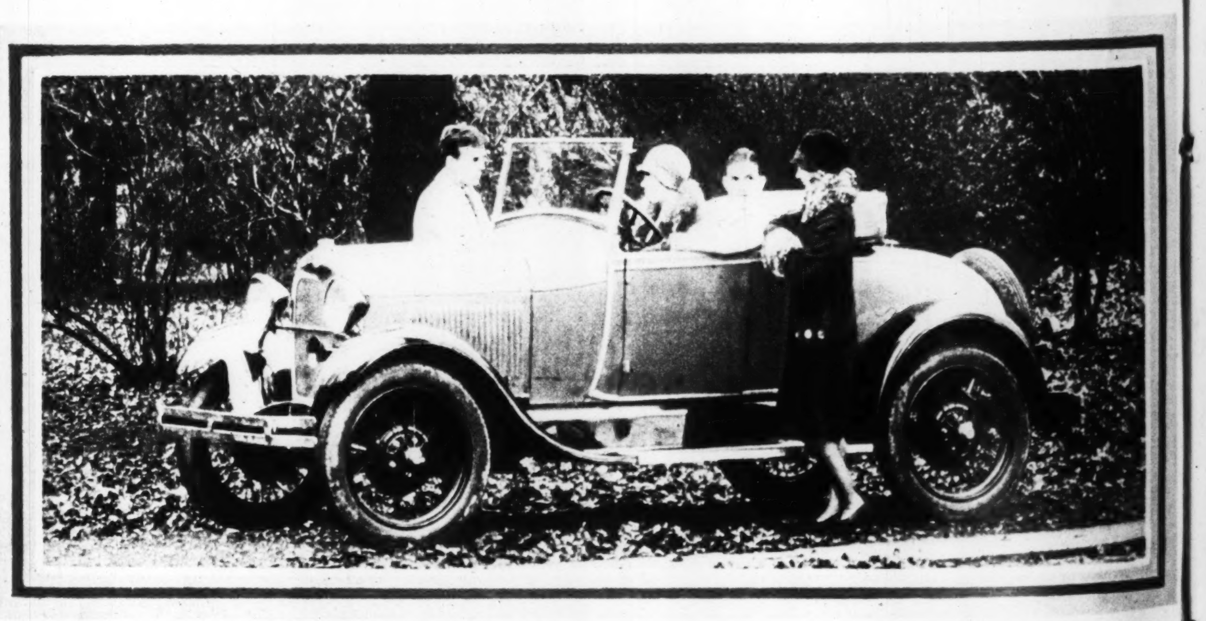
For now, for the first time, it is possible for you to get a really fine automobile at a low price. The performance of the new Ford is comparable in every respect with that of cars selling for hundreds of dollars more than the price of the new Ford.

The new Ford will do 55 to 65 miles an hour, and that means you will have speed enough for every need and emergency.

It is quick and easy to handle in traffic. With a Tudor Sedan body and a two-passenger load, it has accelerated from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 8½ seconds. It has four-wheel brakes and a shatter-proof glass windshield to give you the safety demanded by modern motoring conditions. The multiple dry-disc clutch and the standard gear shift with roller bearings add to your ease and enjoyment in driving.

New comfort is brought to you in the new Ford because of its hydraulic shock absorbers, low center of gravity, minimum unsprung weight and the easy-riding qualities of the transverse springs. All body types have generous oversize seat space and ample leg room—all are finished in a variety of colors and are richly appointed throughout.

Above all, you will find the new Ford a great car to own and drive because of its day-after-day and year-after-year reliability and low cost of up-keep.



The new Ford Roadster is a car for Youth and the country club. Low, smart, rakish and as speedy as it looks. Finished in a variety of beautiful colors.

Twenty to thirty miles per gallon of gasoline is just one example of the economy of this car. The real quality that has been built into every part of it means freedom from trouble, long life, and a saving of many dollars a year in repair bills.

In short, everything that you want and need in a motor car is given to you in the new Ford—speed, comfort, safety, beauty, reliability, economy combined to an uncommon degree.

The low price is the result of production economies and manufacturing methods as unusual as the car itself.

By all means, see this new Ford car as soon as possible. Inspect it carefully part by part. Arrange to drive it yourself and test its performance under all conditions. You will know then that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in design, quality and price.

The Roadster sells for $[illegible]; the Phaeton for $395; the Tudor Sedan for $495; the Coupe for $495; the Sport Coupe for $550; the Fordor Sedan for $570. (All prices are F. O. B. Detroit.)

Another Step Forward in IMPROVED
COLOR PRINTING

These Colors are used on all Comic pages in these Two Sections

THE Two Comic Sections of the Post-Dispatch are now printed in four colors on ALL pages instead of four colors on only the outside pages as formerly.

℄ This improvement is made possible by the recent installation of a press capable of printing sixteen pages at one time with four colors on each page—the last word in letter-press color printing machinery.

℄ This new press is the third to be installed by the Post-Dispatch as a means of improving the color printing of the Comic Sections.

℄ It is interesting to contrast this new press with the first newspaper color press west of the Mississippi—employed by the Post-Dispatch to print its comics—more than 30 years ago. That first color press was built to print a four-page section, of which the inside pages could be printed only in one color—and that was usually red.
